State Board Reopens Sodus Transfer

By JERRY KRIEGER
County-Farm Editor

LANSING — The state board of education has ordered a rehearing of the case in which the Sodus township area of Benton Harbor school district was transferred to Eau Claire in July of 1974.

Acting on a memo from the state school superintendent, Dr. John Porter, the board Wednesday instructed its hearing officer to schedule the case for a "prompt" rehearing.

Leaders of the Sodus residents who petitioned for the transfer called the rehearing order "a case of double jeopardy for us."

The new hearing is to be "for the purpose of taking testimony on new information and subsequent developments that have occurred (since the original decision last July) in the Benton Harbor desegration case.

The board of education indicated it called for a rehearing on the basis of its policy that no property transfers between districts will be made where desegregation cases are pending.

Dr. Porter's memo to the board said the fact that the Benton Harbor district, of which the Sodus transfer area is a part, was involved in a desegration suit was not brought out in the testimony at the previous Sodus transfer hearing.

The memo also said that since the state board approved the transfer last July, Judge Noel Fox in federal district court, Grand Rapids, issued a temporary injunction suspending the Sodus transfer. The injunction made the state board of education an added defendant in the Benton Harbor desegration case because of the board's approval of the transfer.

Porter's memo cited two alternative courses the state board course follows: 1. Have the attorney general defend the board in all the transfers made from Benton Harbor district since 1970 (the beginning date of the desegregation case. That could include the former Eaman district transfer to Coloma.); 2. Rehear the Sodus transfer appeal in view of "significant new dimensions" since the transfer decision was made last July.

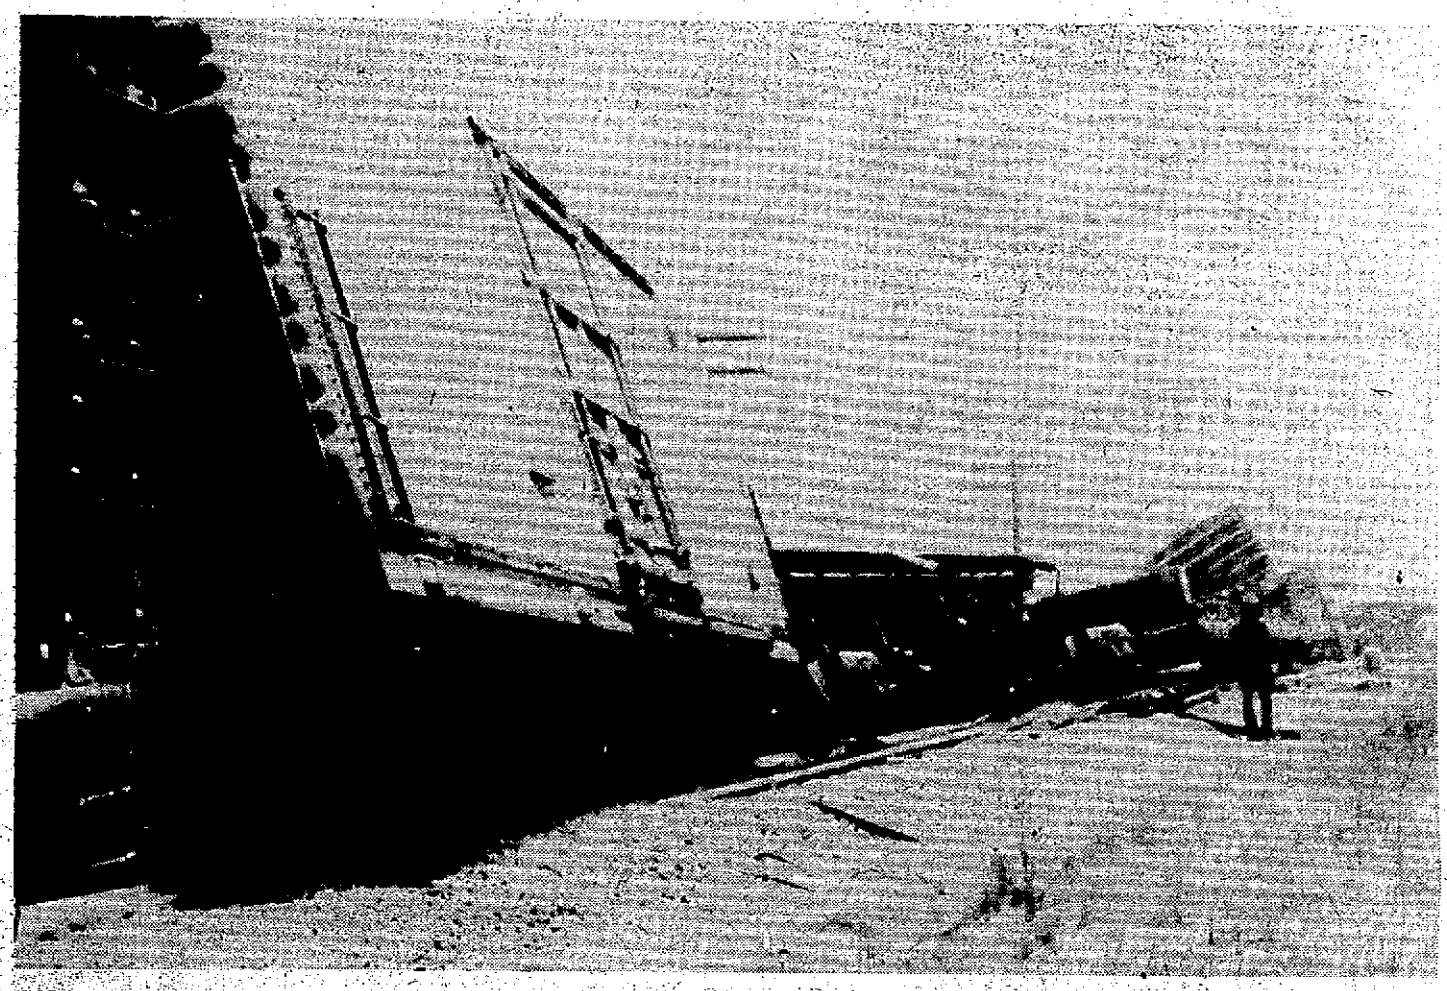

Dr. Porter's memo said the attorney general's office noted that state law "was not clear" on the board's power to reopen the transfer case, but that the attorney general would defend the state board's action if it did reopen the hearing.

The co-chairmen of Concerned Parents and Taxpayers of Sodus, the organization that petitioned for the transfer, said it appeared that reopening the transfer case means the state board wants to change its decision.

Mrs. Victor Fellner and Mrs. Kelly Becht of Sodus said the reopening of the case is double jeopardy for the residents of the area. They also said they question the authority of the board to change the decision, once made.

They said the Sodus residents have spent some thousands of dollars in legal and other costs to win the favorable transfer decision.

"Because of the recession, we don't thil k we can come up with thousands more to fight this thing through a second time. We shouldn't have to."

COLOMA DERAILMENT: A Chesapeake & Ohio freight train derailed at 2 a.m. this morning just west of West street in Coloma. No one was injured in derailment which tore up some 400 feet of track and sent 13 of train's 54 cars off track, C & O spokesman said. One of cars derailed was a tanker containing calcium chloride (salt for roads), spokesman said. Other cars contained general goods and materials. Train was headed to Chicago from Grand Rapids. Cars derailed were near rear of train and remainder of train continued on to Chicago early this morning. Investigation into cause of derailment was being conducted today. (Cliff Stevens photo)

They're Finding Jobs In Houston

DETROIT (AP) — Four executives from Texas struck paydirt this week when they came to Detroit looking for industrial and managerial talent.

The people they are hiring represent a population movement out of the depressed economy of the Motor City to prosperous, oil-rich Houston.

The four men have interviewed more than 300 prospects and say they are impressed by the surge of strong applicants.

"It's unbelievable," said Charles J. Hibbler, vice president of Tool Technologists Corp., which specializes in machine tool rebuilding.

Max Cowan of Belmas Co. said he hired 10 people in his first day of interviewing. "And every one of them was eminently qualified," he said.

Others on the expedition were William E. Cox and John G. Cochrun Jr., both officials of Reed Tool Co., who said they interviewed 50 applicants in their first day.

The appearance of the Texans at an office of the Michigan Employment Security Commission sparked hope for some of Detroit's thousands of unemployed workers.

"I've sent out over 200 resumes in the past three months and have had only about six interviews," said Larry Borger, 35, of Dearborn, a laid off project development engineer at Ford Motor Co. "I'm prepared to move anywhere if I'm offered a job with a future."

George Neubacher, 55, an unemployed industrial engineer, said he went in to find out about opportunities in Houston. "I'm tired of the constant layoffs," he said.

One man hired by Cowan declined to give his name, saying: "Just say I'm tired of the Detroit merry-go-round and want to try something new."

Unemployment is 3.2 per cent in metropolitan Houston, compared to an estimated 20 per cent in the city of Detroit.

"The only ones not working are the chronically unemployed or the unskilled," Cowan said.

"Job opportunities are everywhere. "We've got the third largest port in the country, some of the largest shipbuilding and repair yards, the biggest oil companies and aerospace — just to name a few."

MISS SODUS 1975: Sheila Hartlerode, 17, was chosen Miss Sodus of 1975 last night in community Blossom queen contest at DANK hall. Contest was first in series running through Sunday. St. Joseph contest is tonight while Eau Claire, Decatur, Cassopolis and Galien are Saturday night and New Buffalo is to be held Sunday night. See story on back page, this section. Jobless Rate Holds Steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate in February remained unchanged at 8.2 per cent, even though another 540,000 workers — most of them in manufacturing industries — lost their jobs during the month, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said the loss in jobs was more than offset by 580,000 dropouts from the labor force, mostly adult women and teen-agers who stopped looking for jobs altogether during the nation's current recession.

When a person stops looking for a job, he or she is no longer counted in the labor force and is no longer considered an unemployed person for statistical purposes.

But, while over-all unemployment remained unchanged from January, the jobless rate for manufacturing workers rose in February for the ninth consecutive month to 11 per cent, the Labor Department said.

It said there were 625,000 fewer manufacturing jobs in February, with all 21 industries accounted in the index showing decreases.

Over-all, there was a slight increase reported in the unemployment rate for married men, from 4.5 to 4.7 per cent, and for all adult men, from 6 to 6.2 per cent, although these rates remained below the peak levels during the 1969 and 1958 recessions.

The jobless rate for most subgroups within the labor force were essentially unchanged, for January. The jobless rates for white workers

President Toning Down Aid Sought For Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will settle for less than the $222 million in emergency aid he previously said was essential for the survival of Cambodia, White House officials say.

This tilt toward compromise was acknowledged after Ford told a news conference Thursday night that Cambodia could fall to the Communists within "10 days or two weeks" if Congress doesn't act to approve more military assistance.

Still, while saying that "time is running out" and "there is no hope" without aid for the Southeast Asian nation, Ford never used the $222 million figure so prominently advertised in the past as the necessary amount.

The White House sources would not disclose exactly that Ford might accept otherwise, but Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., has been proposing a $116 million sum since he returned earlier this week from a fact-finding tour of South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Although the issue of Cambodia took the largest share of the half-hour, nationally broadcast news conference, Ford also was questioned on the economy and politics, and he made these points:

—Unemployment, which stood at 8.2 per cent in January, could go as high as 9 per cent,

Barking Dog Trapped, Dies After Saving Cass Family

EDWARDSBURG — Cass county sheriff's deputies said John Taylor, his wife and two teenage daughters were apparently alerted by the family dog early this morning to a fire that destroyed their mobile home near here.

The Taylors fought their way to safety through the flames but the dog perished in the fire, deputies said.

Taylor, 49, remained hospitalized in good condition this morning at Elkhart General hospital in Elkhart Ind. where his wife Mary, 37, and daughters Pamela, 15, and Lisa, 13, were treated and released.

The home was located in Metcalf trailer park, Five Points road, Mason township, about five miles east of Edwardsburg.

Mrs. Taylor told deputies the barking of the family dog awakened her at about 2:30 a.m. The mobile home was engulfed in flames, she told deputies.

She told officers she and her husband awakened their daughters who were asleep in a back bedroom and then fought their way through the flames to safety.

Edwardsburg firemen told deputies the fire loss was estimated at $15,000

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Backing Water On Emission Controls

People do make mistakes and some of them are smart enough to move toward correcting their error.

This happens ever so less frequently in government which years ago decided it would not go out of business if it conceded it might be headed down the wrong track.

This week Russell Train, director of the Environmental Protection Agency, partially backtracked on a policy which anyone familiar with the internal combustion engine told him in the beginning could not be accomplished over night.

The converter cuts that output but delivers another harmful emission, sulphuric acid.

Continuing with the converter so the automotive engineers will have more time to develop a combustion system more fundamentally workable than simply adding on a gadget is Train's admission that one can not have his cake and eat it.

The hydrocarbon revision, if Congress bends on EPA's basic statutory law, would be a five-year plan.

EPA's first regulations targeted the 1977 models as the total accomplishment date for hydrocarbon rectification and also some equally powerful substances, nitrides, which are nitric acid formulants. The EPA did not take sulphur into consideration at the time because until the converter came on stream, notably in the 1975 models, this chemical hazard was almost non-existent.

Train actually seeks to move back the total result time for hydrocarbons to the 1982 models on a graduating scale.

Neither Train nor some vocal members in Congress fully confess to death bed repentence.

Senator Muskie who tried to win the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1972 on a Simon pure anti-pollution platform immediately called for minute scrutiny of Train's recommendation to move the target date along the calendar.

Train himself tossed out a curve ball when announcing the one-year postponement.

It does not apply to the nitrides, substances, which chemically speaking are much tougher to handle than hydrocarbons and EPA shortly will issue some regulations on the newly acknowledged sulphur difficulty.

Speaking of the latter, Train stated at his news conference the EPA has no present estimate of how its upcoming sulphur standards might disturb the pact between the White House and the Automobile manufacturers to hasten along a more efficient fuel consuming vehicle.

This is saying he views the energy crunch and the question as completely uncompromisable ideas.

It is merely the same old compartmentation in government where one bureau either does not know what another is doing, or if so, can care less.

This adherance to the old school line of thinking to the contrary, there is at least a certain relaxation in the normal procedure of never withdrawing from a position once it has been taken.

Most Americans Dislike Being Arms Peddlers

The American public votes a resounding "No" to continuation of U.S. military aid not only to South Vietnam (three to one against) and the Arab countries (eight to one against) but even to Israel (two to one against).

Such were the results of a national telephone poll conducted by Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J., among a national probability sample of 1,000 adults aged 18 and over.

The anti-aid sentiment cut across all income levels and all lines of political affiliation, say the researchers.

Just how much this poll, which did not go into any depth, is representative of true American attitudes is open to question. Surely not many people are happy about the prospect of South Vietnam going under to the Communists. Even fewer would wish to abandon Israel to her enemies.

But superficial and simplistic as it may be, the poll does express the growing disenchantment of Americans with our policy, however much that policy has been forced upon us, of involving ourselves in every squabble and rivalry in every part of the world — sometimes even to the point of arming both sides, as for examples, India and Pakistan, Greece and Turkey.

Last fiscal year, the United States, far and away the world's leading merchant of arms, sold $8.3 billion worth of military equipment. Where once it was obsolescent, second-hand stuff, today our clients sometimes receive the latest weapons of war before our own services are equipped.

To instruct in the use of the weapons, U.S. military assistance teams, both government and private under contract, are in no less than 34 countries.

Most recently, Ethiopia, running out of bullets in its fight against Arab-backed, Soviet-armed secessionist guerrillas in Eritrea province, asked the United States for an emergency airlift of $30-million worth of ammunition.

Which put the State Department in a quandary: Whether to supply the ammunition and jeopardize relations with the Arabs, who are starting to spend beaucoup petrodollars on (U.S.) weapons, or not supply it and risk a break with Ethiopia.

It is not easy being the "Arsenal of Democracy."

A THANK-YOU TO SODUS TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS

Editor,

"I will lift mine eyes unto the hills" says the Good Book.

Yes, we in our area need the hills. We also need the valleys, the villages and the small communities to satisfy further necessities. We have them; we also have a sense of pride and love of beauty within our populace that is most admirable. Many of you have generously backed Mt. Pleasant-Bay View Club's solicitation of money to purchase the lot in Sodus where the Christmas tree lights have shone forth so beautifully for several holiday seasons.

The purchase of this lot has become a reality through you contributions and the untiring effort of the Club's Community Improvement Chairman, Doris Handy (Mrs. John) and the help of other members. The Club hopes to improve this triangular lot in various ways, such as landscaping, etc. Then our MINI-PARK will have become a place for all residents, visitors and passersby to enjoy. May you who have contributed appreciate the transformation and feel your contribution further progress within you community.

Again, the Mt. Pleasant-Bay View Club expresses gratitude and a hearty THANK YOU!

Sincerely,

Mt. Pleasant-Bay View Club
Sodus, Michigan

THANK-YOU TO THE MEN WHO HELPED

Editor,

Please put this thank you in your daily paper as I know of no other way to personally thank the men that found my husband after his truck accident.

I would like to thank the men that called the ambulance and stayed with my husband after his truck accident. I am very indebted to you for possibly saving his life by keeping him warm. I have no other way of thanking you as I don't know who you are.

Thanks also to the doctors and nurses of Memorial hospital.

Your kindness will never be forgotten.

The Three Oaks high school basketball team finished the current campaign with a less than sensational 5-12 record, but there were a few bright spots during the otherwise dismal season.

One shining example was the performance of Greg Grosse, who tossed in 20 points as the Oakers closed out the season with a 70-61 victory over rival New Troy. He has been chosen The Herald-Press Player of the Week.

The St. John's high school basketball team will battle Lawton tonight in the opening game of Berrien Springs Class D regional tourney. Coach Ray Null's gang, of course, is champ of the St. Joseph district tournament.

— 50 Years Ago —

County and state taxes paid in Berrien have increased 222.28 per cent since 1914, a ratio greater than in many other of the larger and more densely populated counties of Michigan, according to statistics compiled by the state tax commission and made public in Lansing today. The total tax levy in Berrien for 1924 was, according to the state commission's figures, $2,786,496.87. Taking 65,000 as the approximate population of the county, the tax burden last year was about $42 for each man, woman and child within Berrien's borders.

Pals, Roosters, A Lot Of Blood

VALDOSTA, Ga. — The fellow with the red rooster said it was the bravest bird in the Southeast. He's raised it himself from a chick with nothing but the best. Best grain, best vitamins, best handling. He smoothed the creature's feathers, talking to it like a baby. Yessir, the best, the bravest rooster fighter he'd ever had. "ain'cha, baby, ain'cha, yes, yes, ain'cha baby, huh?"

He set the chicken down.

"Ready?" he said.

Across the grass, in the other corner so to speak, was a man with a brown bird. He nodded. "Ready." The fight was about to begin.

I was there by accident. I had come into the area for another story, and been invited to this one as an alternative. I had seen cockfights before, in Mexico, in Jersey, but not for man years. I decided to go again now to see if they were as miserable as memory served.

They are.

The contest was held on the Georgia-Florida border, hard by the Okefenokee Swamp, on property belonging to I never knew who. Apparently, it was not a regular thing. As explained to me, the fellow with the red rooster was Georgian, the other owner from Florida; they were friends, and this was a friendly fight. Small bets were permitted but there was no feature card, no paid admission. "Strictly friendly," my host said, "nobody here's professional."

Indeed, the occasion aside, the atmosphere was homey. No bleachers as I remembered in Nuevo Laredo, no shills, no brew passing around, no ominous baskets piled about in which to deposit remains. Just pals. And birds. And a half dozen guests to appreciate the results.

"Let 'em go," somebody said.

And it began. Awkwardly, but immediately. Roosters are not people, they are not nervous, they do not feel out their prey as boxers or soldiers. They just fight. The red rooster shot to the brown, sliding past in momentum. The brown caught him from behind, almost like jabs with an ice pick. Their down flew. Both birds locked. They screeched. A hound dog tied to a tree howled for a piece of the action.

At first some spectators shouted. Then they didn't. These were rough men, with one equally rough woman, and none were squeamish, but they seemed to agree in unison the event was not to be cheered, merely witnessed. They would not admit to the wrong occurring, chickens being only chickens, but one did say afterwards he almost vomited when the red rooster lost a leg and had to fight at an angle.

As it happened, the leg loss was more or less the end of the fairly short fight. When the red fell over, its owner, angry now, pointed to the other claw and insisted "it's still fighting," so the contest was allowed to continue a few moments longer. But the brown was clearly superior, bigger, faster, and so with its enemy handicapped, it sensed the kill and responded. By the time the fight was stopped, by majority rule, the red was in shreds. One of the spectators axed it in the neck to end the suffering.

At that I decided I was wrong to have come and perhaps others felt the same. But no one said so. Instead, plans were made to retire to a pub, the losing owner footing the bill. One fellow declined, saying it was bowling league night. The woman also begged off, night shift at a factory, she said. I declined, too, lying about a deadline. "Well, what'cha gonna write about?" somebody asked. I replied, "About 650 words."

Reagan's Eyes On Presidency

WASHINGTON — Despite his repeated public disclaimers, for Gov. Ronald Reagan is moving slowly but steadily toward a Presidential candidacy in 1976.

Because he may be tackling an incumbent of his own party, Reagan is unlikely to reveal his plans until the last possible. He may run into difficulty, however, if he does not establish a committee to report publicly all his fund-raising activities by at least summer or fall.

"There is no ongoing planning yet," a Reagan advisor said. "But he has made it clear the decision will not depend on whether President Ford declines to run."

Reagan, according to associates, has already taken some preliminary steps. He has solicited the counsel of his former political aide, Lyn Nofziger. He has consulted Washington lawyer John Sears, a former Nixon assistant. He has been at great pains to reject the idea of a third party conservative ticket, to put potential supporters on notice that he will run as a Republican or not at all.

He has also embraced former President Nixon with an apparent devotion that escaped him while Nixon sat in the White House. Reagan, 64, belongs to the right wing of the Republican Party, which was reponsible for Nixon's defeat for governor in 1962. Their relationship has been awkward, cagey, full of distrust.

But Reagan was one of a small band of brothers who honored Nixon at a Palm Springs dinner party recently. Bob Hope said afterward that Nixon really appreciated having such good friends.

The roughly one-quarter of the Republican Party that clings stubbornly to the notion Nixon was unfairly abused is also the hard core of conservative activists from which Reagan's support has traditionally sprung.

Reagan has, according to his advisers, rejected the strategy he used in 1968, when he pretended to be disinterested in the Presidency until convention eve. He had hoped to dazzle the delegates with his last-minute blitz, but the Nixon organization, which had been publicly working for two years, had all the votes. Reagan was too late with too little.

"He's sour on that approach," an advisor said. "If he does it this time, he'll make noise." Pause. "Of course, that may be the only way to force Ford (President Gerald Ford) out."

Reagan's personal interests are best served by a delay in any overt Presidential activity as long as possible. He writes a profitable newspaper column, does a radio show, and collects fees on the lecture circuit. None of these projects is compatible with an open Presidential candidacy. And none of the revenue is required to be publicly reported.

But the new Presidential campaign reform law requires all candidates to raise $5,000 from each of any 20 states in contributions of not more than $250 if they are to qualify for matching Federal primary money.

That necessitates seed money, organization and person power well in advance of the primaries.

All this is further complicated for Reagan by the fact that the President, should he decide not to seek election, is not apt to reveal his lame duck status until well into 1976, perhaps after several primary deadlines have already passed. Thus Reagan must formulate his own plans on the assumption that Ford will be his opposition and merely the hope he will not.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Backing Water On Emission Controls

People do make mistakes and some of them are smart enough to move toward correcting their error.

This happens ever so less frequently in government which years ago decided it would not go out of business if it conceded it might be headed down the wrong track.

This week Russell Train, director of the Environmental Protection Agency, partially backtracked on a policy which anyone familiar with the internal combustion engine told him in the beginning could not be accomplished over night.

The converter cuts that output but delivers another harmful emission, sulphuric acid.

Continuing with the converter so the automotive engineers will have more time to develop a combustion system more fundamentally workable than simply adding on a gadget is Train's admission that one can not have his cake and eat it.

The hydrocarbon revision, if Congress bends on EPA's basic statutory law, would be a five-year plan.

EPA's first regulations targeted the 1977 models as the total accomplishment date for hydrocarbon rectification and also some equally powerful substances, nitrides, which are nitric acid formulants. The EPA did not take sulphur into consideration at the time because until the converter came on stream, notably in the 1975 models, this chemical hazard was almost non-existent.

Train actually seeks to move back the total result time for hydrocarbons to the 1982 models on a graduating scale.

Neither Train nor some vocal members in Congress fully confess to death bed repentence.

Senator Muskie who tried to win the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1972 on a Simon pure anti-pollution platform immediately called for minute scrutiny of Train's recommendation to move the target date along the calendar.

Train himself tossed out a curve ball when announcing the one-year postponement.

It does not apply to the nitrides, substances, which chemically speaking are much tougher to handle than hydrocarbons and EPA shortly will issue some regulations on the newly acknowledged sulphur difficulty.

Speaking of the latter, Train stated at his news conference the EPA has no present estimate of how its upcoming sulphur standards might disturb the pact between the White House and the Automobile manufacturers to hasten along a more efficient fuel consuming vehicle.

This is saying he views the energy crunch and the question as completely uncompromisable ideas.

It is merely the same old compartmentation in government where one bureau either does not know what another is doing, or if so, can care less.

This adherance to the old school line of thinking to the contrary, there is at least a certain relaxation in the normal procedure of never withdrawing from a position once it has been taken.

Most Americans Dislike Being Arms Peddlers

The American public votes a resounding "No" to continuation of U.S. military aid not only to South Vietnam (three to one against) and the Arab countries (eight to one against) but even to Israel (two to one against).

Such were the results of a national telephone poll conducted by Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J., among a national probability sample of 1,000 adults aged 18 and over.

The anti-aid sentiment cut across all income levels and all lines of political affiliation, say the researchers.

Just how much this poll, which did not go into any depth, is representative of true American attitudes is open to question. Surely not many people are happy about the prospect of South Vietnam going under to the Communists. Even fewer would wish to abandon Israel to her enemies.

But superficial and simplistic as it may be, the poll does express the growing disenchantment of Americans with our policy, however much that policy has been forced upon us, of involving ourselves in every squabble and rivalry in every part of the world — sometimes even to the point of arming both sides, as for examples, India and Pakistan, Greece and Turkey.

Last fiscal year, the United States, far and away the world's leading merchant of arms, sold $8.3 billion worth of military equipment. Where once it was obsolescent, second-hand stuff, today our clients sometimes receive the latest weapons of war before our own services are equipped.

To instruct in the use of the weapons, U.S. military assistance teams, both government and private under contract, are in no less than 34 countries.

Most recently, Ethiopia, running out of bullets in its fight against Arab-backed, Soviet-armed secessionist guerrillas in Eritrea province, asked the United States for an emergency airlift of $30-million worth of ammunition.

Which put the State Department in a quandary: Whether to supply the ammunition and jeopardize relations with the Arabs, who are starting to spend beaucoup petrodollars on (U.S.) weapons, or not supply it and risk a break with Ethiopia.

A THANK-YOU TO SODUS TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS

Editor,

"I will lift mine eyes unto the hills" says the Good Book.

Yes, we in our area need the hills. We also need the valleys, the villages and the small communities to satisfy further necessities. We have them; we also have a sense of pride and love of beauty within our populace that is most admirable. Many of you have generously backed Mt. Pleasant-Bay View Club's solicitation of money to purchase the lot in Sodus where the Christmas tree lights have shone forth so beautifully for several holiday seasons.

The purchase of this lot has become a reality through you contributions and the untiring effort of the Club's Community Improvement Chairman, Doris Handy (Mrs. John) and the help of other members. The Club hopes to improve this triangular lot in various ways, such as landscaping, etc. Then our MINI-PARK will have become a place for all residents, visitors and passersby to enjoy. May you who have contributed appreciate the transformation and feel your contribution further progress within you community.

Again, the Mt. Pleasant-Bay View Club expresses gratitude and a hearty THANK YOU!

Sincerely,

Mt. Pleasant-Bay View Club

THANK-YOU TO THE MEN WHO HELPED

Editor,

Please put this thank you in your daily paper as I know of no other way to personally thank the men that found my husband after his truck accident.

I would like to thank the men that called the ambulance and stayed with my husband after his truck accident. I am very indebted to you for possibly saving his life by keeping him warm. I have no other way of thanking you as I don't know who you are.

Thanks also to the doctors and nurses of Memorial hospital.

Your kindness will never be forgotten.

County and state taxes paid in Berrien have increased 222.28 per cent since 1914, a ratio greater than in many other of the larger and more densely populated counties of Michigan, according to statistics compiled by the state tax commission and made public in Lansing today. The total tax levy in Berrien for 1924 was, according to the state commission's figures, $2,786,496.87. Taking 65,000 as the approximate population of the county, the tax burden last year was about $42 for each man, woman and child within Berrien's borders.

New Bridge In SJ Will Lift Quicker

By DICK DERRICK
SJ City Editor

The $9.2 million bridges between the Twin Cities will be rather unique with a speedy hydraulic lifting system and a television operation.

Ernest Malkewitz, project engineer for the State Department of Highways on the bridges under construction over the Morrison channel and the St. Joseph river, told St. Joseph Lions yesterday the hydraulic system is a new concept in building bascule bridges.

The I-196 business loop bascule bridge at South Haven over the Black River was the first in the world to employ the hydraulic lift principal, he said.

ERNEST MALKEWITZ
Bridge Project Engineer

The Blossomland bridge at St. Joseph is also of the bascule type but operates counterbalances from a direct drive.

The advantage of the hydraulic system will be considerably faster operation and more control of the moveable spans in high winds.

In actual operations the bridge leaves will draw back and then rise. When the bridge is closed the two leaves lock and settle on supports to provide a stable crossing span.

Walter Toebe and Co., Wixom, Mich., is general contractor for the bridges. The bridge over the Morrison channel will be a fixed span. The bascule or drawbridge will be built over the mainstream of the St. Joseph river to permit navigation.

Site preparation work for the bridges is now underway.

Engineers are studying plans to operate both the Blossomland bridge and the new bridge from the same control post, Malkewitz said. Operators would have television cameras to assist them.

Malkewitz, a 1949 graduate of Michigan State university, was a bridge engineer in construction of the three bridges north of Blossomland bridge, two on Tiscornia freeway and one over the Paw Paw river. These bridges were built in 1952 and 1956.

Malkewitz described other aspects of the new construction:

After the bridge over the Morrison channel is complete, traffic will use that, returning to the old traffic lane via Industrial avenue.

Traffic will be maintained on the old bridges while the new bridges are being built.

The bridge over the Morrison channel will have 37 feet clearance over the water, about what it is now. It will be 507 feet long and cost $1,823,038.84.

The bascule bridge over the St. Joseph river will be 570 feet long and cost $5,598,813.99. It will have a 21 foot clearance over the river compared to the six feet at present.

The road portion including the approaches and area between the two bridges will be 1,773 feet long and cost $1,850,077.15. The entire project will be 2,950 feet long and cost, according to contracts already let, $9,271,929.98.

Steel used on the bridges will be a self oxidizing type which will not require painting, resulting in lower maintenance costs.

There will be a traffic loop to serve Industrial avenue and eliminate the need for left turns in the center.

A traffic improvement will be the gradual curve off Ship street, eliminating the right angle turn at the intersection of Ship and Wayne streets now.

Piling to support bridge foundations will average between 45 and 55 feet and up to 129 feet in areas along the edge of the river.

Completion is estimated for August, 1977, depending on availability of steel.

FIRM BED FOR BRIDGE: Workmen have begun excavating at one spot and backfilling at another in center of photo for new bridgework across Morrison channel and St. Joseph river on Industrial island in twin cities. Work area is at left of existing two-lane road and bridge, which will continue in use as construction progresses. Work is expected to be finished in 1977 at a cost of over $9 million. New Bridge In SJ Will Lift Quicker

By DICK DERRICK
SJ City Editor

The $9.2 million bridges between the Twin Cities will be rather unique with a speedy hydraulic lifting system and a television operation.

Ernest Malkewitz, project engineer for the State Department of Highways on the bridges under construction over the Morrison channel and the St. Joseph river, told St. Joseph Lions yesterday the hydraulic system is a new concept in building bascule bridges.

The I-196 business loop bascule bridge at South Haven over the Black River was the first in the world to employ the hydraulic lift principal, he said.

ERNEST MALKEWITZ
Bridge Project Engineer

The Blossomland bridge at St. Joseph is also of the bascule type but operates counterbalances from a direct drive.

The advantage of the hydraulic system will be considerably faster operation and more control of the moveable spans in high winds.

In actual operations the bridge leaves will draw back and then rise. When the bridge is closed the two leaves lock and settle on supports to provide a stable crossing span.

Walter Toebe and Co., Wixom, Mich., is general contractor for the bridges. The bridge over the Morrison channel will be a fixed span. The bascule or drawbridge will be built over the mainstream of the St. Joseph river to permit navigation.

Site preparation work for the bridges is now underway.

Engineers are studying plans to operate both the Blossomland bridge and the new bridge from the same control post, Malkewitz said. Operators would have television cameras to assist them.

Malkewitz, a 1949 graduate of Michigan State university, was a bridge engineer in construction of the three bridges north of Blossomland bridge, two on Tiscornia freeway and one over the Paw Paw river. These bridges were built in 1952 and 1956.

Malkewitz described other aspects of the new construction:

After the bridge over the Morrison channel is complete, traffic will use that, returning to the old traffic lane via Industrial avenue.

Traffic will be maintained on the old bridges while the new bridges are being built.

The bridge over the Morrison channel will have 37 feet clearance over the water, about what it is now. It will be 507 feet long and cost $1,823,038.84.

The bascule bridge over the St. Joseph river will be 570 feet long and cost $5,598,813.99. It will have a 21 foot clearance over the river compared to the six feet at present.

The road portion including the approaches and area between the two bridges will be 1,773 feet long and cost $1,850,077.15. The entire project will be 2,950 feet long and cost, according to contracts already let, $9,271,929.98.

Steel used on the bridges will be a self oxidizing type which will not require painting, resulting in lower maintenance costs.

There will be a traffic loop to serve Industrial avenue and eliminate the need for left turns in the center.

Piling to support bridge foundations will average between 45 and 55 feet and up to 129 feet in areas along the edge of the river.

Completion is estimated for August, 1977, depending on availability of steel.

FIRM BED FOR BRIDGE: Workmen have begun excavating at one spot and backfilling at another in center of photo for new bridgework across Morrison channel and St. Joseph river on Industrial island in twin cities. Work area is at left of existing two-lane road and bridge, which will continue in use as construction progresses. Work is expected to be finished in 1977 at a cost of over $9 million. 'He' And 'She' Waves For Spring

Hairstyle Liberation

Curly, wavy hairstyles are showing up EVERYWHERE this season — for sport and dress, day and evening and even on men as well as women.

Complementing the looser lines in ladies' fashions and the streamlined shapes of menswear, these new "liberated" hairstyles emphasize lots of softness, movement and a together look.

Just like the fashionable woman, today's male is caring more about his appearance and that includes his hair. Gone are his grubby jeans, scraggly locks and wild, unruly beards. In its place are shorter, neater crops with either a clean-shaven face or a trim, sculptured moustache or beard.

One popular style he may opt for is a fuller shape, combed off the face and brushed into a soft wave at the side. Or he may choose a short, contoured cut that follows his hair's natural lines like the tapered geometric styles.

He has copied his female counterpart who has transformed her own long, limp locks into springy spirals fluffed into a mass of soft, deep waves that frame the forehead.

To maintain his new, controlled look, he's finding that regular visits to the professional hairstyling salon are a must. In fact, more and more men are joining the ladies at local salons across the country to have their hair cut, styled, conditioned, colored and even permanent waved.

Hairdressers report their new male salon customers aren't waiting four to six months in-between hair cuts. They are now visiting beauty salons once a month to keep their hair trim, neat and looking its best.

Professionals also say that men are buying just as many haircare appliances and products as women. For example, blow-dryers rate high with men because they're quick-drying, easy-to-use and convenient for traveling. Also, many haircare products are being marketed strictly for men — including sprays, shampoos and conditioners.

Another twist in the males' quest for haircare is the fact that most feel their shorter, tider looks give them a more youthful appearance. And just like women, they like it!

Suit 'Alive And Well'

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — According to fashion designer Ralph Lauren, the men's suit business is "alive and well and won't be replaced by the safari suit."

In his fall collection Lauren presented sports suits in gray flannel, English worsted, Harris tweed and corduroy.

He added lapels to his vests and continued the wider-legged, pleated pants. The three-button suit was designed in antique-looking Harris tweeds. Soft coloring was used throughout, sometimes combining camel with gray, or gray with brown.

CASUAL LOOK: A model shows a casual pinstripe suit by Ralph Lauren displayed in his fall collection this week in New York. (AP Wirephoto)

Lauren, a two-time Coty Award winner who just won the 1975 Fashion Award for men's wear, presented his newest look this season: the short, striped two-piece suit resembling a one-piece jumpsuit.

"It's something that's coming very much," he said, predicting it would be a popular look of the future.

With the three-button suit, Lauren added bluff edges. Some jackets also had a ticket pocket and breast flap.

Tartan plaids abounded with Lauren's sporty designs. He showed a gray donegal with a red tartan shirt. A green tartan plaid was on the back of a blazer jacket collar.

The real sporty, outdoor clothes were rugged and natural, made for actually hunting, fishing or riding instead of walking through the fields. Here, his designs were, in fact, influenced by actual sports, resulting in shooting jackets, complete with "game" pockets, and riding pants.

For formal evening wear, Lauren showed a velvet tuxedo worn with a large white satin ascot and a double-breasted tuxedo with wing collar and black and white striped shirt.

Shoes throughout the collection were largely tan and suede wing-tips, tassle loafers and gum-soled brogues.

New Organ For Center

NEW YORK (AP) — Lincoln Center says that a new tracker (mechanical action) organ is being installed in Alice Tully hall and will have its first performances in April.

The instrument, built by Theodore Kuhn of Mannedort, Switzerland, is a gift from Miss Alice Tully.

The organ has 4,192 pipes. It is played from four independent manuals. The organ was designed both as a virtuoso instrument and to be capable of blending with a chamber music group or full orchestra.

Woman Deputy Sheriff

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Reva Richmond is now riding solo as Marin county's first woman sheriff assigned to patrol.

Deputy Richmond has taken the same courses, passed the same tests, been trained in the same pistol shooting and tactics of self-defense as male deputies.

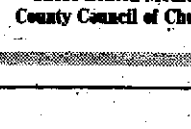

"I'm the first of a kind and I think no one knows quite what to do with me." She expects to be assigned out of the sheriff's main office in the civic center and carry out any assignment that might be given a male counterpart.

"No, I am not scared," she said.

She was asked if he gave her patrolling tips.

"No, we hardly see each other. He works from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. I work from 4 p.m. until midnight. We don't even have the same days off."

Lenten Meditation

By Dr. Carlos C. Page
Peace Temple United Methodist Church, Benton Harbor
Today's Scripture: Hebrews 9:11-12, 15

The covenant that the Lord made with His people was an agreement that He would be their God, and they would be His people.

Jesus Christ was both redeemer and mediator. Jesus was "the mediator of a new agreement." A new agreement made necessary by His redeeming death. This new agreement is between a living God and living people.

If an Israelite became poor, he might "sell" the use of his property or himself, but he always did so with the right of redemption.

Usually a man became free of bondage and regained the use of his land because some redeemer came to his rescue and paid the necessary price. The feeling of gratitude toward a redeemer was natural.

The author of Hebrews affirms that Jesus of Nazareth did this for each of us as redeemer and mediator of the new agreement. Christ entered once for all through His own blood and offered Himself.

This is the uniqueness of the Christian faith. Christ comes on the scene and all is different. When we remember what He did, the soul of man can find no rest until it follows Him.

He added lapels to his vests and continued the wider-legged, pleated pants. The three-button suit was designed in antique-looking Harris tweeds. Soft coloring was used throughout, sometimes combining camel with gray, or gray with brown.

Lauren, a two-time Coty Award winner who just won the 1975 Fashion Award for men's wear, presented his newest look this season: the short, striped two-piece suit resembling a one-piece jumpsuit.

"It's something that's coming very much," he said, predicting it would be a popular look of the future.

In his show, the short suit was worn with a silk scarf.

With the three-button suit, Lauren added bluff edges. Some jackets also had a ticket pocket and breast flap.

Tartan plaids abounded with Lauren's sporty designs. He showed a gray donegal with a red tartan shirt. A green tartan plaid was on the back of a blazer jacket collar.

The real sporty, outdoor clothes were rugged and natural, made for actually hunting, fishing or riding instead of walking through the fields. Here, his designs were, in fact, influenced by actual sports, resulting in shooting jackets, complete with "game" pockets, and riding pants.

For formal evening wear, Lauren showed a velvet tuxedo worn with a large white satin ascot and a double-breasted tuxedo with wing collar and black and white striped shirt.

Shoes throughout the collection were largely tan and suede wing-tips, tassle loafers and gum-soled brogues.

New Organ For Center

NEW YORK (AP) — Lincoln Center says that a new tracker (mechanical action) organ is being installed in Alice Tully hall and will have its first performances in April.

The instrument, built by Theodore Kuhn of Mannedort, Switzerland, is a gift from Miss Alice Tully.

The organ has 4,192 pipes. It is played from four independent manuals. The organ was designed both as a virtuoso instrument and to be capable of blending with a chamber music group or full orchestra.

Woman Deputy Sheriff

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Reva Richmond is now riding solo as Marin county's first woman sheriff assigned to patrol.

Deputy Richmond has taken the same courses, passed the same tests, been trained in the same pistol shooting and tactics of self-defense as male deputies.

"I'm the first of a kind and I think no one knows quite what to do with me." She expects to be assigned out of the sheriff's main office in the civic center and carry out any assignment that might be given a male counterpart.

"No, I am not scared," she said.

She was asked if he gave her patrolling tips.

"No, we hardly see each other. He works from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. I work from 4 p.m. until midnight. We don't even have the same days off."

Lenten Meditation

By Dr. Carlos C. Page
Peace Temple United Methodist Church, Benton Harbor
Today's Scripture: Hebrews 9:11-12, 15

The covenant that the Lord made with His people was an agreement that He would be their God, and they would be His people.

Jesus Christ was both redeemer and mediator. Jesus was "the mediator of a new agreement." A new agreement made necessary by His redeeming death. This new agreement is between a living God and living people.

If an Israelite became poor, he might "sell" the use of his property or himself, but he always did so with the right of redemption.

Usually a man became free of bondage and regained the use of his land because some redeemer came to his rescue and paid the necessary price. The feeling of gratitude toward a redeemer was natural.

The author of Hebrews affirms that Jesus of Nazareth did this for each of us as redeemer and mediator of the new agreement. Christ entered once for all through His own blood and offered Himself.

This is the uniqueness of the Christian faith. Christ comes on the scene and all is different. When we remember what He did, the soul of man can find no rest until it follows Him.

Sorority President At MSU

Betsy Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton H. Baker, 2218 Mount Curve, St. Joseph, has been elected president of Xi Gamma Chapter, Chi Omega social sorority, at Michigan State university.

A 1973 graduate of St. Joseph high school, Miss Baker is a sophomore at MSU, majoring in theater and music.

Night People More Open With Others

EAST LANSING — Workers on the night shift share more than sleeping problems, upset stomachs, social isolation, and low visibility.

They also have a different perspective on how daytime people operate: scurrying around and honoring status distinctions.

Further, they are inclined to share confidences, like passengers on cruises, and are more "open and honest" with each other.

The gains and losses of hospital night people — who are usually young, well-educated and see themselves as temporarily on the late shift — are described by students of the Michigan State university department of sociology.

She is a registered nurse, a 1973 MSU graduate in sociology and has done research on emergency medical system in Michigan. She is now a National Science Foundation Fellow in sociology at the University of Chicago. Her evaluation follows on three years of being on the night shift, with equal times on afternoon and evening shifts.

"Sleeping during the day soon becomes a contest," Miss Kozak says, "between the sleepee and all the enemies out to get him or her." The enemies are apt to be neighbors' drills and hammers, door salesmen, morning TV shows and droning autos.

"Problems with sleeping become a regular part of conversations with fellow night workers," she said, "much like discussing the weather for day people."

Stomach upsets are frequent, because eating is a highly social activity. If night workers try to coordinate their eating with spouses, friends or roommates, she explained, they're faced with roast beef and mashed potatoes when their stomachs are ready for toast and coffee.

Another serious problem is the erosion of recreational patterns and interpersonal ties. Stores are closed when they're ready to shop. Conventional evening actvities, whether parties or TV-watching, have to be cut off.

"Gradually," she said, "night workers start avoiding these situations and their uncomfortable incompletion. They notice themselves having fewer dates, attending fewer parties, and drifting away from the everyday concerns and activities of their close friends."

After the night shift, hospitals by day resemble "an ant farm" with all types and categories of people scurrying around the corridors, but at night the traffic changes to a trickle and almost vanishes at midnight. And status distinctions are less carefully maintained at night.

"The sheer need of the staff for stimulation," Miss Kozak said, "led to night people using their 'interpersonal skills' on each other, besides exchanging confidences.

"They had to interact and receive human warmth and definition from each other. Herculean efforts were made to keep conflicts smoothed over, and outcasts usually left night work," she said.

Radio Film Monday

The late Jack Benny explains how his character of a miserly fiddler came into being in "Great Radio Comedians — Part II" which will be shown Monday, March 10, at 12:15 p.m. in the Benton Harbor public library auditorium.

The public is invited and anyone wishing to bring a lunch may do so.

Night People More Open With Others

EAST LANSING — Workers on the night shift share more than sleeping problems, upset stomachs, social isolation, and low visibility.

They also have a different perspective on how daytime people operate: scurrying around and honoring status distinctions.

Further, they are inclined to share confidences, like passengers on cruises, and are more "open and honest" with each other.

The gains and losses of hospital night people — who are usually young, well-educated and see themselves as temporarily on the late shift — are described by students of the Michigan State university department of sociology.

She is a registered nurse, a 1973 MSU graduate in sociology and has done research on emergency medical system in Michigan. She is now a National Science Foundation Fellow in sociology at the University of Chicago. Her evaluation follows on three years of being on the night shift, with equal times on afternoon and evening shifts.

"Sleeping during the day soon becomes a contest," Miss Kozak says, "between the sleepee and all the enemies out to get him or her." The enemies are apt to be neighbors' drills and hammers, door salesmen, morning TV shows and droning autos.

"Problems with sleeping become a regular part of conversations with fellow night workers," she said, "much like discussing the weather for day people."

Stomach upsets are frepuent, because eating is a highly social activity. If night workers try to coordinate their eating with spouses, friends or roommates, she explained, they're faced with roast beef and mashed potatoes when their stomachs are ready for toast and coffee.

Another serious problem is the erosion of recreational patterns and interpersonal ties. Stores are closed when they're ready to shop. Conventional evening actvities, whether parties or TV-watching, have to be cut off.

"Gradually," she said, "night workers start avoiding these situations and their uncomfortable incompletion. They notice themselves having fewer dates, attending fewer parties, and drifting away from the everyday concerns and activities of their close friends."

After the night shift, hospitals by day resemble "an ant farm" with all types and categories of people scurrying around the corridors, but at night the traffic changes to a trickle and almost vanishes at midnight. And status distinctions are less carefully maintained at night.

"The sheer need of the staff for stimulation," Miss Kozak said, "led to night people using their 'interpersonal skills' on each other, besides exchanging confidences.

"They had to interact and receive human warmth and definition from each other. Herculean efforts were made to keep conflicts smoothed over, and outcasts usually left night work," she said.

The late Jack Benny explains how his character of a miserly fiddler came into being in "Great Radio Comedians — Part II" which will be shown Monday, March 10, at 12:15 p.m. in the Benton Harbor public library auditorium.

The film tells how Americans gathered around the radio and listened to such greats as Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Eddie Cantor.

The public is invited and anyone wishing to bring a lunch may do so.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Wife Not Really Unemployed

Dear Ann Landers: As for that character who wanted to know what unemployed housewives do all day besides shop in the stores and talk on the phone, I'd like to enlighten him. I became an authority on the subject last month when my wife went to the hospital for a hysterectomy. She scheduled the surgery during my annual two-week vacation so I could stay home and take care of our children, 6 and 8.

I cooked three unbelievably rotten meals every day, did the laundry five times, tried to iron a few things, burned a hole in our daughter's best blouse and scorched a couple of pairs of the boy's pants.

Housekeeping was impossible. As soon as I got the place looking halfway decent, the kids and their friends messed things up.

My wife deserves a gold medal. How she manages to keep the house spotless, do the marketing, cooking, washing and ironing, take the kids to the dentist, for piano lessons, sew costumes, drive my mother around, bake cakes for sick neighbors and be active in the American Cancer Society, is beyond me.

I hope you will print this on March 7, her birthday. My so-called "average" housewife is a miracle worker and she deserves to read this letter on that special day. — True Believer

Dear True: Here's your letter — and on the day requested. That sound you hear is millions of women blowing kisses. (P.S. Whenever I hear that phrase "unemployed housewives" I hit the ceiling. Many women work as hard IN the house as others do OUT. Maybe harder.)

Etiquette Lesson

Dear Ann Landers: Our nephew, a physician, was recently married to a young woman who has a Ph.D. in history. How should this couple be addressed? We feel that Dr. and Mrs. John Smith is incorrect since the woman is not getting proper recognition for the title she has a right to be proud of. Please inform us. — Status Minded

Dear S.M.; Dr. and Mrs. is perfectly O.K. (Maybe she worked harder to get the guy than she did to get the Ph.D.) If you want to go all out, however, you could address them as Dr. John Smith and Dr. Jean Smith, or Drs. John and Jean Smith. If none of these satisfy you, I suggest that you ask THEM the question.

Good Advice

Dear Ann Landers: In reference to the 2½-year-old hyperactive boy, your advice to seek another medical opinion was good. However, I wish you had suggested a physician trained in neurology and psychology — one who would take the time to do exhaustive tests and find out if the hyperactivity is physical or psychological.

Physicians who lack the training or refuse to take the time to get to the root of the problem often prescribe drugs which can lead to dependence or even death if the child has a heart dysfunction. I am not a doctor, but my friend's 5-year-old is hyper and the first doctor put him on a certain drug. His mother got a second opinion from a specialist. He said continuing on that drug could have been disastrous. Please print my letter. — Northport Reader

Dear N.R.: Thank you for reinforcing my original counsel: "Get another medical opinion." It's excellent health insurance and could spell the difference between life and death.

What's prudish? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting—What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Finally!-- All Sales Final

I drove by my favorite furniture store yesterday and got the shock of my life. A large sign covered the entire display window. "CLOSED!!! POOR HEALTH!"

I've known Fred for years. There hasn't been a month that he hasn't gone out of business . . . but never anything so dramatic in March.

You can mark your calendar by Fred's exit from the furniture business. Every April his homemade signs proclaim, "GOING OUT OF BUSINESS! ALL SALES FINAL!" In May, these are torn down and up go his "INVENTORY. MUST SACRIFICE" banners.

In June, he wheels out an old truck and tapes to his window the picture of a man with a red face (who slightly resembles Fred) and a confession alongside it reading, "OOPS! IS MY FACE RED! I'M OVERSTOCKED!"

Four weeks later, with a miraculous recovery from terminal embarrassment, a new sign goes up which reads, "BANKRUPTCY, NO OFFER TOO RIDICULOUS."

Fred milks this one for two months by pasting little notices over it from time to time reading, "EVERYTHING MUST GO." "PRICES SLASHED" and "LAST THREE DAYS."

In September, for some strange reason, Fred stages his "BACK TO SCHOOL FURNITURE SALE," followed in October by his "AFTER CHRISTMAS SALE" which he says gets a running start on his competition.

Every November, Fred tacks up his "WE HAD THE FIRE. YOU GET THE BARGAINS" sale. Despite the fact that his "fire" was an incinerator that got a little out of hand, his sign shows smoke rolling out of a building that equals The Towering Inferno.

Every December, Fred has his annual LIQUIDATION sale with a small illustration of a man sitting under an umbrella in Florida enjoying retirement. This is followed in February by his "I QUIT!" declaration which caught my attention for five years. (Fred later explained he quit smoking.)

That's why I was stunned to see his new sign this March preempting his usual "END OF MY LEASE" sale.

So, it has finally happened. The man who cried wolf so many times was finally closing. As I turned to drive on, I saw Fred unlock his door and go inside. He turned the "Out To Lunch" sign the other way and yelled, "I feel better now that I've eaten."

Somehow, it made sense to a woman who through the years had purchased 14 coffee tables, two dinettes, three sofas, a lamp of a Viking with a light switch in the navel and a hassock shaped like a mushroom . . . all on sale.

"Why did you win that third trick?" asked North.

"I guess it was for the same reason that people want to climb a mountain. The trick was there for the taking."

You can get killed climbing mountains. You can go broke taking the wrong trick.

The defense started with three rounds of diamonds. West stuck his rather useless nine of trumps on his partner's trick and South promptly overruffed with dummy's 10 spot. Then he went after trumps. The finesse worked nicely, but when it came down to trying to pick up the king, his majesty refused to fall South wound up losing a trump, two diamonds and a spade.

South should have seen that there was no way to avoid the spade loser, but that there was a proper time to lose it. South should simply have discarded one of dummy's spades, instead of wasting a trump honor on West's nine.

Then when South went after trumps, he would have been able to pick up East's king and eventually use dummy's fourth trump to ruff his last spade.

PISCES

FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 8, 1975

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) Excessive spending could prove disastrous now. Don't speculate or indulge in extravagant whims, and watch the budget even when making minor purchases.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) Others are observing, some following your example. Your best foot forward! Stress vital points, but no exaggerating or cutting corners too close!

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) You can take giant steps toward advancement now — if you have the ambition and know-how. Don't launch into uncharted seas, however.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) Careful exploration of offerings and soundly directed imagination needed now. Don't mix business and personal affairs.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23) An original idea could be developed, eventually turned to profit. Along these lines, it's a good period for pushing your luck.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) A first-rate period for inventiveness and bringing out dormant talents. Put your strength behind unusual projects, but only if they are truly worthwhile.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Ideas and plans for travel may be running into some difficulty — especially if you have planned too much activity or have been too optimistic about costs. There's still time to revise, however.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) Someone in authority will now take action to aid your cause — widening your horizons considerably. You have good reason for optimism.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Your judgment somewhat "cloudy" now. Take nothing for granted, even if all seems well. And, above all, make no hasty decisions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Focus ambitions on an attainable plateau. Don't strive for the unreasonable. If not well counseled, new ventures could pose a problem.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A DOMESTIC SITUATION MAY TAX YOUR INGENUITY BUT CAST ASIDE ANY DOUBTS OF YOUR ABILITY TO HANDLE. By midday, you'll have the answer you need.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) This could be a somewhat erratic day unlss you steer a steady course. Above, all, avoid discussions which could upset associates.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine mind, great versatility and lofty ambitions. In the latter connection, however, you must be careful of the goals on which you set your heart. There's quite a bit of the dreamer in you and you often want to express yourself along lines for which you are not truly qualified. Failure then brings you bitterness and disappointment from which you may not completely recover. It is important that you be realistic and train yourself along lines in which you are really talented. Then you cannot fail. Fields in which you could make your greatest success: literature, the law, philosophy, agriculture, education, any occupation connected with the sea. Boudoir Look Has Returned

Along with today's "nostalgia-mania" in fashion comes the boudoir look of the 1920s and '30s complete with maribou and ostrich trim.

And because of this return to the past, once again black and lace gowns and pegnoirs are big on the night scene. You'll feel as though you had just stepped out of an old movie.

KEEP SALAD CRISP

If you have to fix your green salad in advance of the meal don't put the dressing in until ready to serve.

Dr. Lester Coleman

My 4-year-old daughter gets sudden, severe spells of croup. The attacks frighten her and us. What causes croup? Can it be avoided?

Mrs. G.B., Mich.

Dear Mrs. B.:

Children, their parents and doctors, too, are all distressed by severe episodes of croup. Fortunately, with antibiotics and cortisone, the severity and frequency of attacks of croup are diminishing.

Croup is an inflammation and infection of the lining of the throat and the larynx, or "windpipe." The problem occurs most frequently in infants and young children who have a narrow windpipe. Attacks of croup tend to occur more frequently in the late winter or early spring.

Difficulty in breathing may follow an ordinary cold. High fever and a barking cough are characteristic of croup.

Viral and bacterial infections may cause a sudden thickening of the mucous membrane lining of the larynx. Associated with this is a thick, gelatinous substance which further interferes with breathing.

Attacks of croup tend to lessen as the child grows older and the breathing apparatus becomes larger.

Steam inhalations are probably the most soothing and effective treatment for the difficulty in breathing and the barking cough. Physicians frequently suggest, as an emergency measure, that the child be held in the mother's arms in a bathroom filled with steam. Later, antibiotics and cortisone preparations are used to control infection and to reduce the swelling in the throat and larynx.

It seems almost impossible to keep children completely free of colds, no matter how well isolated and protected they are. Yet these colds can be reduced when protective measures are observed. Exposure to other children and adults who have infections must be avoided. The practice of kissing children on the lips, or even close to the lips, should be eliminated.

Since your child is so susceptible, you might find that regular use of a cold or warm air vaporizer, safely placed in her bedroom, may be beneficial.

Attacks of croup can create panic. If one's doctor is not available, it is wise to bring the child to the emergency room of a hospital for immediate treatment.

"Why did you win that third trick?" asked North.

"I guess it was for the same reason that people want to climb a mountain. The trick was there for the taking."

The defense started with three rounds of diamonds. West stuck his rather useless nine of trumps on his partner's trick and South promptly overruffed with dummy's 10 spot. Then he went after trumps. The finesse worked nicely, but when it came down to trying to pick up the king, his majesty refused to fall South wound up losing a trump, two diamonds and a spade.

South should have seen that there was no way to avoid the spade loser, but that there was a proper time to lose it. South should simply have discarded one of dummy's spades, instead of wasting a trump honor on West's nine.

Then when South went after trumps, he would have been able to pick up East's king and eventually use dummy's fourth trump to ruff his last spade.

PISCES

FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 8, 1975

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) Excessive spending could prove disastrous now. Don't speculate or indulge in extravagant whims, and watch the budget even when making minor purchases.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) Others are observing, some following your example. Your best foot forward! Stress vital points, but no exaggerating or cutting corners too close!

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) You can take giant steps toward advancement now — if you have the ambition and know-how. Don't launch into uncharted seas, however.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) Careful exploration of offerings and soundly directed imagination needed now. Don't mix business and personal affairs.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23) An original idea could be developed, eventually turned to profit. Along these lines, it's a good period for pushing your luck.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) A first-rate period for inventiveness and bringing out dormant talents. Put your strength behind unusual projects, but only if they are truly worthwhile.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Ideas and plans for travel may be running into some difficulty — especially if you have planned too much activity or have been too optimistic about costs. There's still time to revise, however.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) Someone in authority will now take action to aid your cause — widening your horizons considerably. You have good reason for optimism.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Your judgment somewhat "cloudy" now. Take nothing for granted, even if all seems well. And, above all, make no hasty decisions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Focus ambitions on an attainable plateau. Don't strive for the unreasonable. If not well counseled, new ventures could pose a problem.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A DOMESTIC SITUATION MAY TAX YOUR INGENUITY BUT CAST ASIDE ANY DOUBTS OF YOUR ABILITY TO HANDLE. By midday, you'll have the answer you need.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) This could be a somewhat erratic day unlss you steer a steady course. Above, all, avoid discussions which could upset associates.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine mind, great versatility and lofty ambitions. In the latter connection, however, you must be careful of the goals on which you set your heart. There's quite a bit of the dreamer in you and you often want to express yourself along lines for which you are not truly qualified. Failure then brings you bitterness and disappointment from which you may not completely recover. It is important that you be realistic and train yourself along lines in which you are really talented. Then you cannot fail. Fields in which you could make your greatest success: literature, the law, philosophy, agriculture, education, any occupation connected with the sea. Boudoir Look Has Returned

Along with today's "nostalgia-mania" in fashion comes the boudoir look of the 1920s and '30s complete with maribou and ostrich trim.

And because of this return to the past, once again black and lace gowns and pegnoirs are big on the night scene. You'll feel as though you had just stepped out of an old movie.

KEEP SALAD CRISP

If you have to fix your green salad in advance of the meal don't put the dressing in until ready to serve.

Three Circles Plan Meetings

DECATUR — Circle 2 and Circle 3 of the Womens Association of the First United Presbyterian church will meet Tuesday, March 11, and Circle 1 will meet Wednesday, March 12.

Circle 2 will meet at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Thomas Elliott, Circle 3 at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Joseph Adduci and Circle 1 at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Elsie Jacobs.

All women of the church are invited.

Dr. Lester Coleman

My 4-year-old daughter gets sudden, severe spells of croup. The attacks frighten her and us. What causes croup? Can it be avoided?

Mrs. G.B., Mich.

Dear Mrs. B.:

Children, their parents and doctors, too, are all distressed by severe episodes of croup. Fortunately, with antibiotics and cortisone, the severity and frequency of attacks of croup are diminishing.

Croup is an inflammation and infection of the lining of the throat and the larynx, or "windpipe." The problem occurs most frequently in infants and young children who have a narrow windpipe. Attacks of croup tend to occur more frequently in the late winter or early spring.

Difficulty in breathing may follow an ordinary cold. High fever and a barking cough are characteristic of croup.

Viral and bacterial infections may cause a sudden thickening of the mucous membrane lining of the larynx. Associated with this is a thick, gelatinous substance which further interferes with breathing.

Attacks of croup tend to lessen as the child grows older and the breathing apparatus becomes larger.

Steam inhalations are probably the most soothing and effective treatment for the difficulty in breathing and the barking cough. Physicians frequently suggest, as an emergency measure, that the child be held in the mother's arms in a bathroom filled with steam. Later, antibiotics and cortisone preparations are used to control infection and to reduce the swelling in the throat and larynx.

It seems almost impossible to keep children completely free of colds, no matter how well isolated and protected they are. Yet these colds can be reduced when protective measures are observed. Exposure to other children and adults who have infections must be avoided. The practice of kissing children on the lips, or even close to the lips, should be eliminated.

Since your child is so susceptible, you might find that regular use of a cold or warm air vaporizer, safely placed in her bedroom, may be beneficial.

Attacks of croup can create panic. If one's doctor is not available, it is wise to bring the child to the emergency room of a hospital for immediate treatment.

Israelis Say Terror Raid Tied To Kissinger Mission

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli officials charged today that the Palestinian terrorist raid on a Tel Aviv hotel was an attempt to discredit Egypt and sabotage Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's peace mission.

The semi-official Israeli state radio reported that the mother ship that brought the eight guerrillas and their two rubber attack boats to a point off Tel Aviv came from the north, presumably meaning from Lebanon.

However, the only guerrilla who survived told interrogators that the terror squad set out from Egypt; one of the landing boats was marked "Egyptian Army Sea Seamen." "Kissinger's mission will fail" was painted on the other one.

"The attack was aimed as much against Egypt as it was against Israel," Defense Minister Shimon Peres said.

The Israeli navy captured the 150-ton mother ship and its eight-man crew off the coast early Thursday. But the military command said it would give out no information about the ship until questioning of the crew was completed.

The guerrilla command in Beirut said the raiders were members of Al Fatah, the largest Palestine guerrilla organization. It is headed by Yasir Arafat, the chief of the over-all Palestine Liberation Organization. The PLO has been close to an open break with Egypt's President Anwar Sadat because he would not hold out for an agreement in which Israel recognized the right of the Palestinians to take over the West Bank of the Jordan river and the Gaza Strip as a separate state.

Israelis enraged over the guerrilla raid were demanding their armed forces wreak vengeance on Palestinian bases in Lebanon. But there was speculation that the retaliatory raids would be delayed until after Kissinger's visit.

Oil Fouling Mississippi

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — Officials say oil fouling the Mississippi River after a barge accident has spread downstream as much as 100 miles and workers probably can't recover most of it. An estimated 1.5 million gallons of crude oil leaked from three barges which smashed into a pier of a highway bridge here Wednesday evening. Bill Williams, 51, of Greenville, died in the accident. The river's level is high now, as it is every spring, and the swift midstream current has broken up the slick and made the oil there impossible to recover, officials say. Cleanup work was being concentrated on placid areas near the riverbanks.

Kissinger Heads Into New Talks

LONDON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger headed into his 11th Middle East peace mission today amid speculation whether the Palestine guerrilla raid in Tel Aviv diminished his chances of success.

Kissinger was due in Egypt tonight after a stop en route in Brussels to meet with Greek Foreign Minister Dimitrios Bitsios. The semiofficial Cairo paper Al Ahram said President Anwar Sadat would tell his visitor the terrorist attack Wednesday night proved the necessity of "defusing all reasons for explosion in the area."

However, Al Ahram said Sadat told it he was "optimistic" that Kissinger would arrange an agreement for another Israeli troop withdrawal in the Sinai Desert to be followed by a similar accord for the Syrian front.

The Egyptian president also sought to reassure the Palestinians that he was not selling them out.

Senate OKs Nine Tax Bills

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Legislature has given final approval to nine bills making it less profitable to avoid state taxes.

The purpose of the legislation, which passed the Senate ovewhelmingly Thursday, is to collect some $150 million owed the state and to prevent a comparable buildup of debts in the future.

The bills increase interest rates and penalties for late payment of taxes and failure to provide the state with required reports.

The Senate also passed bills regulating trade in gold, silver and precious coins, and permitting credit unions to increase their interest rates.

The state probably won't collect more than about $25 million under the tax bills, since most of the money has been outstanding for a long time. But it is hoped such penalties will discourage others from nonpayment.

Experts said many debtors invest the money, knowing the state penalty is not as high as the interest they'll earn.

The bills increase to three-quarters of a per cent — or nine per cent a year — the interest penalty on late taxes. The Senate, which originally provided for a one - per - cent - a - month penalty, accepted the lower rate as passed by the House.

In addition, reports required by the state would attract a higher penalty than at present if they were not received on time.

Sen. Donald Bishop, R-Rochester, said the bill regulating precious metal and coins is aimed at several potential abuses including firms unable to cover their deals, misleading advertising and promotion, and large markups which require large swings in the market if the buyer is to recover his purchase price.

Minor deals, in which delivery comes within 10 days of purchase, are exempted, Bishop said. The bill passed 32-0.

The credit union bill passed 20-12, and went to the House. The bill raises allowable interest rates to climb from one per cent to 1¼ per cent, or from 12 to 15 per cent a year.

Sen. John Bowman, D-Roseville, sponsor of the bill, said many smaller credit unions needed the raise to obtain enough money to pay loans.

PROSECUTION RESTS

DETROIT (AP) — The prosecution rested its case Thursday in the trial of Rudolph Acosta, accused of second-degree murder in the death of Edith Perchman, 12, who was killed as she delivered newspapers on her morning route last August.

The move is the latest in a series of price reductions through equipment removal by the automakers to stimulate car sales in the post-rebate period. Widespread cash rebates of up to $600 expired at the end of February.

General Motors' lowest-priced standard car, the Chevrolet Bel Air sedan, lists for $4,358. Chrysler's lowest-priced car, the Plymouth Gran Fury sedan, carries a base price of $4,565.

Ford's lowest-priced full-size model had been the Ford LTD hardtop at $4,712.

UAW Eyes Battery Factories

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union has begun an investigation into what it calls hazardous conditions in lead storage battery plants.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock said Thursday the union is conducting a national survey of lead battery plants where UAW members work with the aim of improving job safety conditions.

Woodcock did not release a list of plants involved, but said some 7,000 of the union's 1.4 million members are employed in such facilities.

A union spokesman said the survey would look at plants owned by the major auto makers and independent firms.

He called lead battery plants "one of the most hazardous industrial environments in which our members work," adding that lead exposure threatens the health of an estimated 1.6 million industrial workers nationwide.

He said exposure to lead, a highly toxic substance, can produce severe gastrointestinal, blood and central nervous system disorders.

The union president said previous studies indicated lead exposure continues to be a major hazard for workers.

He said the survey will be conducted by UAW health and safety officials, with the results used to develop new hazard prevention and control programs.

On another matter, Woodcock called for passage of proposed federal legislation under which the government would pay health insurance premiums for laid off workers.

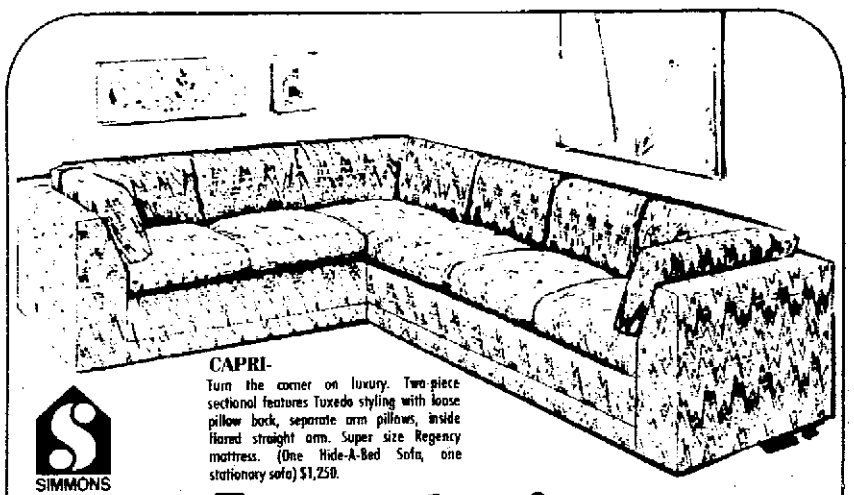

In testimony before the Senate Finance Committee in Washington, Woodcock said 60 per cent of unemployed workers lose their health care coverage within a month after they are laid off.

He said jobless workers forced to pay their own premiums might have to divert up to 25 per cent of their unemployment compensation to cover their health insurance benefits.

Lawmakers Back Milliken Cuts

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state legislature has approved Gov. William Milliken's proposal to slice $31.5 million off the state deficit.

Meanwhile, legislative leaders told the governor they would try to begin action next week on his proposal to increase the income tax by seven-tenths of a per cent. Lawmakers indicated Milliken has won his battle to keep the increase to that level for the present.

The prompt action Thursday on Milliken's executive order in the House and Senate appropriations committees implies the legislature also will buy his proposed bookkeeping alteration to take care of the rest of the $180 million shortfall.

Only committee approval was needed for Milliken's order to cut the current budget by reducing expenditures by at least $15 million and reducing appropriations to several retirement systems by $16.5 million.

Legislation is needed for the bookkeeping trick, which involves crediting $190 million in taxes collected in July to the current fiscal year ending June 30.

Altogether, the order and the bookkeeping alteration provide the state with about $222 million. Some lawmakers indicated they favored the executive order for political reasons only.

Sen. Billy Huffman, D-Madison Heights, said during the committee meeting the governor originally proposed only the bookkeeping switch to wipe out the deficit. Legislative leaders urged the cutback order to make it clear the state had a budget problem, he said.

Otherwise, lawmakers indicated, it might be tough to sell an income tax increase and restrict state spending in the next budget.

They'll say, 'You took care of it with a bookkeeping trick last time, do it this time, too,' said one leader describing possible reaction by his colleagues and the public.

"We have to show we're able to cut the budget," another said. Also, the "cutback" really is an order to the state departments to "lapse — or not spend — at least $15 million this fiscal year.

Some lawmakers claimed the action was meaningless because the state has lapsed at least $18 million each of the past four years without being ordered to do so.

Meanwhile, leading lawmakers said each party would caucus soon to seek votes for Milliken's income tax increase. Some lawmakers feel getting votes for any tax increase will be difficult.

Milliken apparently has won, for now, his battle to keep the level at seven-tenths of a per cent. With legislative leaders won over by his budget staff's projections, those who called the hike inadequate apparently aren't about to shoulder the unpopular task of raising it higher.

"There won't be broad support... for increasing the tax," said House Speaker Bobby Crim. "The outer limit is seven-tenths."

Crim said he believes the legislature can enact the tax increase by Milliken's April 1 deadline with it taking effect a month later.

'Duty To Defend' Clause

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Students would be taught how to peacefully resolve conflicts and learn about their duty to defend their country under a resolution passed Thursday in the state House. The House approved the resolution, directed towards the state Board of Education, 66-34. The measure originally was passed in the Senate but dealt only with the resolution of conflicts. The "duty to defend one's country" clause was added in the House by Rep. Donald Van Singel, R-Grant and approved 76-25.

Environmentalists Blast EPA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven environment groups say the Environmental Protection Agency has chosen the wrong solution to automobile pollution problems because of a "special relationship.. between the oil industry and the Ford administration."

The groups offered no direct evidence of such a "special relationship."

They said Thursday that EPA administrator Russell E. Train should have solved a potential health problem of sulfate emissions from automobiles by requiring removal of sulfur from gasoline, not by slowing down efforts to reduce other forms of pollution.

"By refusing to blend and desulfurize gasoline, the Environmental Protection Agency admits the special relationship that exist between the oil industry and the Ford Administration" the group said in a joint statement.

"It is all right to raise gasoline prices 20 cents per gallon and create windfall profits," they said, referring to President Ford's proposals to increase petroleum prices. "But it is not all right to raise gasoline prices a mere penny or two per gallon to protect public health."

The statement was issued by the Public Interest Research Group; Natural Resources Defense Council; American Public Health Association; Sierra Club; Friends of the Earth; Environmental Policy Center, and the National Clean Air Coalition.

Train, in testimony Thursday before the Senate Budget Committee, said the agency has concluded that blending gasoline supplies is not the answer to the sulfuric acid-mist problem.

Cars with catalytic converters are emitting 25 times the acid mist present in the exhaust of cars without the converters, Train said.

Doctors have not yet determined the level of acid mist that humans can tolerate, he added. Train said the EPA cannot afford to "play Russian roulette" with human lives.

Train announced Wednesday his decision to postpone for one year the strict auto emission standard previously scheduled to take effect in 1977.

He said that to meet the standards as previously scheduled, auto makers would have to use the antipollution devices called catalytic converters and increase their action with extra injections of air.

Train said he chose to delay the scheduled auto emission limits in order to slow down the adoption of catalytic converters and forestall the sulfuric acid problem until sulfuric acid standards can be set, to begin in 1979.

But the seven environment groups said Train missed a better chance to solve the problem by insisting that the original antipollution timetable be met while reducing the sulfuric acid problem through removal of sulfur from gasoline.

Blues Rate Hike Gets Little Support

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan Blue Cross and Blue Shield got virtually no support Thurday at a public hearing held to gather responses to a planned rate increase.

Those opposing the request included members of the community, labor organizations, business and the medical profession.

The Blues say their proposed increase will amount to 23.9 per cent over current rates, or a boost of $296 million. The state, citing a difference in figuring processes, says the increase would amount to 33 per cent, or $305 million.

Among those testifying was Bard Young of the United Auto Workers, who said the rates are "clearly out of control." An increase in rates could bankrupt some companies which pay health insurance for their employes, he said.

Lawmakers Back Milliken Cuts

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state legislature has approved Gov. William Milliken's proposal to slice $31.5 million off the state deficit.

Meanwhile, legislative leaders told the governor they would try to begin action next week on his proposal to increase the income tax by seven-tenths of a per cent. Lawmakers indicated Milliken has won his battle to keep the increase to that level for the present.

The prompt action Thursday on Milliken's executive order in the House and Senate appropriations committees implies the legislature also will buy his proposed bookkeeping alteration to take care of the rest of the $180 million shortfall.

Only committee approval was needed for Milliken's order to cut the current budget by reducing expenditures by at least $15 million and reducing appropriations to several retirement systems by $16.5 million.

Legislation is needed for the bookkeeping trick, which involves crediting $190 million in taxes collected in July to the current fiscal year ending June 30.

Altogether, the order and the bookkeeping alteration provide the state with about $222 million. Some lawmakers indicated they favored the executive order for political reasons only.

Sen. Billy Huffman, D-Madison Heights, said during the committee meeting the governor originally proposed only the bookkeeping switch to wipe out the deficit. Legislative leaders urged the cutback order to make it clear the state had a budget problem, he said.

Otherwise, lawmakers indicated, it might be tough to sell an income tax increase and restrict state spending in the next budget.

They'll say, 'You took care of it with a bookkeeping trick last time, do it this time, too,' said one leader describing possible reaction by his colleagues and the public.

"We have to show we're able to cut the budget," another said. Also, the "cutback" really is an order to the state departments to "lapse — or not spend — at least $15 million this fiscal year.

Some lawmakers claimed the action was meaningless because the state has lapsed at least $18 million each of the past four years without being ordered to do so.

Meanwhile, leading lawmakers said each party would caucus soon to seek votes for Milliken's income tax increase. Some lawmakers feel getting votes for any tax increase will be difficult.

Milliken apparently has won, for now, his battle to keep the level at seven-tenths of a per cent. With legislative leaders won over by his budget staff's projections, those who called the hike inadequate apparently aren't about to shoulder the unpopular task of raising it higher.

"There won't be broad support... for increasing the tax," said House Speaker Bobby Crim. "The outer limit is seven-tenths."

Crim said he believes the legislature can enact the tax increase by Milliken's April 1 deadline with it taking effect a month later.

'Duty To Defend' Clause

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Students would be taught how to peacefully resolve conflicts and learn about their duty to defend their country under a resolution passed Thursday in the state House. The House approved the resolution, directed towards the state Board of Education, 66-34. The measure originally was passed in the Senate but dealt only with the resolution of conflicts. The "duty to defend one's country" clause was added in the House by Rep. Donald Van Singel, R-Grant and approved 76-25.

Environmentalists Blast EPA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven environment groups say the Environmental Protection Agency has chosen the wrong solution to automobile pollution problems because of a "special relationship.. between the oil industry and the Ford administration."

The groups offered no direct evidence of such a "special relationship."

They said Thursday that EPA administrator Russell E. Train should have solved a potential health problem of sulfate emissions from automobiles by requiring removal of sulfur from gasoline, not by slowing down efforts to reduce other forms of pollution.

"By refusing to blend and desulfurize gasoline, the Environmental Protection Agency admits the special relationship that exist between the oil industry and the Ford Administration" the group said in a joint statement.

"It is all right to raise gasoline prices 20 cents per gallon and create windfall profits," they said, referring to President Ford's proposals to increase petroleum prices. "But it is not all right to raise gasoline prices a mere penny or two per gallon to protect public health."

The statement was issued by the Public Interest Research Group; Natural Resources Defense Council; American Public Health Association; Sierra Club; Friends of the Earth; Environmental Policy Center, and the National Clean Air Coalition.

Train, in testimony Thursday before the Senate Budget Committee, said the agency has concluded that blending gasoline supplies is not the answer to the sulfuric acid-mist problem.

Cars with catalytic converters are emitting 25 times the acid mist present in the exhaust of cars without the converters, Train said.

Doctors have not yet determined the level of acid mist that humans can tolerate, he added. Train said the EPA cannot afford to "play Russian roulette" with human lives.

Train announced Wednesday his decision to postpone for one year the strict auto emission standard previously scheduled to take effect in 1977.

He said that to meet the standards as previously scheduled, auto makers would have to use the antipollution devices called catalytic converters and increase their action with extra injections of air.

Train said he chose to delay the scheduled auto emission limits in order to slow down the adoption of catalytic converters and forestall the sulfuric acid problem until sulfuric acid standards can be set, to begin in 1979.

But the seven environment groups said Train missed a better chance to solve the problem by insisting that the original antipollution timetable be met while reducing the sulfuric acid problem through removal of sulfur from gasoline.

Reappointed

Blues Rate Hike Gets Little Support

Those opposing the request included members of the community, labor organizations, business and the medical profession.

The Blues say their proposed increase will amount to 23.9 per cent over current rates, or a boost of $296 million. The state, citing a difference in figuring processes, says the increase would amount to 33 per cent, or $305 million.

Among those testifying was Bard Young of the United Auto Workers, who said the rates are "clearly out of control." An increase in rates could bankrupt some companies which pay health insurance for their employes, he said.

SJ Planners Back River Route

St. Joseph city planning commission announced yesterday it's long-standing endorsement of the river route for the I-94 penetrator is still in effect.

The position was reaffirmed at Thursday's regular meeting of the commission by Chairman James Heathcote.

Heathcote made the statement in response to a request from a firm retained by the State Highway department to study various penetrator alternatives.

Heathcote declined to call a special meeting on the subject and said Enviro-Pact Division of USC, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa., could consult planning commission minutes for details on the position.

Enviro-Pact is studying four possible routes for the I-94 business route into St. Joseph, none of which involve the River route.

The state appears to have settled on a route running from between Lincoln and Washington avenues to Niles avenue at Hilltop road in St. Joseph township. Business loop traffic would then use Niles avenue to downtown St. Joseph.

The River route would follow the old Michigan Central railroad bed into St. Joseph along the west bank of the St. Joseph river.

Planner Neil Berndt yesterday listed goals St. Joseph hoped to achieve with a well-planned business loop. He said the city wanted greater access to Edgewater and the downtown business section and remove heavy traffic from residential areas.

The River route would achieve these goals, he noted.

Planners yesterday approved a request by William Gerencser to pave a parking lot in back of Lake lodge, 1820 Lake Shore drive. Gerencser said he wants to buy Lake Lodge if the parking is improved. He owned the Anchor Inn, Industrial avenue, before it was razed to make way for bridge construction.

Stevensville Cast-Matic Employment Might Zoom

Fred Schultz, new owner of Cast-Matic corporation, Yasdick drive, Stevensville, told the Stevensville village council last night he hopes to triple the corporation's employment in the near future.

The former president of the now-defunct Benton Harbor Malleable Industries, Schultz said Cast-Matic has retained about 60 per cent of Malleable's customers, thus enabling him to boost employment.

There are presently 40 employes, he stated. There were 20 when he made the purchase from former owner William McMartin on Feb. 21.

Schultz also told the council he plans a 100 by 160-foot addition to the present buildings.

In other business, the council continued its discussion on a cable television franchise in the village. Councilman Lloyd Mallett reported the Omega cable television company plans to establish an office in Stevensville and the village will receive 3 per cent of the gross profit.

He said village and Lincoln township customers must pay an initial fee of $30 for the converter in addition to the monthly charge of $5.95. The service is not required and customers may disconnect any time.

The council decided to contact actual customers served by the company in the Coloma - Watervliet area before granting the company permission to place its franchise proposal on an election ballot.

Kevin Green, department of public works employe, told the council it would cost approximately $1,000 to build a 16 by 16-foot loading dock at the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad spur in the village.

A $10 charge for each time it is used was discussed. The matter was tabled for further study.

Ex-Berrien Mink Oil King Apprehended In Florida

Feta Kadriu, an escapee from a California prison and former mink oil promoter in Berrien county, has been apprehended in Tampa, Fla.

Andrew Novkikoff, chief investigator for the Berrien prosecutor's office, said he was informed of the apprehension of Kadriu by Irwin W. Fisk, special investigator for the California Department of Corporations.

According to Fisk, Kadriu was picked up in Tampa the last week in February. He escaped Nov. 8 from a California prison where he had been sentenced for grand theft.

California won't recover him immediately, Fisk said Kadriu was being extradited to Philadelphia for an alleged fraud committed there after he escaped.

The Berrien prosecutor's office holds a warrant charging Kadriu with writing an insufficient funds check here in 1970. Kadriu's business here was processing mink oil for cosmetics.

Second Man Held In Walker Death

A second man has been arrested and held on an open murder charge in connection with the shotgun slaying of Audrey Walker (also known as Bridgewater), whose body was found in a Sodus township ditch last month.

Booked at the county jail on the charge was Lorenzo Cross, 25, of 1905 Union street, Benton township.

Cross turned himself in late yesterday afternoon at the Benton Harbor state police post, and was accompanied by his counsel, Atty. Stephen Small. Earlier yesterday, District Judge Leo Cook had signed a warrant charging Cross with murder.

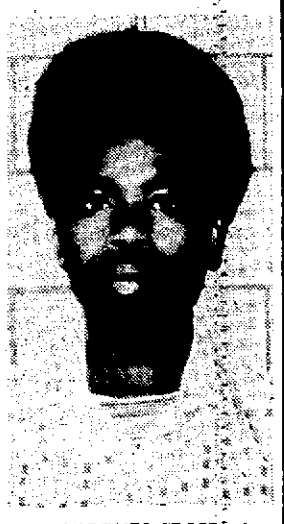

On Wednesday, another defendant in the case, Terry Y. Langford, 23, of 384 Brunson avenue, Benton Harbor, was bound over to circuit court on a murder charge in connection with the death of Mrs. Walker. He, too, is being held at the county jail without bond. He was bound over to circuit court by Judge Cook.

During Langford's preliminary examination, Cross took the witness stand, and under questioning by Chief Assistant Prosecutor Robert McDowell testified that someone had called him after Mrs. Walker was slain.

He said the caller identified himself as Terry Langford, and testified the caller said Langford killed Mrs. Walker. He also said that he knew Langford for a period of time, and could not recognize the voice on the phone.

But during another portion of the testimony, Cross said "they" were trying to frame "Langford and me."

Berrien Prosecutor John A. Smietanka lauded Det. Sgt. Ronald Schoonmaker, state police district detective from Paw Paw, who spearheaded the investigation which led to the arrests of Langford and Cross. Smietanka also praised police agencies assisting in the investigation, including the state police and sheriff's department.

Conservative Blasts Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's statement that the Republican party has to be broad-based "is a bunch of hokum," says conservative Sen. Jesse A. Helms, R-N.C.

"I think we've got to give the people a choice," Helms said in an interview following Ford's news conference Thursday night. "If we have two broad-based liberal parties then we're not giving them a choice."

Conservative Blasts Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's statement that the Republican party has to be broad-based "is a bunch of hokum," says conservative Sen. Jesse A. Helms, R-N.C.

"I think we've got to give the people a choice," Helms said in an interview following Ford's news conference Thursday night. "If we have two broad-based liberal parties then we're not giving them a choice."

BERRIEN SPRINGS

Four Assured Of Wins Monday

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Four Republican incumbents seeking re-election to the Berrien Springs village council, are virtually assured of of winning because they face no formal opposition in the general election here Monday.

Three incumbents, Dale Moon, Jack Davis, and August Lange, are seeking two-year terms. Incumbent Larry French is seeking a one-year term.

French is seeking the seat he was appointed to last September. He is 34 and works at Clark Equipment company in Dowagiac. He and his wife, Paula, have two children. They live at 612 Rose Hill road.

Lange, 57, is a widower with two sons who lives at 424 South Cass street. Lange retired last year after teaching 29 years in the Berrien Springs school system. He has been on the council two years.

Moon, 54, is a credit manager for McDonald's Dairy compay. He and his wife, Eleanor, have two children and live at 445 South Cass street. He has been on the council seven years.

Davis, 35, of 327 Pam drive, has been on the council four years. He owns Davis Variety store on Ferry street. He and his wife, Patricia, have two children.

Polling place will be the Berrien Springs fire station, and polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

There are no special issues on the Berrien Springs ballot.

New Buffalo Pair Is Unopposed

NEW BUFFALO — Two candidates will be unopposed for a pair of three-year terms on the New Buffalo city council in the city's the non-partisan general election, Monday, March 10.

Mrs. Carol (Ronald) Bond, 33, 402 West Clay street, is an incumbent seeking her first full term on the council.

She was appointed in February, 1973, to fill the unexpired term of Lucian Darin who moved from the city.

She is a housewife and has two children.

Elmer Kerns, 51, 426 South Mayhew street, is seeking his first political office. He is a cement mason, is married and has two children.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. at city hall.

DEFENDING the Senate bill rescinding President Ford's tax on imported oil, Sen. Russell Long (D-La.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said Congress hopes to unveil an alternative oil-conservation program before the 90-day postponement of Ford's proposed tax expires.

Lawton Voting Lacks 'Formal' Opposition

LAWTON — Republican incumbents or Lawton village offices at stake in Monday's village election face no formal Democratic opposition.

Two Democrats who received one and two write-in votes, respectively, in the Feb. 17 primary election for the council openings will not appear on the general election ballot, according to Barbara Weurding, village clerk.

State laws requires that a candidate must receive a least 10 votes or 15 per cent of the total ballots cast before his name can be placed on the general ballot, the Van Buren county clerk's office said.

Unopposed for village president is James (Hall) Moon, 53, of 322 South Hamilton. He assumed the post following the resignation of former President Clifford Bohannon last fall. He is seeking election to fill Bohannon's unexpired term which ends next year.

Seeking re-election to the council are William C. Kimble, 45, of 203 South Railroad street; Burl Unrath, 77, of 204 Third street; and Clifford L. Atwater, 64, of 307 Franklin street. All three openings are for two years each.

Incumbents seeking re-election to the library board are Ann E. Coombs, 42, of 103 West street, and Dorothy Fuhrman, 75, of 510 Washington street. Both terms are for three years.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Auto Plants Reopening

DETROIT (AP) — For the first time in four months, General Motors will operate all 23 of its U.S. assembly plants next week, the auto giant said Thursday. Meanwhile, Chrysler Corp. said Thursday it has recalled 1,800 hourly workers from indefinite layoff and will operate all its U.S. assembly plants again next week.

U.S. auto production this week rose 4 per cent above last week's total. Even so, output for the week was down 30 per cent from depressed levels of a year ago when the industry was cutting back production sharply due to fuel shortages, thus creating an auto sales slump.

Reader From South Haven Says Newspaper Reprint, Not Original

A newspaper account of George Washington's funeral, found by Charles Knipschild, 621 West Napier avenue, Fairplain, was not an original but a reprint of the newspaper, according to a South Haven woman.

A story and photograph of Knipschild and his newspaper, the Ulster County Gazette, appeared in The Herald-Palladium Feb. 10.

Mrs. John C. Jensen, 559 Monroe, South Haven said she has published evidence that only two of the newspapers, dated Jan. 4, 1800, are known to exist. They are at the Library of Congress in Washinton D.C. and the American Antiquarian Society in Worchester, Mass.

Thousands of reprints of the 1800 newspaper were made for the 1846 centennial celebration of Kingston, New York, the birthplace of the newspaper, Mrs. Jensen said. Mrs. Jensen also owns a reprint of the newspaper found at her family's homestead in Connecticut which was built in 1784.

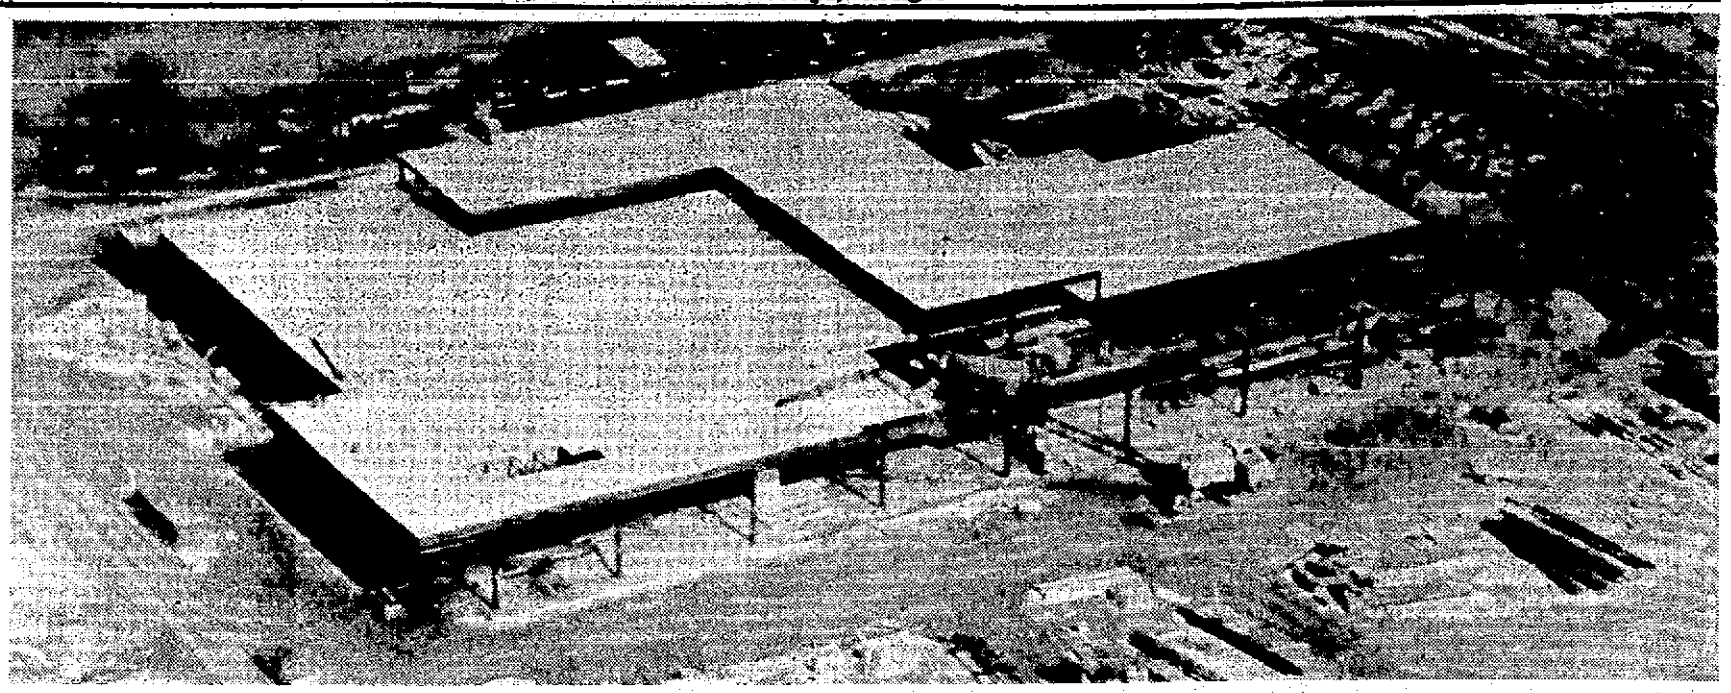

Both Knipschild and Mrs. Jensen's reprint of the newspaper are believed to be reprints from the 1846 centennial.

Knipschild found the reprint of the newspaper in an old family bible passed down as an heirloom. Knipschild said that it was "too bad" the newspaper was not an original but said the newspaper was still valuable to him as the 1846 reprint of the newspaper is in "beautiful condition."

Knipschild said he has had the reprint preserved in plastic and plans to temporarily loan the newspaper to the library for display.

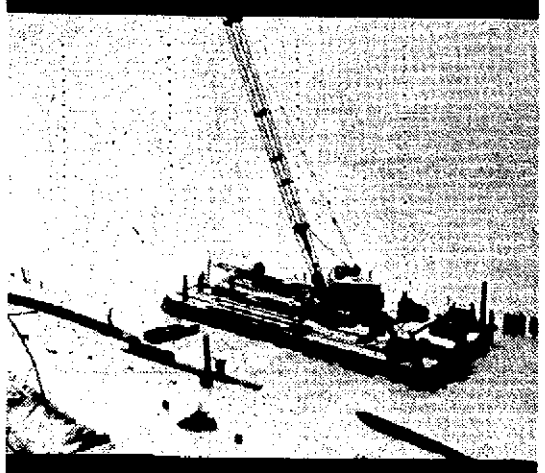

Although Knipschild's reprint showed the style of type with the "s" similar to today's "f," characteristic of newspaper type of 1800, a careful examination did not reveal the fluer-de-lis watermark present on the originals.

A book, "Know Your Antiques," by Ralph and Terry Kovel was cited by Mrs. Jensen as authority that only two of the 1800 newspapers are known to exist.

BERRIEN SPRINGS

Four Assured Of Wins Monday

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Four Republican incumbents seeking re-election to the Berrien Springs village council, are virtually assured of of winning because they face no formal opposition in the general election here Monday.

Three incumbents, Dale Moon, Jack Davis, and August Lange, are seeking two-year terms. Incumbent Larry French is seeking a one-year term.

French is seeking the seat he was appointed to last September. He is 34 and works at Clark Equipment company in Dowagiac. He and his wife, Paula, have two children. They live at 612 Rose Hill road.

Lange, 57, is a widower with two sons who lives at 424 South Cass street. Lange retired last year after teaching 29 years in the Berrien Springs school system. He has been on the council two years.

Moon, 54, is a credit manager for McDonald's Dairy compay. He and his wife, Eleanor, have two children and live at 445 South Cass street. He has been on the council seven years.

Davis, 35, of 327 Pam drive, has been on the council four years. He owns Davis Variety store on Ferry street. He and his wife, Patricia, have two children.

Polling place will be the Berrien Springs fire station, and polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

There are no special issues on the Berrien Springs ballot.

New Buffalo Pair Is Unopposed

NEW BUFFALO — Two candidates will be unopposed for a pair of three-year terms on the New Buffalo city council in the city's the non-partisan general election, Monday, March 10.

Mrs. Carol (Ronald) Bond, 33, 402 West Clay street, is an incumbent seeking her first full term on the council.

She was appointed in February, 1973, to fill the unexpired term of Lucian Darin who moved from the city.

She is a housewife and has two children.

Elmer Kerns, 51, 426 South Mayhew street, is seeking his first political office. He is a cement mason, is married and has two children.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. at city hall.

DEFENDING the Senate bill rescinding President Ford's tax on imported oil, Sen. Russell Long (D-La.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said Congress hopes to unveil an alternative oil-conservation program before the 90-day postponement of Ford's proposed tax expires.

Lawton Voting Lacks 'Formal' Opposition

Two Democrats who received one and two write-in votes, respectively, in the Feb. 17 primary election for the council openings will not appear on the general election ballot, according to Barbara Weurding, village clerk.

State laws requires that a candidate must receive a least 10 votes or 15 per cent of the total ballots cast before his name can be placed on the general ballot, the Van Buren county clerk's office said.

Unopposed for village president is James (Hall) Moon, 53, of 322 South Hamilton. He assumed the post following the resignation of former President Clifford Bohannon last fall. He is seeking election to fill Bohannon's unexpired term which ends next year.

Seeking re-election to the council are William C. Kimble, 45, of 203 South Railroad street; Burl Unrath, 77, of 204 Third street; and Clifford L. Atwater, 64, of 307 Franklin street. All three openings are for two years each.

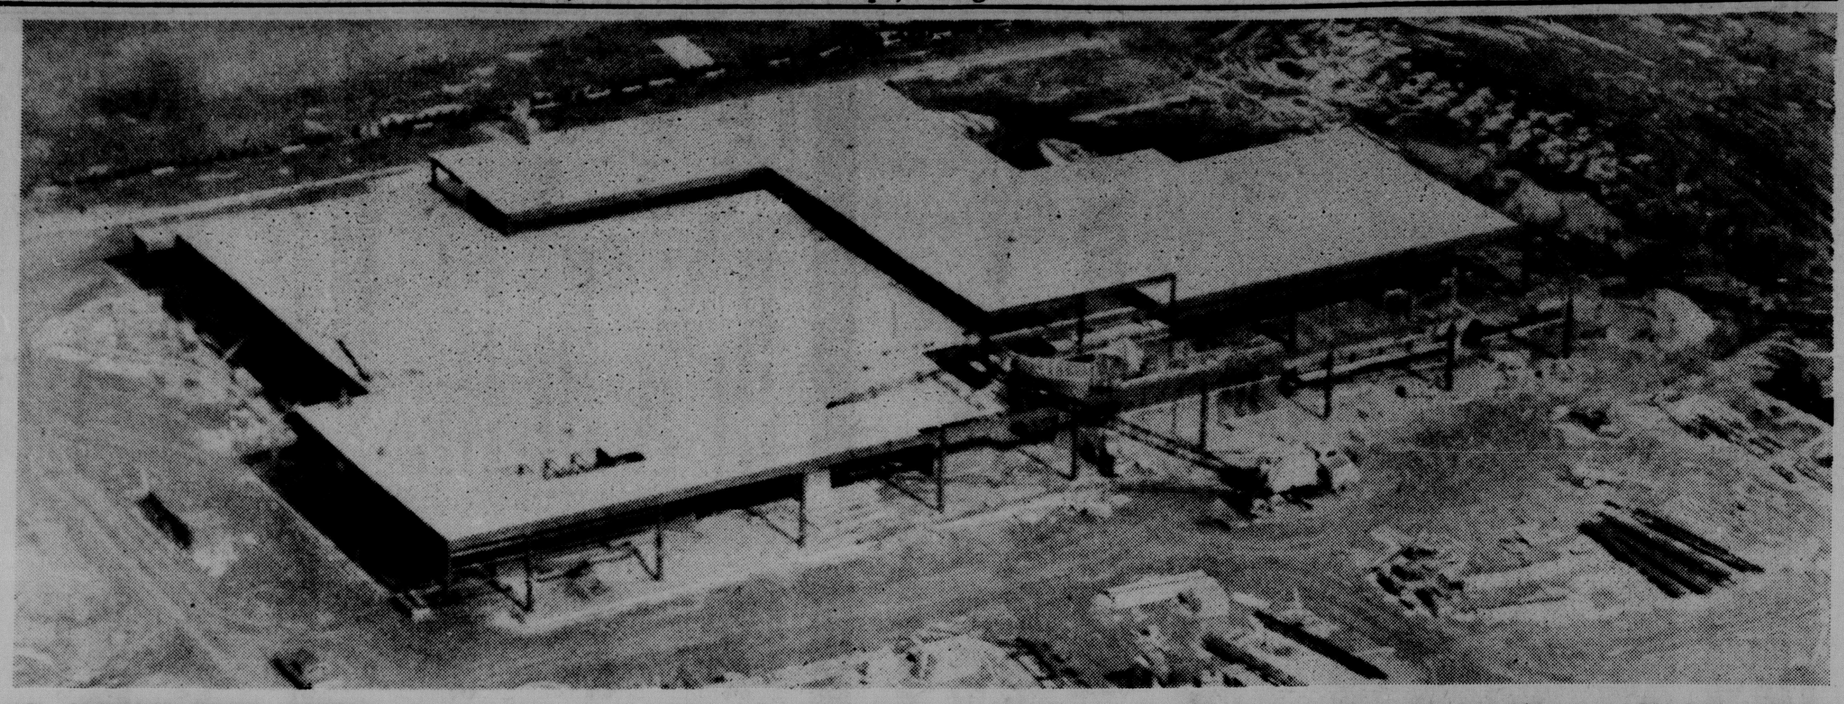

Incumbents seeking re-election to the library board are Ann E. Coombs, 42, of 103 West street, and Dorothy Fuhrman, 75, of 510 Washington street. Both terms are for three years.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Auto Plants Reopening

DETROIT (AP) — For the first time in four months, General Motors will operate all 23 of its U.S. assembly plants next week, the auto giant said Thursday. Meanwhile, Chrysler Corp. said Thursday it has recalled 1,800 hourly workers from indefinite layoff and will operate all its U.S. assembly plants again next week.

U.S. auto production this week rose 4 per cent above last week's total. Even so, output for the week was down 30 per cent from depressed levels of a year ago when the industry was cutting back production sharply due to fuel shortages, thus creating an auto sales slump.

AU SUPERMARKET RISING: Construction of Andrews university's $1 million supermarket, across US-31 from county fairgrounds, Berrien Springs, continues. Reader From South Haven Says Newspaper Reprint, Not Original

A newspaper account of George Washington's funeral, found by Charles Knipschild, 621 West Napier avenue, Fairplain, was not an original but a reprint of the newspaper, according to a South Haven woman.

A story and photograph of Knipschild and his newspaper, the Ulster County Gazette, appeared in The Herald-Palladium Feb. 10.

Mrs. John C. Jensen, 559 Monroe, South Haven said she has published evidence that only two of the newspapers, dated Jan. 4, 1800, are known to exist. They are at the Library of Congress in Washinton D.C. and the American Antiquarian Society in Worchester, Mass.

Thousands of reprints of the 1800 newspaper were made for the 1846 centennial celebration of Kingston, New York, the birthplace of the newspaper, Mrs. Jensen said. Mrs. Jensen also owns a reprint of the newspaper found at her family's homestead in Connecticut which was built in 1784.

Both Knipschild and Mrs. Jensen's reprint of the newspaper are believed to be reprints from the 1846 centennial.

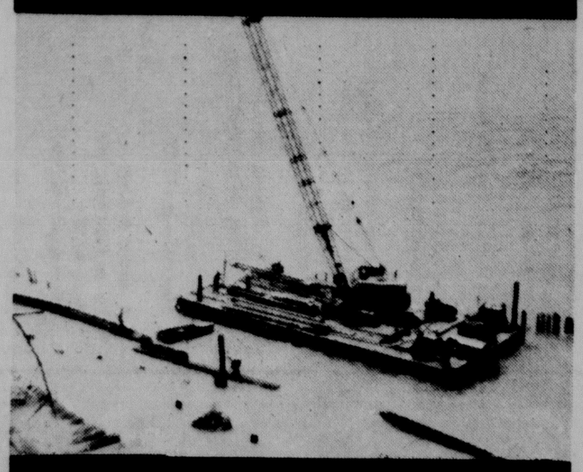

Knipschild found the reprint of the newspaper in an old family bible passed down as an heirloom. Knipschild said that it was "too bad" the newspaper was not an original but said the newspaper was still valuable to him as the 1846 reprint of the newspaper is in "beautiful condition."

Knipschild said he has had the reprint preserved in plastic and plans to temporarily loan the newspaper to the library for display.

Although Knipschild's reprint showed the style of type with the "s" similar to today's "f," characteristic of newspaper type of 1800, a careful examination did not reveal the fluer-de-lis watermark present on the originals.

A book, "Know Your Antiques," by Ralph and Terry Kovel was cited by Mrs. Jensen as authority that only two of the 1800 newspapers are known to exist.

Ford Tones Down Amount Of Aid

although "I have doubts that it will."

—Whatever the climb in the jobless rate, "a greater tax reduction," not an increase in federal spending, would be the preferred remedy.

—Whatever the size of the tax cut, middle-income Americans should get greater relief to spur consumer spending, Ford added. The big problem "is not the size of the tax cut, but the slowness with which Congress is acting on it," he said.

—Congress is making alarming moves toward increasing the already burdensome $52 billion federal deficit he has proposed. "That figure is too much, and anything above that is very, very bad," he said.

—"Nelson Rockefeller is doing a very fine job as vice president." The Republican party has "an excellent chance to prevail in 1976" but the party "has to be a broad-based, wide-spectrum party if it's going to be a viable force," Ford said.

While he spoke optimistically about such matters, it was Cambodia that was on his mind and the minds of the reporters. In fact, it wasn't until the news conference reached its 21st minute that questions turned to the economy.

Ford opened with a prepared statement outlining his argument for more Cambodian aid and said "there is no hope of success unless the Congress acts quickly to provide the necessary means for Cambodia to survive."

Congressional reaction to the increasing administration pressure on Cambodia, climaxed by Ford's news conference, was mixed.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, DMinn., said before the news conference that he told Ford on Thursday that prospects for any aid were "quite dim."

Senate Democratic leader Mansfield of Montana told a newsmen, "I didn't even hear" Ford's news conference, but his view remains that "any future military aid will simply prolong the killing."

The flexibility in the House resulted more from reports by some members of a task force of eight lawmakers who recently returned from Indochina rather than from the lobbying of the administration.

Ford spoke glowingly of the fact-finding legislators and stated that "their impact will be significant in the Congress as well as in the country."

Since many of those who made the Indochina trip have recommended some type of compromise, Ford's praise was seen as another sign of his willingness to bend on the money issue.

Rep. John J. McFall of California, the Democratic whip, said after the Ford news conference that the odds are better for some aid because of the fact-finding trip.

Another powerful Democrat, Rep. George Mahon of Texas, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the recommendations of some of the fact-finding team have "softened some resistance to the request."

However, Mahon added, "I don't think Congress will approve the full amount, but some compromise can be worked out."

If the path has been smoothed for some Cambodian aid, the President seems to have failed to push Congress to quicker action.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee isn't scheduled to start putting the measure into final legislative form until next week when the House Foreign Affairs Committee also was to consider the matter.

McFall said he doubted Congress will complete action on the money much before its Easter recess, which starts March 26. This is well after the two weeks that Ford marked as the outside limit for Cambodia to survive without new aid.

Ford said three points were at issue in the Cambodia debate:

First, the only way to stop the fighting and killing is "through a combination of humanitarian endeavors and military aid," not by stopping the aid.

Jobless Rate Holds At 8.2%

was 7.4 per cent; for blacks, it was 13.5 per cent; for adult women, it was 8.1 per cent for teen agers, 19.9 per cent.

The largest cutbacks were reported in major metals industries and in textiles, apparel, and rubber and plastic products.

Reflecting the depth of the nation's recession, the department said manufacturing employment in February totalled 18.3 million, the lowest level since September of 1965.

Several administration economists had privately predicted the unemployment rate would increase in February for the seventh consecutive month, but they apparently had not anticipated the large number of work force dropouts.

The change in composition of the work force means that even though another 540,000 workers lost their jobs in February, the total number of jobless workers for statistical purposes remained the same as January at 7.5 million.

The total civilian labor force in February was 91.5 million, down from 92 million in January. The Labor Department said total employment was 84 million in February, down from about 84.6 million in January.

President Ford said Thursday night unemployment might hit nine per cent during the current recession, although he added that he doubted it would get so high.

The President also indicated he might consider new tax reductions, over what he has proposed, if more stimulus is needed to end the recession.

"If there is to be greater stimulus, I would certainly go for greater tax reductions than increased spending...," he said.

Ford also said the size of the tax cut is less important than "the slowness with which Congress is acting on it."

Since September of last year, employment has declined by 2.4 million, the largest five-month reduction in the post-war period, the Labor Department said. Unemployment was 5.2 per cent last June when it started the steady climb that peaked in January at 8.2 per cent.

No Police Charge If Breakage Paid

NILES — A 19-year-old Niles man who told police he was locked inside the Twin Gables bar here overnight won't be charged with a criminal offense as long as he pays for the window he reported he broke out in leaving the bar early this morning, according to Niles city police. Police said Roger Somero, 19, 2717 East street, Niles, was treated at Niles Pawating hospital for a wrist cut he suffered leaving the bar at 416 South 11th street. Somero reported the break-out to police who said nothing was reported missing from the bar. Benton Harbor firemen extinguished a fire in the basement storage room of Columbus elementary school Thursday at 1:10 p.m.

OPEC Plan Seen As 'Ploy'

NEW YORK (AP) — The oil cartel's plan for linking petroleum prices to the cost of its imports is being read here as a ploy prepared for talks with the consuming nations later this year. Some analysts feel the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries may be willing to grant short-term price concessions in return for assurances that present oil profits can maintain their purchasing power. "What they're looking for is some kind of a commitment from the consuming nations regarding a stable price, which they may get if we are big enough fools to sign," says Prof. Maurice Adelman at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. At the conclusion of their Algiers summit, the OPEC members said Thursday they were "prepared to negotiate conditions for the stabilization of oil prices." But they said such stabilization would include linking the price to such items as the price of manufactured goods, inflation and the cost of technology for the development of OPEC nations.

Group Hits Meat Grading Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's new grading system will result in consumers paying Choice prices for beef graded Good, the nation's largest consumer organization says. The department decided to go ahead with its Sept. 11 proposal to change its beef-grading system, which industry groups helped write. But the Consumer Federation of America called the action "a very serious rip-off of the American consumer."

Tainted Feed Study Due

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Senate has approved a resolution ordering the state Agriculture Department to conduct public hearings on whether to quarantine more farm animals which ate contaminated feed.

The Senate approved the resolution on a voice vote Thursday, while the Senate Business Committee adopted the resolution, 5-0, earlier in the day. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration set the tolerance level at .3 parts per million. The hearings could result in the state agriculture department lowering the level to keep more animals off the market.

Troops Attack 'Rocket Belt'

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — A big government force pushing against the insurgents' "rocket belt" northwest of Phnom Penh failed to make any progress overnight, military sources reported. Intensified shelling of the city and its airport continued today. The sources said 11 artillery rounds and rockets hit the airport but did not interrupt the American airlift of ammunition, rice and fuel. Another 13 rounds during the night killed a civilian and wounded three others. The Khmer Rouge also fired eight rockets into downtown Phnom Penh before dawn, killing one person and wounding three.

Sports Names To Testify

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Some big names in sports will be asked to appear before a special Michigan Senate committee studying violence in youth athletics. Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League commissioner, and Stan Maketa, a Chicago Black Hawks hockey player, will be invited to address the committee, said Sen. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, who is heading the probe.

New Desegregation Effort

DETROIT (AP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has opened a new, unexpected effort to include suburbs in the plan to desegregate the Detroit schools. In a motion filed in U.S. District Court earlier this week, the civil rights group renewed its charge that official actions by a variety of state and local agencies were responsible for a pattern of racial segregation in metropolitan area schools.

The action came despite a U.S. Supreme Court order last summer that the lower court proceed with a Detroit-only school integration plan.

$1 Checkoff Favored

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The public should use federal income tax forms to help foot the bill for presidential campaigns, Gov. William Milliken said Thursday.

Milliken urged taxpayers to check off $1 from their tax liability to a "Presidential Election Campaign Fund" which federal law created. Two dollars can be checked off joint returns. The money, which goes only to presidential races, is taken from the tax and is not an additional charge, Millkien said.

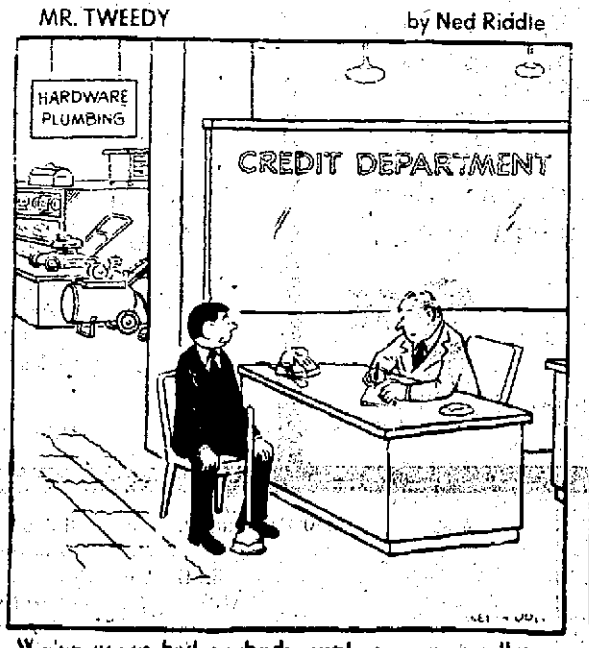

"An important goal of this program cis the financing of presidential campaigns without the excessive involvement of special interest contributions," Milliken said.

State Awash In Gasoline

DETROIT (AP) — The head of the Michigan Gasoline Dealers Association says there is more gasoline in Michigan than consumers could use "even if they went on a binge all summer." Charles Shipley said the surpluses also have resulted in some price reductions in most of the state's major cities. He said record imports by major oil companies were responsible for the excess fuel.

Shipley repeated comments from outside Michigan that oil companies were putting "extreme pressure" on dealers to increase sales, but said the companies will not reduce wholesale prices, seeking instead to make dealers cut costs to make a profit. "Any regular sold for less than 53.9 a gallon is getting pretty close to the lowest profit margin possible," he said.

Ford Tones Down Amount Of Aid

although "I have doubts that it will."

—Whatever the climb in the jobless rate, "a greater tax reduction," not an increase in federal spending, would be the preferred remedy.

—Whatever the size of the tax cut, middle-income Americans should get greater relief to spur consumer spending, Ford added. The big problem "is not the size of the tax cut, but the slowness with which Congress is acting on it," he said.

—Congress is making alarming moves toward increasing the already burdensome $52 billion federal deficit he has proposed. "That figure is too much, and anything above that is very, very bad," he said.

—"Nelson Rockefeller is doing a very fine job as vice president." The Republican party has "an excellent chance to prevail in 1976" but the party "has to be a broad-based, wide-spectrum party if it's going to be a viable force," Ford said.

While he spoke optimistically about such matters, it was Cambodia that was on his mind and the minds of the reporters. In fact, it wasn't until the news conference reached its 21st minute that questions turned to the economy.

Ford opened with a prepared statement outlining his argument for more Cambodian aid and said "there is no hope of success unless the Congress acts quickly to provide the necessary means for Cambodia to survive."

Congressional reaction to the increasing administration pressure on Cambodia, climaxed by Ford's news conference, was mixed.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, DMinn., said before the news conference that he told Ford on Thursday that prospects for any aid were "quite dim."

Senate Democratic leader Mansfield of Montana told a newsmen, "I didn't even hear", Ford's news conference, but his view remains that "any future military aid will simply prolong the killing."

The flexibility in the House resulted more from reports by some members of a task force of eight lawmakers who recently returned from Indochina rather than from the lobbying of the administration.

Ford spoke glowingly of the fact-finding legislators and stated that "their impact will be significant in the Congress as well as in the country."

Since many of those who made the Indochina trip have recommended some type of compromise, Ford's praise was seen as another sign of his willingness to bend on the money issue.

Rep. John J. McFall of California, the Democratic whip, said after the Ford news conference that the odds are better for some aid because of the fact-finding trip.

Another powerful Democrat, Rep. George Mahon of Texas, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the recommendations of some of the fact-finding team have "softened some resistance to the request."

However, Mahon added, "I don't think Congress will approve the full amount, but some compromise can be worked out."

If the path has been smoothed for some Cambodian aid, the President seems to have failed to push Congress to quicker action.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee isn't scheduled to start putting the measure into final legislative form until next week when the House Foreign Affairs Committee also was to consider the matter.

McFall said he doubted Congress will complete action on the money much before its Easter recess, which starts March 26. This is well after the two weeks that Ford marked as the outside limit for Cambodia to survive without new aid.

Ford said three points were at issue in the Cambodia debate:

First, the only way to stop the fighting and killing is "through a combination of humanitarian endeavors and military aid," not by stopping the aid.

was 7.4 per cent; for blacks, it was 13.5 per cent; for adult women, it was 8.1 per cent for teen agers, 19.9 per cent.

The largest cutbacks were reported in major metals industries and in textiles, apparel, and rubber and plastic products.

Reflecting the depth of the nation's recession, the department said manufacturing employment in February totalled 18.3 million, the lowest level since September of 1965.

Several administration economists had privately predicted the unemployment rate would increase in February for the seventh consecutive month, but they apparently had not anticipated the large number of work force dropouts.

The change in composition of the work force means that even though another 540,000 workers lost their jobs in February, the total number of jobless workers for statistical purposes remained the same as January at 7.5 million.

The total civilian labor force in February was 91.5 million, down from 92 million in January. The Labor Department said total employment was 84 million in February, down from about 84.6 million in January.

President Ford said Thursday night unemployment might hit nine per cent during the current recession, although he added that he doubted it would get so high.

The President also indicated he might consider new tax reductions, over what he has proposed, if more stimulus is needed to end the recession.

"If there is to be greater stimulus, I would certainly go for greater tax reductions than increased spending...," he said.

Ford also said the size of the tax cut is less important than "the slowness with which Congress is acting on it."

Since September of last year, employment has declined by 2.4 million, the largest five-month reduction in the post-war period, the Labor Department said. Unemployment was 5.2 per cent last June when it started the steady climb that peaked in January at 8.2 per cent.

Berrien sheriff's deputies said Tina Horvath, of Naomi road, Eau Claire, and Rebecca Fadeley, of Pokagon road, Berrien Springs, went for a walk during a mid-day recess. Sheriff's deputies were called when the girls did not return.

About 40 volunteers, including teachers, church members and neighbors joined the search. An airplane from Andrews Field was called in after a two hour ground search, deputies said.

Speakers Hail Dr. Locey As 'Creative, Innovative'

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

Two words were repeatedly used last night by speakers and letters to describe the achievements of Dr. Robert P. Locey, director of the Berrien County Health department.

Creative and innovative.

A host of speakers from the fields of medicine, health and government lauded the programs Dr. Locey has established during his 10-year tenure with the health department.

The comments came during a testimonial dinner for the health department chief at Ramada Inn in Benton township, sponsored by the Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association and BCV Health Services, Inc.

Following the comments, Locey thanked the estimated 175 people attending and told them: "It isn't so much what I've done but how I've gone about it—with affection."

He said his work has not only been gratifying, but "fun," and paid special tribute to the staff at the health department for making the department what some called "one of the best in Michigan."

Dr. Maurice S. Reizen, director of the state department of public health, cited Michigan's strong public health system, and noted the good cooperation between county health departments and the state means new programs can rapidly be implemented.

He said Locey has "worked effectively in (raising) the public health standards," and presented him with a certificate of appreciation noting his "exemplary work."

Rep. Harry Gast, Jr., of Stevensville, who served on the county health board when Locey was named director, told the audience Berrien's health department "came of age with the arrival of Dr. Locey."

That statement was backed up by Frank Poorman, chairman of the county board of health and a member of the board of commissioners, who presented figures showing the department's growth.

He noted when Locey assumed the directorship 10 years ago, the public health budget for Berrien, Cass, and Van Buren counties was $160,500. He compared this with the Berrien health department's budget alone—now at $1.6 million a year.

Poorman cited Locey's diligence in getting grants for the department, and noted about $1 million of the department's budget comes from state and federal grants. He also added that when Locey began there were 10 people on the health department payroll. There are now 85 full-time and 40 part-time employes, Poorman pointed out.

A resolution from the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, presented by John P. Banyon, president of the chamber, noted that Locey's "dedication and skillful leadership has made the Berrien County Health department a full-service health department."

The department, which has its central office at 769 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor, was also praised by Benton Harbor Mayor Charles F. Joseph, who presented a key to the city to Locey.

Other plaudits came from Leslie Fischer, chairman of the county board of commissioners, and John Ross, director of the Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association.

Intermediate Board Mulls Informational Meeting

BERRIEN SPRINGS—The Berrien county Intermediate School board last night indicated it will contact superintendents from districts throughout the county to determine if local school boards wish to have an informational meeting concerning the Intermediate district's programs for the mentally impaired.

The board also reviewed the first draft of the proposed special education budget for the next school year which totaled $5,376,818.

The board directed Intermediate Supt. Raymond Sreboth to contact superintendents from constitutent districts and find whether school boards would like to meet with the Intermediate board on March 18 for an informational session.

Sreboth indicated the main topic of discussion, if the meeting is held, will probably deal with the Intermediate district's proposal to build a centralized facility for programs for trainable and severely mentally impaired children.

He added that if the meeting is called, it will be held at the Intermediate offices.

Part of the proposed 1975-76 special education budget calls for $2,325,956 for construction, site improvement, and architect's fees for the central facility. Another major portion of the budget asks $1.4 million to reimburse local districts in the county for special education programs each district operates.

Final action on the special education budget is expected to be taken by the board at its April meeting, which Sreboth noted has been changed from April 3 to 9, due to spring vacations.

In other business, the board:

—Authorized submission of the proposed general fund budget, which was approved by constitutent districts last month, to the county tax allocation board, which divides the 15-mill operating levy among governmental units in the county. The budget calls for $629,702 for general operating expenses.

—In a related matter, appointed Bruce Dustin, of the Eau Claire board of education, to the county tax allocation board.

—Learned the district's application for $34,069 for state aid funds for the regional educational media center has been approved.

COLOMA — Contributions to a fund to help defray costs for a Coloma township man confined to a kidney machine at Borgess hospital from late November until last week have amounted to $1,500, according to Mrs. Elwood (Marion) Geisler of Huntoon avenue, Watervliet, originator of the drive.

The man, Miles Rendell, 53, Sylvester street, Coloma, was confined to the Kalamazoo hospital on a kidney machine at a cost of $200 per day. He returned home last week and is currently undergoing periodic kidney machine treatment at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor.

Rendell has owned and operated Coloma Sash and Door company, East Logan street, Coloma, for several years.

Mrs. Geisler said the fund drive started in late January and is continuing at the present time, with contributions being accepted at the State Bank of Coloma and at Harding's Friendly Market, Coloma, where Mrs. Rendell is employed.

The Rendell family has expressed its appreciation and thanks to residents of Coloma and Watervliet for their contributions to the fund, Mrs. Geisler said.

Welfare Fraud Trial Ends

A mistrial was declared yesterday in Berrien Fifth District court in the case of a woman charged with welfare fraud under $500 after the jury was unable to reach agreement on a verdict.

Charged with fraud under $500 was Lila Joy Knapp, 29, of 4256 Ridge road, Stevensville, the mother of four children. She is accused of illegally receiving $274 in ADC payments from May 1 to Sept. 15, by allegedly failing to report an increase in child support payments from her former husband.

Her trial began Wednesday afternoon in District court. It continued into yesterday and the jury was out for over three hours, according to District Judge John T. Hammond. Hammond called a mistrial when it became clear that the jury would not reach a decision.

Prosecutor John Smietanka said the charge will not be dismissed and that a new trial date will be set. Meanwhile the woman remains free on personal recognizance bond.

Mrs. Knapp pleaded guilty in November of 1973 to a reduced charge of conspiracy to commit welfare fraud under $500 in another case. The charge was reduced from fraud over $500, and part of her sentence was to make restitution of $3,984.

According to her probation officer, she has so far paid about $150.

Mrs. Knapp was defended yesterday by Atty. Gary Hosbein. Asst. Prosecutor Thomas Genon prosecuted the case.

Allegan Hires Consultant To Plan Waste Disposal

ALLEGAN — Allegan county board of commissioners have hired R.A. Jackson & Associates, consulting engineers of Muskegon, to prepare a countywide solid wastè management plan, according to Marvin Johansen, chief of Allegan county health department's environmental division.

A 1972 amendment to the state solid waste management act requires every county to file a plan to include proposals to meet present and future refuse disposal needs through 1980, Johansen said. The firm was hired at a fee not to exceed $9,800.

Johansen said that local dumps and a number of landfill sites do not comply with minimum standards in the act. He said strict enforcement of the act by state authorities could soon close all sites in violation.

"Because of the lack of convenient facilities, and the fact that the resultant litter and uncontrolled dumping would create countywide problems, the board action proposes countywide solutions," Johansen said.

A series of public meetings will be scheduled for an exchange of ideas from all concerned parties, Johansen said. A final report will provide alternate plans for managing solid waste so that the county board may take action by this summer, he said.

Businessman Gives Office To Van Buren Red Cross

PAW PAW — The Van Buren Red Cross has found a new home. The local chapter currently has offices in space donated at Lake View Community hospital, but has been told it must leave by April 1, according to Mrs. Carl (Rena) Buskirk, publicity chairman.

Mrs. Buskirk said yesterday that Paw Paw businessman John H. Tapper had offered to donate the use of a building across the street from his automobile dealership on Red Arrow highway rent-free to the Red Cross. Mrs. Buskirk said Tapper had also offered to pay all utilities and to carpet part of the building, which formerly housed Producer's Creamery.

Mrs. Buskirk also announced that the women's committee of the Van Buren county Farm Bureau had voted to take out a $100 award membership. The local Red Cross officially begins a drive next Monday aimed at raising $30,000 to save its bloodmobile program.

Losers Could Be Winners In NCAA Cage Tourney

From Associated Press

It is rare indeed when Kentucky does not win the Southeastern Conference basketball championship. And if the Wildcats don't win it this year, they may be forever thankful.

Kentucky is, as usual, in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's annual playoffs that determine the nation's best college basketball team. But under a new formula, the Wildcats don't have to win the SEC. They might be better off if they don't.

Here's why: If Alabama beats Auburn Saturday night, the Crimson Tide wins the SEC, and they will be in the NCAA's Mideast Regional, playing No. 5 Marquette in the first round and still faced with the prospect of top-ranked Indiana and possibly UCLA in the same region.

Kentucky, meanwhile, would be in the tournament as an at-large team under a new rule allowing the NCAA to invite a second team from any conference. The Wildcats would be in the West Regional, and the road to the final in San Diego on March 31 might be easier that way.

On Thursday, the NCAA sent out the invitations to its expanded 32-team tournament. It might be the strongest field ever. In addition to Kentucky, Indiana and Alabama, there are Marquette, UCLA and Louisville.

The tournament opens with 16 first-round games at eight sites on Saturday, March 15. The winners advance to the four regional tournaments the following week, and those four survivors head for San Diego and hopes of a national title.

Of the 32 teams, only 18 are firm as of today. Most of the remaining 14 will be decided by Saturday night as a result of regular season and tournament games yet to be played. There may be playoff games needed.

Other teams accepting NCAA bids on Thursday were Cincinnati, Creighton, Notre Dame, Utah State, Oregon State and New Mexico State. Teams which already had qualified by winning their conference championships include Furman, Penn, Montana, San Diego Sate, Arizona State and Nevada-Las Vegas.

In expanding to 32 teams, the NCAA abolished first-round byes which once went to winners of nine conferences. Instead, there now are automatic berths for 16 conference winners and invitations to 16 atlarge teams.

Any number of those teams can be second-place clubs from conferences. This year, the NCAA went to seven conferences for two teams—the SEC, Big 10, Atlantic Coast, Big Eight, Western Athletic, Missouri Valley and Pac-8.

The only catch is that the second team must go across the country from the conference winner. And that is how Kentucky will end up in the West Regional if Alabama wins the SEC and goes to the Mideast.

Among first-round games, two look exceptionally good. One matches No. 6 Kentucky or No. 7 Alabama against No. 5 Marquette. The other would match either Kentucky or Alabama against No. 9 Arizona State.

The worst luck in the draw goes to the second team from the Western Athletic Conference, either Texas-El Paso or Arizona, which must play top-ranked Indiana, 28-0.

The weakest region appears to be the East. The only ranked team playing in that eight-team conglomeration will be the winner of the ACC Tournament, which is being played this weekend. That team, probably either Maryland or defending NCAA champion North Carolina State, will be an odds-on favorite to make it to San Diego.

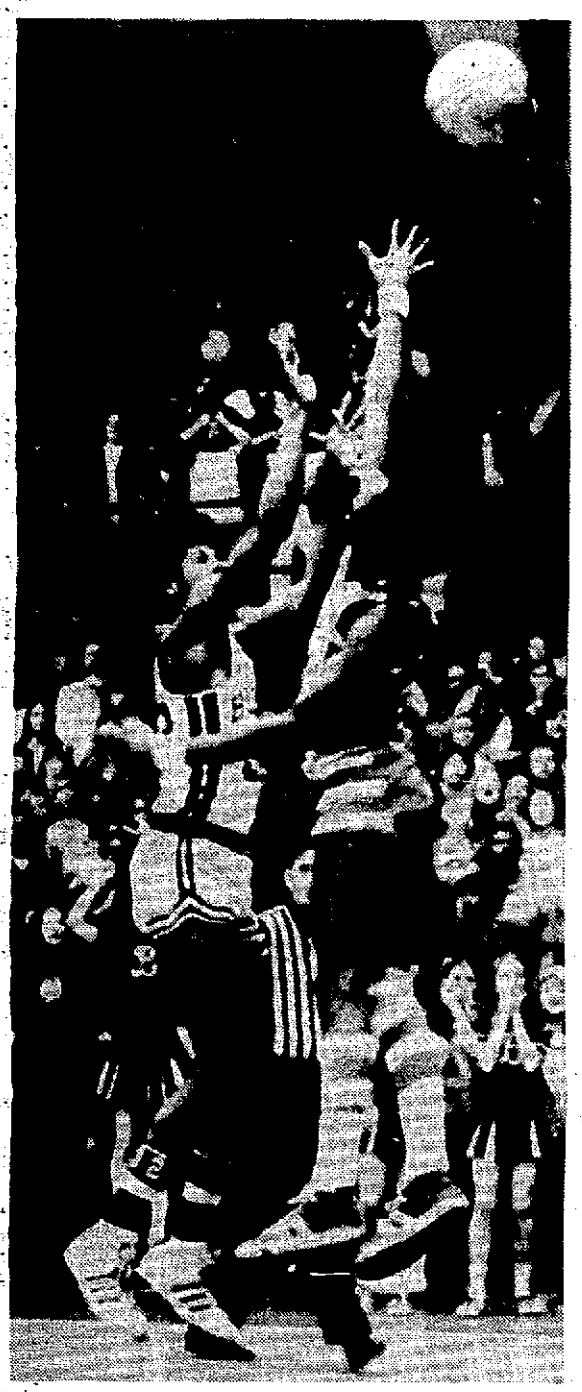

Elsewhere, things aren't so nice. Indiana, probably Alabama and perhaps UCLA will be in the Mideast. Third-ranked Louisville, tough independents Cincinnati and Creighton and a second ACC team are in the Midwest. Arizona State, and probably Kentucky and UCLA will be in the West. UCLA will be in the West if the Bruins win Saturday against Southern Cal. Otherwise, they could go to the Mideast.

Southern Cal, the nation's 11th-ranked team by The Associated Press, was the highest rated team not invited. Others which had hoped for a bid but didn't get one included South Carolina, Oral Roberts and Stetson. Oral Roberts later accepted a bid to the National Invitation Tourney in New York.

The major riddle remaining is which two teams from the talent-rich ACC will participate, and where they will go. Second-ranked Maryland won the regular season title and seems a cinch to play even if the Terps don't win the weekend tournament. The winner of the tournament goes to the East; the second team goes to the Midwest.

There still are a number of developments that will affect the field. The Ohio Valley Conference picks its team in a weekend tournament. The four representatives from the East Coast Athletic Conference will be picked in similar tournaments, and champions are yet to be crowned in the Southwest, Big Eight and Mid-American conferences.

Whatever happens over the weekend, the NCAA has set up a different kind of tournament that could have the strange impact of rewarding a team which failed to win its own conference.

Lady Luck Runs Out On Bucks

KALAMAZOO — Buchanan found its usually reliable bag of magic empty and bowed to highly-ranked Albion 61-59 in the Class B regional championship game here Thursday night.

Three times in the last minute Buchanan had chances to overcome and upset the fifth-ranked Wildcats, but unlike many other times this season, Lady Luck wasn't on the side of the Bucks.

While trailing 60-59 with less than a minute remaining, Buchanan kept the Read Fieldhouse crowd on the edge of the seats by missing two shots, throwing the ball away on an inbounds pass and finally calling a time out it didn't have — which resulted in a technical and the loss of the ball — with four seconds left.

Albion kept giving the Bucks another chance during the action by blowing opportunities to ice the game by making just one of six free throw attempts.

Buchanan had fought back from a pair of 11-point deficits, including a 11-0 handicap at the start of game, but fate wasn't with the Bucks like it had been on six other occasions this season where they won by two points or less.

Buchanan coach Bill Wilson was understandably proud of his Bucks, who forced Albion all-state candidate Clarence Jackson to take 34 shots to get his game-high 28 points.

"You can't ask for more of an effort from a group of kids than we got tonight," declared Wilson. "We have played better, but never harder."

Ken Garrett kept Buchanan in the game with 10 points the fourth quarter and ended up leading the Bucks with 17 tallies. Guards Mike McGuirt and Walt Vanderbush added 14 points apiece as the 18th-rated Bucks had their seven-game winning streak snapped while bowing out at 19-6 — their best record in seven seasons.

Albion also got 13 points from Charles Ashley while winning its fifth regional — second in three years. The Wildcats now advance to the quarterfinals here next Thursday night with a 22-1 record against the winner of tonight's game between Muskegon Heights — last year's quarterfinals winner here — and Godwin Heights.

Even though Jackson, a 6-6 senior, was off target on his 15 to 20-foot jumpers from the top of the key, he was almost impossible to stop when he decided to go to the basket.

His teammates also got loose inside for some easy baskets on plays which were decisive to the outcome.

"Their big people didn't play that good of defense," said Albion coach John Schilling while noting that the Wildcats advantage inside was an important factor in the outcome.

But Schilling also had plaudits for the Bucks, calling them the "quickest ball club we've faced this year....and definitely the strongest rebounding team."

Albion still won the battle of the boards 38 to 36, including 14 by Jackson. Mike Busby and Garrett had 10 apiece for Buchanan. "I told them we had to block out and rebound if we wanted to beat their ball club," added Schilling.

Albion also got two more shots and two more field goals than Buchanan while finishing with a 42 per cent mark. The Bucks sank 26 of 64 for a 41 per cent average.

Buchanan made seven of 13 free throws (54 per cent) and Albion five of 12 (42 per cent). The Bucks had 17 turnovers and the Wildcats 14.

Albion opened the game by meshing five of its first seven shots for a 11-0 lead while Buchanan was going zero for three with three turnovers.

But with Buchanan's Garrett and Vanderbush getting six points apiece and Albion's Jackson connecting on just one of seven outside shots, the Bucks came back to trail by just 17-16 at the end of the quarter.

"They decided they could play with them," continued Wilson. "These kids never quit. People have written them off two or three times this year, but you just don't write them off."

Buchanan went ahead three times at the start of the second quarter on two baskets by McGuirt and a pair of free throws by Vanderbush, but the Bucks then hit a cold spot where Albion tallied seven unanswered points.

Garrett went to the bench with his third foul late in the period and Jackson tossed in 10 points as Albion went on to emerge with a 36-30 halftime edge.

MSU Seeks Super Upset

From Associated Press

Beyond top-ranked Indiana's bid to wrap up its first undefeated season in histry against tough Michigan State, the Big Ten basketball campaign's closing round Saturday is focused on a stirring scrap for second place and the league's second berth in the NCAA tourney.

Indiana sewed up the conference title and an automatic NCAA spot two weeks ago, but the Hoosiers must be wary of a possible closing upset by an invading Michigan State club they whipped 107-55 early in the season.

At that time, however, Michigan State Coach Gus Ganakas played a junior varsity lineup against Indiana after a one-game suspension of all his regulars for walking out of a practice.

Now, the Spartans not only have a shot at a second-place tie but also have the Big Ten's top scorer in Terry Furlow with a 21.8-point average and the league's best rebounder in Lindsay Hairston, 11.6 per game.

By scoring what would be a resounding upset of Indiana, Michigan State conceivably could finish in a four-way tie for second which currently is shared by Minnesota and Michigan each with an 11-6 record.

The Spartans and Purdue are knotted for fourth at 10-7, but Purdue also has a rough finale, facing invading Minnesota in a regionally televised game.

Michigan must win at Ohio State (8-9) to assure the Wolverines of at least a tie for second.

The NCAA Thursday announced the Big Ten's at-large entry which would compete in the West Regional will be selected Sunday. Indiana is seeded into the Mideast Regional.

If it comes down to the overall season record in selection of the second Big Ten delegate to the NCAA tourney, Minnesota and Michigan momentarily have the best mark of the conference's also-rans, each with 18-7. Michigan State has 17-8 and Purdue 15-10.

There will be other postseason tourney action, though, for two other Big Ten clubs, the Conference Commissioner's Tournament and the NIT.

Indiana's juggernaut, rolling on despite the injury loss of top scorer Scott May, will be striving against Michigan State for its 32nd straight victory which would tie a Big Ten record set by Ohio State over the 1960 and 1961 seasons.

Indiana, standing 28-0 for the season and 17-0 in the league, already has set a Big Ten record in winning margin for the Conference race. The old record was four games and the Hoosiers go against the Spartans holding a six-game lead over co-runnersup Minnesota and Michigan.

The two other conference finales Saturday include Iowa (6-11) at Illinois (4-13) and Northwestern at Wisconsin, both with 4-11 marks.

Scrambler Hot In Citrus Open

An analysis of his game by his fellow pros usually goes: "He can get it up and down from a cement mixer, a ball washer or your hip pocket."

But the chipper Courtney, last a winner in 1969 and a long-time struggler, didn't need to resort to his specialty in establishing the first round lead Thursday in the $200,000 Citrus Open Golf Tournament. He had a 66 that could have been much better.

It came in the classic tradition—a drive down the fairway, an approach dead on the flag. He missed only one green. He had the ball 12 feet or closer on 14 of the 18 holes.

"That's the closest I've ever hit it," said Courtney, a 12-year tour veteran. "That's as good as I've ever played. I couldn't want to hit the ball any better."

He missed a six-foot birdie putt. He missed an eight-foot birdie putt. He missed five from 10 feet. But it didn't bother him.

"I've kicked myself for missing putts many times," he said. "But I won't complain about this. You'll never catch me kicking myself or complaining after I shoot 66."

A pair of tour newcomers, Hugh Royer and Pat Fitzsimons, the winner of the last Citrus Open five years ago, tied the leader by one stroke at 67.

The victory made a difference, the 24-year-old FitzSimons said. "Always before I was trying to guard against a bad round. Now I'm trying to shoot a good round. There's all the difference in the world. Now I'm relaxed and easy, not tight and grinding."

U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, who hasn't finished lower than sixth in his last three starts, led a large group at 68, four-under-par on the 6,926-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course. Also at 68 were Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, Jim Dent, Larry Hinson, Rik Massengale and Mike Reasor.

PGA champion Lee Trevino was in another group at 69 as almost perfect playing conditions contributed to generally low scores.

Arnold Palmer had his problems, however. He had a double bogey six on his first hole, missed three birdie putts of 30 inches or less and finished with a routine 72.

Central Michigan Seeking MAC Cage Championship

Parfitt's Central Michigan team shares the Mid-American lead with Bowling Green and Toledo going into the final regular season games Saturday.

If the Chippewas win at Bowling Green and Toledo masters visiting Western Michigan, Central Michigan and Toledo would share the championship at 10-4.

"If two teams tie for it, both should go to the NCAA tournament, one to the Mideast Regional and one somewhere else," said Parfitt.

"Our league is extremely tough from top to bottom this year," he added, "as good as any conference in the nation. The middle teams in the MAC are just super."

If the Falcons atone for an earlier loss to Central Michigan, Bowling Green would earn the automatic spot in the Mideast Regional that goes to the MAC champion.

Toledo could share the crown with the Falcons, but lost twice to Bowling Green during the regular season. Under conference rules, the two victories would qualify BG for cthe NCAA.

If Central Michigan and Toledo win, the Rockets would be NCAA-bound for the same reason, clipping the Chippewas twice.

Bowling Green Coach Pat Haley said, "Who's hot is going to win our Central Michigan game. We weren't playing well the first time we played them. We're much better now."

To avenge a 73-56 loss at Western Michigan, Toledo Coach Bob Nichols says his Rockets must develop consistency for 40 minutes.

"We've got to score all the way. They are an efficient team," said Nichols. "If you have an area that bogs down, they'll get away from you."

Western dropped out of the title picture when it lost its second last-second conference decision against Central Michigan Saturday.

"I don't expect that outcome to affect our preparation," said Western Michigan Coach Eldon Miller. "It will be an intense game."

Losers Could Be Winners In NCAA Cage Tourney

From Associated Press

It is rare indeed when Kentucky does not win the Southeastern Conference basketball championship. And if the Wildcats don't win it this year, they may be forever thankful.

Kentucky is, as usual, in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's annual playoffs that determine the nation's best college basketball team. But under a new formula, the Wildcats don't have to win the SEC. They might be better off if they don't.

Here's why: If Alabama beats Auburn Saturday night, the Crimson Tide wins the SEC, and they will be in the NCAA's Mideast Regional, playing No. 5 Marquette in the first round and still faced with the prospect of top-ranked Indiana and possibly UCLA in the same region.

Kentucky, meanwhile, would be in the tournament as an at-large team under a new rule allowing the NCAA to invite a second team from any conference. The Wildcats would be in the West Regional, and the road to the final in San Diego on March 31 might be easier that way.

On Thursday, the NCAA sent out the invitations to its expanded 32-team tournament. It might be the strongest field ever. In addition to Kentucky, Indiana and Alabama, there are Marquette, UCLA and Louisville.

The tournament opens with 16 first-round games at eight sites on Saturday, March 15. The winners advance to the four regional tournaments the following week, and those four survivors head for San Diego and hopes of a national title.

Of the 32 teams, only 18 are firm as of today. Most of the remaining 14 will be decided by Saturday night as a result of regular season and tournament games yet to be played. There may be playoff games needed.

Other teams accepting NCAA bids on Thursday were Cincinnati, Creighton, Notre Dame, Utah State, Oregon State and New Mexico State. Teams which already had qualified by winning their conference championships include Furman, Penn, Montana, San Diego Sate, Arizona State and Nevada-Las Vegas.

In expanding to 32 teams, the NCAA abolished first-round byes which once went to winners of nine conferences. Instead, there now are automatic berths for 16 conference winners and invitations to 16 atlarge teams.

Any number of those teams can be second-place clubs from conferences. This year, the NCAA went to seven conferences for two teams—the SEC, Big 10, Atlantic Coast, Big Eight, Western Athletic, Missouri Valley and Pac-8.

The only catch is that the second team must go across the country from the conference winner. And that is how Kentucky will end up in the West Regional if Alabama wins the SEC and goes to the Mideast.

Among first-round games, two look exceptionally good. One matches No. 6 Kentucky or No. 7 Alabama against No. 5 Marquette. The other would match either Kentucky or Alabama against No. 9 Arizona State.

The worst luck in the draw goes to the second team from the Western Athletic Conference, either Texas-El Paso or Arizona, which must play top-ranked Indiana, 28-0.

The weakest region appears to be the East. The only ranked team playing in that eight-team conglomeration will be the winner of the ACC Tournament, which is being played this weekend. That team, probably either Maryland or defending NCAA champion North Carolina State, will be an odds-on favorite to make it to San Diego.

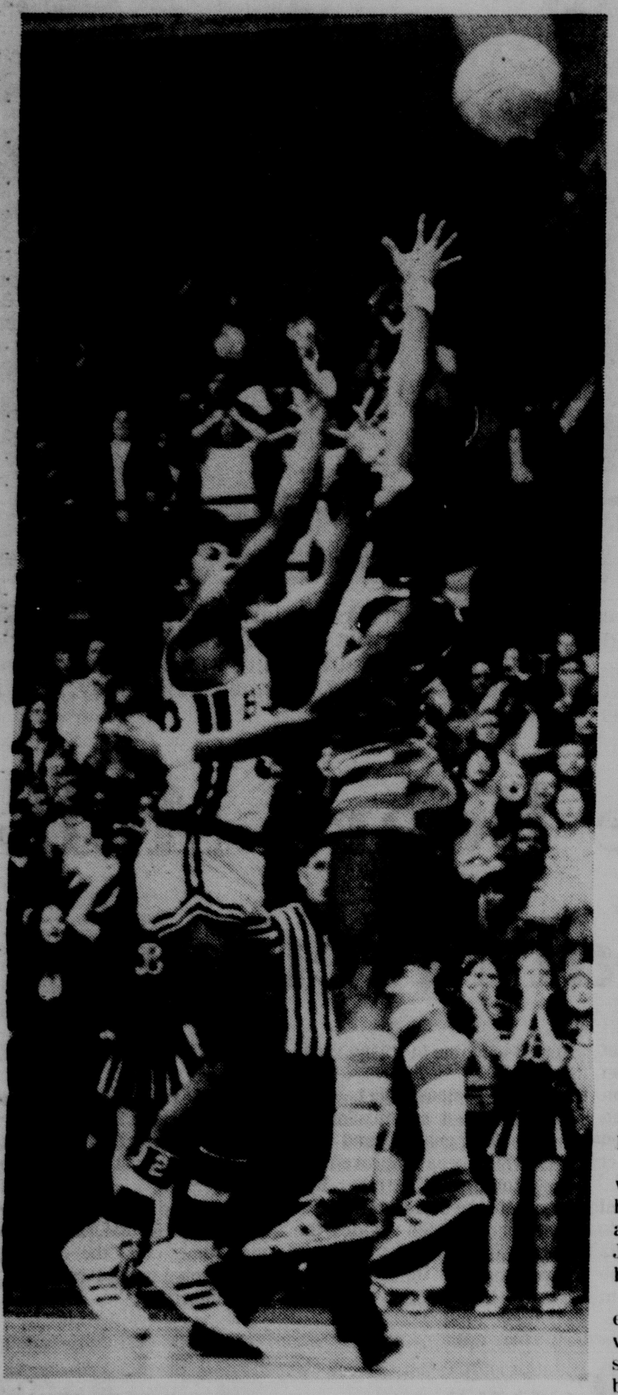

Elsewhere, things aren't so nice. Indiana, probably Alabama and perhaps UCLA will be in the Mideast. Third-ranked Louisville, tough independents Cincinnati and Creighton and a second ACC team are in the Midwest. Arizona State, and probably Kentucky and UCLA will be in the West. UCLA will be in the West if the Bruins win Saturday against Southern Cal. Otherwise, they could go to the Mideast.

Southern Cal, the nation's 11th-ranked team by The Associated Press, was the highest rated team not invited. Others which had hoped for a bid but didn't get one included South Carolina, Oral Roberts and Stetson. Oral Roberts later accepted a bid to the National Invitation Tourney in New York.

The major riddle remaining is which two teams from the talent-rich ACC will participate, and where they will go. Second-ranked Maryland won the regular season title and seems a cinch to play even if the Terps don't win the weekend tournament. Favored Teams Gain Shaky Wins In ACC Tournament

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Lefty Driesell, coach of Maryland's second-ranked Terrapins, was not feeling well as he watched first-round games in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament.

Driesell had a heavy cold and his ears were still stopped up from the flight to North Carolina. What he saw on the floor Thursday probably did not make him feel any better.

If first round games are any indication, no favorite is safe in this year's tournament. Although all three favored teams—North Carolina State, Clemson and North Carolina—advanced to join Maryland in the semifinals, all three got more than they wanted in first round opposition.

Wake Forest took No. 14 North Carolina into overtime before losing 101-100. No. 12 Clemson needed two clutch free throws from Skip Wise to beat Duke 78-76.

Defending national and conference champion N.C. State, ranked eighth, saw a 22-point lead shrink to one before defeating Virginia 91-85.

The Wolfpack opened with a rush, building a 36-14 lead. Along the way David Thompson, who finished with 38 points, broke the ACC career scoring record set 20 years ago by Virginia's Buzz Wilkinson.

Thompson's 2,263 points in three varsity season's bettered Wilkinson's standard by 30.

The Cavaliers, with Wally Walker and Billy Langloh shooting at a combined 70 per cent clip, refused to fold. They cut the lead gradually until it was only one point with 57 seconds left.

"You can't help but start thinking of the next game," said N.C. State's Phil Spence in explaining the Wolfpack lapse.

N.C. State's next game is with Maryland tonight. North Carolina meets Clemson in the other semifinal.

Unheralded senior Wayne Croft played the finest game of his tournament career as Clemson slipped by Duke to gain the semifinals for the first time in 11 years.

Croft scored 15 points in the second half, many after Duke forward Bob Fleischer fouled out. But it was freshman Skip Wise who converted two free throws with three seconds left to seal the Clemson victory.

Clemson Coach Tates Locke sent Wise into the game to shoot those free throws in place of Wayne Rollins, who was ejected for throwing an elbow under the board.

"Wise hadn't been playing well. That's why he was on the bench. But he wanted to make up for it, and if I had to have one of my players shoot a foul shot with my life riding on it, he'd be the one I'd choose," Locke said.

A distressed Bill Foster, finishing the end of a disappointing first year at Duke, had little to say. "It was a tough way to lose. With Fleischer out, they really hurt us off the boards."

Wake Forest also found a tough way to lose, blowing a 10-point lead in the last five minutes of the tournament's opening game. The Deacons helped North Carolina come back by missing the front ends of four crucial one-and-one free throw situations.

The Tar Heels got another break when a long in-bounds pass by Jerry Schellenberg was judged to have barely nicked the overhead scoreboard.

The play was a turning point because Wake's Skip Brown had fielded the pass and been fouled before the call was made. The ball instead went to North Carolina and the Tar Heels closed the gap to two points on a jump shot by Walter Davis.

Neither Coach Carl Tacy of Wake Forest nor Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina saw it hit. But referee Fred Heikel said that it had, and his decision stood.

Brown missed a free throw or Wake's next possession allowing North Carolina's Brad Hoffman to hit a jump shot and send the game into overtime after the regulation 90-90 finish.

Hoffman sent the Tar Heels out front to stay in the overtime when he hit a technical foul shot called on Wake Forest for not coming out to play defense against North Carolina's four-corner delay.

Furman landed a berth in the NCAA tournament by beating William and Mary 66-55 in the Southern Conference championship game. Michael Hall and Craig Lynch each scored 20 points to pace the Paladins to their third straight NCAA playoff berth.

Rutgers, St. John's, Boston College and Holy Cross won games in qualifying tournaments for the NCAA.

Rutgers, the nation's No. 20 team, beat St. Peter's 80-63 and St. John's stopped Seton Hall 76-64 in the Eastern College Athletic Conference's Metropolitan area playoffs in New York. Boston College whipped Connecticut 68-58 and Holy Cross stopped Providence 62-55 to reach Saturday's finals of a similar mini-tournament in Springield, Mass.

Louisville, the Missouri Valley Conference champion, breezed past Dayton 83-67 to finish its regular season with a 24-2 record.

Area Wrestlers Eye State Championships

Chiefs' Pompey Leading Hope

By DAVE DELANEY

Will 13 be a lucky number for southwestern Michigan wrestlers this weekend?

That's the number of chances this area has at winning an individual title at the state tournaments slated for today and Saturday.

Southwestern Michigan sent 54 grapplers into regional competition last weekend, with just 13 making it through the grueling competition and into state tourneys being held at the Class A, B and C levels.

The area has had at least one state champion for the past two seasons. However, defending Class D champ Maurice Jones of Covert was upended in the state finals last Saturday. The senior lost in a first round bout. first round bout.

No southwestern Michigan wrestler could be said to have a lock on a state title this time. However, Dowagiac's Randy Pompey presents the best credentials. The Chiefs' are entered in the Class B event.

"Randy has been to the state tournament twice before," says his coach John Lewis. "He knows what it's all about.

"As a senior he realizes this is his last shot at a title," says Lewis, "and he's working hard for one." Just this week, the 155 pounder vaulted into the No. 1 spot on the area standings for the first time.

"You've got to respect everybody at state," says the Dowagiac coach. "One move can be the difference between first and fourth place."

Jeff VanHusan is the other Dowagiac entry this weekend.

"Maybe Jeff can win it," says Lewis of his 119 pounder. "However at the state tournament we'll take what we can get. A lot of good guys have already been sent home." The top six in each weight class are considered placers.

Other B entries are Lakeshore's Stan Schuck (heavyweight) and Scott Hosnedl (105), Gary Perysian (98) of South Haven and Rod Runyan (155) of Brandywine.

The Class B meet gets going at East Kentwood high school today at noon, with second round bouts slated for 7 that evening. Wrestling starts up again at noon Saturday, with consolation . championships getting underway at 4 followed by the 7:30 p.m. finals.

Niles 126 pounder John Wetmore is the area's lone Class A entry to the state meet being held at Michigan State University today and Saturday.

Six southwestern Michigan grapplers will take part in the Class C tourney at Thornapple-Kellogg high school at Middleville.

Knox' record of 28-7-1 with 11 pins isn't overly impressive, however it doesn't indicate his recent progress.

"Bob has really been coming on strong late in the season," says his coach Tim McCoy of the senior who has logged six straight victories since taking third in the Blossomland conference meet.

"He's really improved on his takedowns," explains McCoy, "and he's getting more aggressive and confident." Edwardsburg hasn't had a regional champ prior to Knox in eight years.

Knox has tuned up for the state meet this week by working out with Pompey and Runyan.

McCoy hopes that his wrestler won't let up now that he's qualified for the prestigous state tourney.

"Lots of times when a kid qualifies for state he lets up because he figures he's already proven himself by being one of the 16 best in the state at his weight," says the coach.

"Bob is one of our captains," says McCoy, "and the kids look up to him and know what he's capable of doing. I hope he wrestles up to his potential."

The other Class C area entrants are second-year wrestler Taylor Lanier (185) of Eau Claire, Rick Ruhl (112) of Berrien Springs, Ron. White (119) of Cassopolis, Brent Robinson (167) of Decatur and Joe Rodriquez (132) of Fennville.

The C tournament times today and Saturday are identical with the Class B event.

NIT Extends First Bids

Four Schools Invited; Big 10 Team Eyed

NEW YORK (AP) — Princeton, Southern Illinois, Oral Roberts and Oregon are in and a lot of other basketball teams are looking to join them in the 38th National Invitation Tournament.

Pete Carlesimo, Fordham's athletic director and the chairman of the NIT's selection committee, announced the first four invitees Thursday. Earlier, the NCAA issued at-large bids to its 32-team event.

Although the NCAA took some clubs the NIT would have liked, including Notre Dame, which always is a big attraction in New York, Carlesimo's committee still has a strong field to choose from for its March 15-23 event, the oldest tourney in the nation.

Oregon, for example, has a 17-8 record and is led by Ron Lee, one of the outstanding guards in the nation. Southern Illionis, 18-8, boasts 6-foot-11 center Joe Meriweather, averaging 20.4 points and 11.4 rebounds per game and among the nation's most heralded big men.

Oral Roberts has the best record of the four invitees, 19-7. Princeton, 18-8 and the runnerup in the Ivy League, has a 50-49 victory over 10th-ranked Penn to its credit and its top scorer bears the imposing name of Barnes Hauptfuhrer.

Then there were those not invited. A number of schools snubbed by the NCAA are more than likely to attract attention from the NIT.

Take South Carolina, for example. The NCAA wouldn't, but chances are the NIT will. The Gamecocks, NCAA participants the past six years, are coached by former New Yorker Frank McGuire, have an 18-8 record and are regular visitors to Madison Square Garden.

Memphis State, 20-6, is another team with an imposing record which was overlooked by the NCAA selection group.

The NIT also is expected to tab at least one team from the Southeastern Conference, most likely Tennessee, which is led by former New York schoolboy stars Ernie Grunfeld and Bernard King; one or two from the Atlantic Coast Conference, which has four nationally ranked clubs in Maryland, North Carolina State, Clemson and North Carolina; one from the Big Ten, where Michigan, Purdue and Minnesota are in a battle for second place, and one from the Big Eight, where Kansas, Missouri and Kansas State are battling for the title.

The NIT also will draw heavily from among Northeastern teams, many of whom are participating in the four ECAC elimination tournaments to determine NCAA representatives.

Oregon will be making its first NIT appearance, Princeton its second and Oral Roberts its third. Southern Illinois won the NIT in 1967, and the Salukis' Walt Frazier was the tourney's Most Valuable Player.

Although some say the expanded NCAA tourney has stolen some glamor from the NIT, Oregon Coach Dick Harter says no.

"There could be 100 teams in the NCAA tournament and it would still be magic playing in the NIT," said Harter. "Anyone who knows about the history of the NIT knows how prestigious it is."

Bulls Get Taste Of Own Medicine

From Associated Press

The Chicago Bulls like to play low scoring games, but Thursday night's visit to Phoenix was another matter entirely.

The Bulls, the top defensive team in the National Basketball Association, got a taste of their own medicine from the Suns, who held Chicago to the lowest total of any team this season in embarrassing the Bulls 88-65.

The Suns, who allow an average of 103.3 points per game, had never given up less than 81 in the history of the franchise, while Chicago had never been held under 77.

When he finally allowed writers in, he said, "I have no excuse—it was terrible basketball. We're lucky we got even that (65 points). I guess someone will say we can't stand the pressure of being in first place."

Kansas City-Omaha, trying to add to that pressure, pulled to within two games of the Bulls in the NBA's Midwest Division by edging the Buffalo Braves 111-110.

Phoenix held Chicago to just eight points in the first quarter and 10 in the third and moved to with one-half game of second-place Seattle in the race for a playoff spot in the NBA's Pacific Division.

Mike Bantom scored 16 points and Curtis Perry added 15 for Phoenix, while Norm Van Lier topped Chicago with

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Milwaukee Bucks beat the Seattle SuperSonics 102-92 and the Atlanta Hawks edged the Golden State Warriors 110-106.

Nate Archibald tossed in a 30-foot bank shot to give the win to KC-Omaha.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar netted 26 points as Milwaukee moved within one game of the Detroit Pistons in the battle for the wild card playoff berth in the NBA's Western Conference.

Ecorse Ace Ousts Milan

SALINE, Mich. (AP) — Giant-killing Ecorse High School, sparked by sharp-shooting Charles Gober, knocked off Milan 75-73 in overtime Thursday to advance in the state high school basketball regional tourney.

Gober, whose 40-foot shot at the buzzer sent the class's No. 1 team, River Rouge, down to defeat 1st week, hit an 18-foot jump shot against Milan to gain the victory. Milan had been ranked second behind River Rouge in the final Associated Press basketball poll.

Gober, who hit 18 points in the contests, netted the last eight points for his team, led by 22 points from Jerry Doyle.

The loss was only the second of the year against 22 victories for Milan, led by Stan Joplin's 24 points. Ecorse is 17-6.

Bulls Get Taste Of Own Medicine

From Associated Press

The Chicago Bulls like to play low scoring games, but Thursday night's visit to Phoenix was another matter entirely.

The Bulls, the top defensive team in the National Basketball Association, got a taste of their own medicine from the Suns, who held Chicago to the lowest total of any team this season in embarrassing the Bulls 88-65.

The Suns, who allow an average of 103.3 points per game, had never given up less than 81 in the history of the franchise, while Chicago had never been held under 77.

When he finally allowed writers in, he said, "I have no excuse—it was terrible basketball. We're lucky we got even that (65 points). I guess someone will say we can't stand the pressure of being in first place."

Kansas City-Omaha, trying to add to that pressure, pulled to within two games of the Bulls in the NBA's Midwest Division by edging the Buffalo Braves 111-110.

Phoenix held Chicago to just eight points in the first quarter and 10 in the third and moved to with one-half game of second-place Seattle in the race for a playoff spot in the NBA's Pacific Division.

Mike Bantom scored 16 points and Curtis Perry added 15 for Phoenix, while Norm Van Lier topped Chicago with

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Milwaukee Bucks beat the Seattle SuperSonics 102-92 and the Atlanta Hawks edged the Golden State Warriors 110-106.

Nate Archibald tossed in a 30-foot bank shot to give the win to KC-Omaha.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar netted 26 points as Milwaukee moved within one game of the Detroit Pistons in the battle for the wild card playoff berth in the NBA's Western Conference.

Ecorse Ace Ousts Milan

SALINE, Mich. (AP) — Giant-killing Ecorse High School, sparked by sharp-shooting Charles Gober, knocked off Milan 75-73 in overtime Thursday to advance in the state high school basketball regional tourney.

Gober, whose 40-foot shot at the buzzer sent the class's No. 1 team, River Rouge, down to defeat lst week, hit an 18-foot jump shot against Milan to gain the victory. Milan had been ranked second behind River Rouge in the final Associated Press basketball poll.

Gober, who hit 18 points in the contests, netted the last eight points for his team, led by 22 points from Jerry Doyle.

The loss was only the second of the year against 22 victories for Milan, led by Stan Joplin's 24 points. Ecorse is 17-6.

NIT Extends First Bids

Four Schools Invited; Big 10 Team Eyed

NEW YORK (AP) — Princeton, Southern Illinois, Oral Roberts and Oregon are in and a lot of other basketball teams are looking to join them in the 38th National Invitation Tournament.

Pete Carlesimo, Fordham's athletic director and the chairman of the NIT's selection committee, announced the first four invitees Thursday. Earlier, the NCAA issued at-large bids to its 32-team event.

Although the NCAA took some clubs the NIT would have liked, including Notre Dame, which always is a big attraction in New York, Carlesimo's committee still has a strong field to choose from for its March 15-23 event, the oldest tourney in the nation.

Oregon, for example, has a 17-8 record and is led by Ron Lee, one of the outstanding guards in the nation. Southern Illionis, 18-8, boasts 6-foot-11 center Joe Meriweather, averaging 20.4 points and 11.4 rebounds per game and among the nation's most heralded big men.

Oral Roberts has the best record of the four invitees, 19-7. Princeton, 18-8 and the runnerup in the Ivy League, has a 50-49 victory over 10th-ranked Penn to its credit and its top scorer bears the imposing name of Barnes Hauptfuhrer.

Then there were those not invited. A number of schools snubbed by the NCAA are more than likely to attract attention from the NIT.

Take South Carolina, for example. The NCAA wouldn't, but chances are the NIT will. The Gamecocks, NCAA participants the past six years, are coached by former New Yorker Frank McGuire, have an 18-8 record and are regular visitors to Madison Square Garden.

Memphis State, 20-6, is another team with an imposing record which was overlooked by the NCAA selection group.

The NIT also is expected to tab at least one team from the Southeastern Conference, most likely Tennessee, which is led by former New York schoolboy stars Ernie Grunfeld and Bernard King; one or two from the Atlantic Coast Conference, which has four nationally ranked clubs in Maryland, North Carolina State, Clemson and North Carolina; one from the Big Ten, where Michigan, Purdue and Minnesota are in a battle for second place, and one from the Big Eight, where Kansas, Missouri and Kansas State are battling for the title.

The NIT also will draw heavily from among Northeastern teams, many of whom are participating in the four ECAC elimination tournaments to determine NCAA representatives.

Oregon will be making its first NIT appearance, Princeton its second and Oral Roberts its third. Southern Illinois won the NIT in 1967, and the Salukis' Walt Frazier was the tourney's Most Valuable Player.

Although some say the expanded NCAA tourney has stolen some glamor from the NIT, Oregon Coach Dick Harter says no.

"There could be 100 teams in the NCAA tournament and it would still be magic playing in the NIT," said Harter. "Anyone who knows about the history of the NIT knows how prestigious it is."

Ullig Rolls Second-Best Men's Series

Martin, Hersh Continue 600 Binge

By JERRY DYKSTRA
Staff Sports Writer

Ruby rolled a career-high 658 series for her fourth 600 of the season while Barb bowled a 638 for her sixth 600, the most in the area.

The 658 is the second highest women's series of the year while the 638 moves Barb into third place in the standings.

On the men's side, Brad Ullig lofted his first 700 ever with a 721, the second best men's 700 series of the season.

Ruby, who along with Barb smashed 256 games in their 600 series, added games of 200 and 202 while bowling Monday night in the Unpredictables league at Wil-O-Paw Lanes.

"I am definitely proud and thrilled at the 658," commented Ruby, who carries averages of 180 and 177 in two leagues. "I left the 3-7 split in the ninth frame of my last game otherwise I could have gotten higher.

"It sure has been a good year so far...and I hope to go on even further."

Ruby earlier fired a 265 game—tops in the area—and 600 series of 610, 627 and 638.

Barb, the 600 leader the past two years, appears on her way to another crown after spilling the 638 as a sub in the Wednesday Night Ladies league at Gersonde's. Barb had previous 600 series of 604, 605, 611, 609 and 600.

Barb, who had games of 225-202-211 for the 638, belted the 256 in the Sunday Night Six O'Clock Mixed league at Gersonde's. The 256, her final game, included six strikes in a row. Previous games of 179 and 148 denied her a 600 as she finished with 583.

The 256 elevates Barb, who supports averages of 181, 180 and 177, into second spot in the high games standings.

Barb and Ruby have accounted for 10 of the 31 women's 600 series notched so far this season.

Ullig shot the fourth 700 series in 19 days at Blossom Lanes with the 721, the 13th of the season in southwestern Michigan.

Ullig, bowling Monday night in the Junior Classic league, rifled games of 268-209-244. He chalked up seven strikes in a row in the 268 and then cracked the 700 barrier with five straight X's in his last game.

"The ball seemed to be moving real nice," noted Ullig, 24, a product of the junior bowling program at Blossom. "You better believe it was a big thrill...it was a long time coming."

The St. Joe bowler, who throws a big curve from the corner, is averaging 184 in two leagues and 178 in a third.

Coloma took first place honors in the final Inter-High School league standings. Lake Michigan was second followed by Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Lakeshore, Eau Claire, Berrien Springs and Academy.

Kelly Weaver of Benton Harbor was the league's MVP while Tim Sammons finished with the boys' high average of 171 and Mary Beth Kolberg the top girls' average of 157. Sammons and Mark Owens tied for high series with 626 and John Lee had high boys' game of 257. For the girls, Cassandra Ballard flung a season-high series of 551 while Linda Wirth had high game of 213.

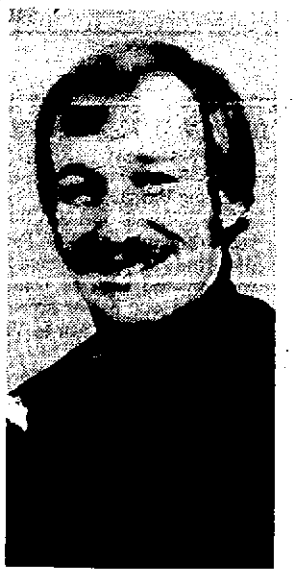

Karri Gersonde, 12, daughter of Karl Gersonde of Gersonde's Recreation, socked a 508 series and 220 game last Saturday in the Bantams league at Gersonde's. She carries a 128 average in the league.

Jeff Butterworth of Niles took over second place in handicap all events last weekend in the Michigan State Men's bowling tournament at Allen Park. He ended with 2071. The Westlawn Lanes team of Lansing captured first in team actual standings with 2953 while Dyer Ryan Construction Co., also from Lansing, took second with 2950.

There were four triplicates this week with Euc Faneuf leading the way with his 480. Rick Harris added three games of 168, Carol Piaskowski 138 and prep bowler Kelly Poore 134.

Shirley Franz and Marla Mashak earned Century patches with games of 246 (100 pins over her average) and 245 (111 pins over her average), respectively.

Split conversions included the 6-7-10 by Alice Wofford, Walter Kiggins, Vivian McFall, John Sturtevant and Ray Marquart; the 6-7 by Nancy Bender, Rose Black, Rose Kelly, Rita Briney, Jerry Price, Judy Clark, Bill Butts and Shirley Akright; the 4-7-10 by Mark Wakefield and Al Levin; the 4-10 by Sharon Mack and Oscar Knuth; the 7-8-10 by Lucy Postelli; the 7-9-10 by Art Sonnenberg and the 7-9 by Holly Mast.

Aussies Nab Tennis Lead

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Laver dropped the first set, then came back to beat the 24-year-old Stockton 5-7, 6-4, 7-6 Thursday night.

Stockton grabbed a 3-0 lead in the third set, and the 36-year-old Laver conceded that at that point, "I was a little worried."

But he held service, broke Stockton's and then held again to draw even at 3-3. Games then went with service, forcing a 13-point tiebreaker. Laver won that 7-6 by hitting what he described as "a perfect lob" to Stockton's backhand which was returned weakly, setting up a Laver smash.

Kodes never was in trouble in his quarter-final match against Adriano Panatta of Italy, beating him 6-3, 6-4 Thursday, while the 24-year-old Hrebec needed just 47 minutes to put away Hans Pohmann of West Germany 6-0 6-2.

Hrebec today faces Brian Fairlie of New Zealand, who made the semifinals by beating Yugoslavia's Nikki Pilic 6-3, 6-4. Kodes' opponent is Britain's Mark Cox, who coasted past Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia 6-3, 6-0 in the other quarter-final.

The tournament is being played for a team as well as an individual title, with players from eight nations and all three groups of the World Championship Tennis circuit competing.

In the $75,000 U.S. women's indoor championships in Boston, only one of the four semifinal berths belongs to an American. That's Chris Evert, who beat Julie Heldman 6-0, 6-3 in a Thursday quarter-final.

Among the spectators was Jimmy Connors, who said he took a week off from the men's tour in order to see Chris play. The two had been engaged, but marriage plans were broken off recently.

The couple met shortly after Miss Evert's match in one of the dressing rooms while tournament officials kept photographers outside. They left separately, refusing to pose together for pictures.

The other semifinalists are Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia, who edged Briatin's Virginia Wade 6-2, 1-6, 7-5; Australia's Evonne Goolagong, who whipped Russia's Olga Morozova 7-6, 6-4, and Australia's Margaret Court topped countrywoman Helen Gourlay 6-1, 7-5.

In the $15,000 Shreveport International tourney, second-seeded Juan Gisbert of Spain slipped past Ernie Ewert of Australia 7-6, 7-5.

Machine Gets 3-0 'Victory'

Five Games Today Open Exhibition Season

From Associated Press

The pitchers are ahead of the hitters. Shucks, the hitters aren't even ahead of the pitching machines.

In an intrasquad game Thursday at the St. Louis Cardinals' spring training camp, the George Kissells defeated the Vern Bensons 3-0. Ron Fairly drove in two runs with a homer and single and Luis Melendez, Ted Sizemore and Jim Dwyer had two hits each.

"Iron Mike," the club's pitching machine, yielded 10 hits to the Kissells and only four to the Bensons.

The machine, programmed to throw strikes, began throwing beanballs instead. Darrel Chaney was hit on the left arm when he threw it up to protect his head and Ken Griffey was hit on the right hand. Both players were treated with ice packs and continued practice.

The batters stop facing machines today and starting hitting against live pitching when the exhibition season gets under way with five games.

In the only games matching two major league teams, the New York Yankees face a split squad of Texas Rangers at Pompano Beach, Fla., and the Boston Red Sox meet the Detroit Tigers at Winter Haven, Fla.

Perhaps the most interesting development of the first day's exhibitions will be outfielder Roy White's debut at first base for the Yankees. The Yanks are trying to keep left fielder-designated hitter White in the lineup, but Lou Piniella won the left field job last spring and Ron Blomberg will be the DH, at least against right-handed pitching.

On the salary scene, the Montreal Expos renewed the contract of holdout Dave McNally, the left-handed pitcher acquired in an off-season swap with the Baltimore Orioles. McNally, the only unsigned Expo, reportedly was seeking a boost from the $120,000 he made with the Orioles to $150,000.

General Manager Jim Fanning said the club took its action—which means McNally must play for last year's salary—in compliance with baseball regulations after "exhaustive efforts to satisfy Dave have failed."

three consecutive times down low at the start of the third period while again opening up an 11-point advantage at 44-33. "He wasn't hitting from outside....that's what we had to do," recalled Schilling.

But the Wildcats couldn't capitalize further on that bit of strategy. They ended up going scoreless the final 4:39 of the period, with Buchanan getting eight unanswered points, including four by McGuirt, to trail by just 44-41 going into the last stanza.

The Bucks again posted three one-point leads, the last at 51-50 on McGuirt's bucket with 5:22 left, before Jackson, who matched Garrett with 10 points the final frame, put Albion on top for good.

"They have a fine team...they could take it all," concluded Wilson. "By the same token, we could have, too."

Buchanan will get another chance next year when it returns four of its first six players.

Benton Harbor and Hartford split in girls' volleyball Thursday.

Val Joseph scored eight points for the Benton Harbor jayvees who notched two 15-9 victories. Sue Johnson had five points for Hartford.

Kings Still Can't Defeat Islanders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings have had their troubles with the New York Islanders this season. They have beaten every team in the National Hockey League with the exception of the Islanders.

The teams played a 2-2 tie Thursday night in the only league action. In four meetings this season, three games have ended in ties with New York winning the other game.

The tie also cost Los Angeles a chance to gain further ground on first-place Montreal in Division 3. The Canadiens lead the runner-up Kings by three points.

The game also was costly in other ways for Los Angeles, which lost the services of center Butch Goring, who underwent surgery for a facial injury early today after being injured Thursday night.

A nursing supervisor at Century City Hospital said Goring, the Kings' leading goal scorer with 27, would "probably not play hockey for a little while."

Goring suffered severe lacerations under his eye when he fell on the heel of the skate of the Islanders' Dennis Potvin. He was taken to the hospital for X rays.

The Islanders moved to within four points of the New York Rangers in their battle for second place in Division 1.

Los Angeles took a 2-1 lead at 6:08 of the third period when Danny Maloney drilled his 24th goal of the season, a 15-footer, past goalie Billy Smith.

Defenseman Bob Murdoch tied it for Los Angeles at the 16-minute mark of the first period when he blasted a 30-foot slap shot for his 11th goal of the season to tie a club record for goals by a defenseman.

An apparent goal by Clark Gilles was disallowed by referee Wally Harris with 7:19 left in the first period when a teammate was ruled to be in the crease.

Top Rebounder

Carnegie, a 6-7 freshman, also averaged 10.4 points with a high game of 25 points against Kalamazoo Valley Community College. He had 19 rebounds in a 79-67 overtime victory over Toledo.

Britts Is Back

EDMONTON, Alta. (AP) — Linebacker Sam Britts, who defected to the World Football League after an outstanding rookie year with the Edmonton Eskimos, has returned to the Canadian Football League.

The Eskimos announced that Britts, a 25-year-old import, has signed a three-year contract and will report to training camp in June.

Ullig Rolls Second-Best Men's Series

Martin, Hersh Continue 600 Binge

By JERRY DYKSTRA
Staff Sports Writer

Ruby rolled a career-high 658 series for her fourth 600 of the season while Barb bowled a 638 for her sixth 600, the most in the area.

The 658 is the second highest women's series of the year while the 638 moves Barb into third place in the standings.

On the men's side, Brad Ullig lofted his first 700 ever with a 721, the second best men's 700 series of the season.

Ruby, who along with Barb smashed 256 games in their 600 series, added games of 200 and 202 while bowling Monday night in the Unpredictables league at Wil-O-Paw Lanes.

"I am definitely proud and thrilled at the 658," commented Ruby, who carries averages of 180 and 177 in two leagues. "I left the 3-7 split in the ninth frame of my last game otherwise I could have gotten higher.

"It sure has been a good year so far...and I hope to go on even further."

Ruby earlier fired a 265 game—tops in the area—and 600 series of 610, 627 and 638.

Barb, the 600 leader the past two years, appears on her way to another crown after spilling the 638 as a sub in the Wednesday Night Ladies league at Gersonde's. Barb had previous 600 series of 604, 605, 611, 609 and 600.

Barb, who had games of 225-202-211 for the 638, belted the 256 in the Sunday Night Six O'Clock Mixed league at Gersonde's. The 256, her final game, included six strikes in a row. Previous games of 179 and 148 denied her a 600 as she finished with 583.

The 256 elevates Barb, who supports averages of 181, 180 and 177, into second spot in the high games standings.

Barb and Ruby have accounted for 10 of the 31 women's 600 series notched so far this season.

Ullig shot the fourth 700 series in 19 days at Blossom Lanes with the 721, the 13th of the season in southwestern Michigan.

Ullig, bowling Monday night in the Junior Classic league, rifled games of 268-209-244. He chalked up seven strikes in a row in the 268 and then cracked the 700 barrier with five straight X's in his last game.

"The ball seemed to be moving real nice," noted Ullig, 24, a product of the junior bowling program at Blossom. "You better believe it was a big thrill...it was a long time coming."

The St. Joe bowler, who throws a big curve from the corner, is averaging 184 in two leagues and 178 in a third.

Coloma took first place honors in the final Inter-High School league standings. Lake Michigan was second followed by Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Lakeshore, Eau Claire, Berrien Springs and Academy.

Kelly Weaver of Benton Harbor was the league's MVP while Tim Sammons finished with the boys' high average of 171 and Mary Beth Kolberg the top girls' average of 157. Sammons and Mark Owens tied for high series with 626 and John Lee had high boys' game of 257. For the girls, Cassandra Ballard flung a season-high series of 551 while Linda Wirth had high game of 213.

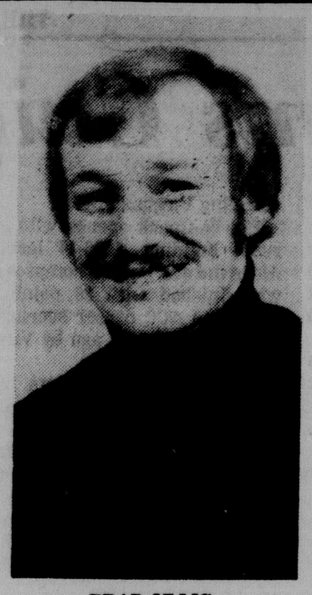

Karri Gersonde, 12, daughter of Karl Gersonde of Gersonde's Recreation, socked a 508 series and 220 game last Saturday in the Bantams league at Gersonde's. She carries a 128 average in the league.

Jeff Butterworth of Niles took over second place in handicap all events last weekend in the Michigan State Men's bowling tournament at Allen Park. He ended with 2071. The Westlawn Lanes team of Lansing captured first in team actual standings with 2953 while Dyer Ryan Construction Co., also from Lansing, took second with 2950.

There were four triplicates this week with Euc Faneuf leading the way with his 780. Rick Harris added three games of 168, Carol Piaskowski 138 and prep bowler Kelly Poore 134.

Shirley Franz and Marla Mashak earned Century patches with games of 246 (100 pins over her average) and 245 (111 pins over her average), respectively.

Split conversions included the 6-7-10 by Alice Wofford, Walter Kiggins, Vivian McFall, John Sturtevant and Ray Marquart; the 6-7 by Nancy Bender, Rose Black, Rose Kelly, Rita Briney, Jerry Price, Judy Clark, Bill Butts and Shirley Akright; the 4-7-10 by Mark Wakefield and Al Levin; the 4-10 by Sharon Mack and Oscar Knuth; the 7-8-10 by Lucy Postelli; the 7-9-10 by Art Sonnenberg and the 7-9 by Holly Mast.

Aussies Nab Tennis Lead

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Laver dropped the first set, then came back to beat the 24-year-old Stockton 5-7, 6-4, 7-6 Thursday night.

Stockton grabbed a 3-0 lead in the third set, and the 36-year-old Laver conceded that at that point, "I was a little worried."

But he held service, broke Stockton's and then held again to draw even at 3-3. Games then went with service, forcing a 13-point tiebreaker. Laver won that 7-6 by hitting what he described as "a perfect lob" to Stockton's backhand which was returned weakly, setting up a Laver smash.

Kodes never was in trouble in his quarter-final match against Adriano Panatta of Italy, beating him 6-3, 6-4 Thursday, while the 24-year-old Hrebec needed just 47 minutes to put away Hans Pohmann of West Germany 6-0 6-2.

Hrebec today faces Brian Fairlie of New Zealand, who made the semifinals by beating Yugoslavia's Nikki Pilic 6-3, 6-4. Kodes' opponent is Britain's Mark Cox, who coasted past Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia 6-3, 6-0 in the other quarter-final.

The tournament is being played for a team as well as an individual title, with players from eight nations and all three groups of the World Championship Tennis circuit competing.

In the $75,000 U.S. women's indoor championships in Boston, only one of the four semifinal berths belongs to an American. That's Chris Evert, who beat Julie Heldman 6-0, 6-3 in a Thursday quarter-final.

Among the spectators was Jimmy Connors, who said he took a week off from the men's tour in order to see Chris play. The two had been engaged, but marriage plans were broken off recently.

The couple met shortly after Miss Evert's match in one of the dressing rooms while tournament officials kept photographers outside. They left separately, refusing to pose together for pictures.

The other semifinalists are Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia, who edged Briatin's Virginia Wade 6-2, 1-6, 7-5; Australia's Evonne Goolagong, who whipped Russia's Olga Morozova 7-6, 6-4, and Australia's Margaret Court topped countrywoman Helen Gourlay 6-1, 7-5.

In the $15,000 Shreveport International tourney, second-seeded Juan Gisbert of Spain slipped past Ernie Ewert of Australia 7-6, 7-5.

Machine Gets 3-0 'Victory'

Five Games Today Open Exhibition Season

From Associated Press

The pitchers are ahead of the hitters. Shucks, the hitters aren't even ahead of the pitching machines.

In an intrasquad game Thursday at the St. Louis Cardinals' spring training camp, the George Kissells defeated the Vern Bensons 3-0. Ron Fairly drove in two runs with a homer and single and Luis Melendez, Ted Sizemore and Jim Dwyer had two hits each.

"Iron Mike," the club's pitching machine, yielded 10 hits to the Kissells and only four to the Bensons.

The machine, programmed to throw strikes, began throwing beanballs instead. Darrel Chaney was hit on the left arm when he threw it up to protect his head and Ken Griffey was hit on the right hand. Both players were treated with ice packs and continued practice.

The batters stop facing machines today and starting hitting against live pitching when the exhibition season gets under way with five games.

On the salary scene, the Montreal Expos renewed the contract of holdout Dave McNally, the left-handed pitcher acquired in an off-season swap with the Baltimore Orioles. McNally, the only unsigned Expo, reportedly was seeking a boost from the $120,000 he made with the Orioles to $150,000.

General Manager Jim Fanning said the club took its action—which means McNally must play for last year's salary—in compliance with baseball regulations after "exhaustive efforts to satisfy Dave have failed."

three consecutive times down low at the start of the third period while again opening up an 11-point advantage at 44-33. "He wasn't hitting from outside....that's what we had to do," recalled Schilling.

But the Wildcats couldn't captalize further on that bit of strategy. They ended up going scoreless the final 4:39 of the period, with Buchanan getting eight unanswered points, including four by McGuirt, to trail by just 44-41 going into the last stanza.

"They have a fine team...they could take it all," concluded Wilson. "By the same token, we could have, too."

Buchanan will get another chance next year when it returns four of its first six players.

Kings Still Can't Defeat Islanders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings have had their troubles with the New York Islanders this season. They have beaten every team in the National Hockey League with the exception of the Islanders.

The teams played a 2-2 tie Thursday night in the only league action. In four meetings this season, three games have ended in ties with New York winning the other game.

The tie also cost Los Angeles a chance to gain further ground on first-place Montreal in Division 3. The Canadiens lead the runner-up Kings by three points.

The game also was costly in other ways for Los Angeles, which lost the services of center Butch Goring, who underwent surgery for a facial injury early today after being injured Thursday night.

A nursing supervisor at Century City Hospital said Goring, the Kings' leading goal scorer with 27, would "probably not play hockey for a little while."

Goring suffered severe lacerations under his eye when he fell on the heel of the skate of the Islanders' Dennis Potvin. He was taken to the hospital for X rays.

The Islanders moved to within four points of the New York Rangers in their battle for second place in Division 1.

Los Angeles took a 2-1 lead at 6:08 of the third period when Danny Maloney drilled his 24th goal of the season, a 15-footer, past goalie Billy Smith.

Defenseman Bob Murdoch tied it for Los Angeles at the 16-minute mark of the first period when he blasted a 30-foot slap shot for his 11th goal of the season to tie a club record for goals by a defenseman.

An apparent goal by Clark Gilles was disallowed by referee Wally Harris with 7:19 left in the first period when a teammate was ruled to be in the crease.

Top Rebounder

Carnegie, a 6-7 freshman, also averaged 10.4 points with a high game of 25 points against Kalamazoo Valley Community College. He had 19 rebounds in a 70-67 overtime victory over Toledo.

Britts Is Back

EDMONTON, Alta. (AP) — Linebacker Sam Britts, who defected to the World Football League after an outstanding rookie year with the Edmonton Eskimos, has returned to the Canadian Football League.

The Eskimos announced that Britts, a 25-year-old import, has signed a three-year contract and will report to training camp in June.

New Business Reference Books Added By Library

Maud Preston Palenske Memorial library, St. Joseph, has recently acquired an extensive set of business reference books to aid businessmen, job hunters and investors.

Librarian Anne Stobbe said among the new reference books are the Moody publications on business, industry, public utilities and transportation. In addition the library has manuals on stocks, bonds and investments.

The new reference books and services cost nearly $1,000, Miss Stobbe said. The books and services permit researchers to trace the history of a company, its financial statements, names of company officials, subsidiaries and information on its stocks and bonds. The information is especially helpful for new college graduates seeking information on industries they are contacting for jobs.

Moody's Bank and Finance manual has information on 9,700 national, state and private banks, insurance companies, mutual funds and other financial firms. The Moody Transportation manual lists information on 1,000 canal, pipeline, tunnel and bridge companies as well as conventional air, truck, rail and bus companies.

Included in the Moody services are are weekly publication of key investment opportunities, bond action and background information on 2,500 stocks.

The library recently installed new shelving increasing capacity of books by 2,000.

Ex-Millionaire Doesn't Have A Dollar Left

NEW YORK (AP) — Michele Sindona's international banking, industrial and real estate empire was estimated at $450 million just one year ago. Now the controversial Italian financier says he has "not one dollar in assets" left.

"I have nothing left, zero. The Italian government has sequestered everything," ays the 54-year-old, Sicilian-born Sindona. His comments came in an interview with The Associated Press about the spectacular rise and fall of his empire and his current financial and legal difficulties.

"Right now I live on the charity of friends," he said, "in return they ask me for advice, and I give it to them. They want to show me I'm not a beggar."

Sindona, a reclusive man, was forced into the public eye by the failure of his banks in Rome, Milan, Hamburg, Geneva as well as the Franklin National Bank in New York.

In a small, unmarked suite of offices in the Franklin building, Sindona talked in rapid-fire English and Italian about rising from a Sicilian farm family to a position in international finance where he bought and sold large companies almost at will.

"I can't believe what has happened," Sindona said. "My son can't believe it. My friends can't believe it. They say I must be stupid. If being stupid means not setting aside some money somewhere safe, then I am stupid. I have nothing stored away."

Faced with an extradition request from the Italian authorities and a civil suit here alleging fraud in the Franklin failure, Sindona said he has put his future in the hands of his attorneys, from former President Richard M. Nixon's old law firm. He says he will focus his attention, perhaps in book form, on the people and events he said brought him down.

Sindona said that if he gets a fair hearing he will be cleared of all charges here and in Italy.

—He denied charges, reportedly being investigated by authorities in Milan, that he bribed Italian politicians to obtain illegal favors. "I am the only man in Italy who never gave money to the politicians," he said.

—He denied having anything to do with foreign exchange dealings at any of his banks. "I never did a foreign exchange contract in my life. Never," he said. Part of Franklin's troubles were said to involve foreign exchange dealings.

—He denied he wanted anything in return for his $1 million offer to the Nixon re-election campaign other than "sympathy for Italy's problems." He said that at the advice of his attorneys, Mudge, Rose, Guthrie and Alexander, he would not discuss the matter further.

MICHELE SINDONA
He has nothing left

The first time I read the story, I couldn't believe my eyes. A history professor at the City University of New York (C.U.N.Y.) was accused of defaming his colleagues, and a move was underway to have the faculty censure him. I knew none of the facts in the case and have no interest in exploring what Professor Stanley W. Page was saying to his fellow historians. The point is that to ban defamation of colleagues from a university campus would be comparable to banning beer in Bavaria. It is occupational therapy for academicians.

Having been verbally scourged by two Presidents of the United States at one time or another (surviving with my ego intact), I have never lost much sleep worrying what my colleagues thought of me. (Except, perhaps, when one of them called at 2 a.m. in a fury to "defame" another and ask my agreement. We put an end to that by attaching the bedroom phone to a jack and unplugging it at night!)

As Professor Page's case wandered along, I began to wonder what the institutional implications would be of a guilty verdict. (Ultimately, the C.U.N.Y. faculty senate refused to censure him, perhaps because a majority of its members had a moment of truth and realized that, if Page were convicted, they would be meeting in constant session for the rest of time adjudicating other alleged defamations.) Moreover, what kind of evidential standards could be brought to bear?

I suppose that if one professor said, in a word, that another was of illegitimate birth, the latter could haul out his birth certificate. But when it comes down to intellectual disagreements, any juridical process must wind up in a subjective bog. And intellectual disagreements cover a wide range of practical issues. Let us take as a case in point the teaching procedures used by a professor. In teaching constitutional history, for example, I expect the students to read the cases — mere facts are vital — but I would never dream of examining them on the intricacies of litigation. To the best of my ability I try to help them formulate analytical propositions and design my tests to that end. They can always go to a law library and dig out the cases if they know what they are looking for and why. Similarly I never assigned long research papers to undergraduates (except in honors programs), because inevitably the end product would be plagiarism tempered by footnotes.

For this I have on occasion been denounced ("defamed?") as insufficiently "rigorous," both by nervous undergraduates (who want an exact road map) and by colleagues (who don't share my view that the purpose of an education is to graduate students who in 10 years won't remember one detail of a course but will be able to make harbor on their own). Maybe the critics are right, but I am going to go on teaching exactly the way I have for the past quarter of a century: Anyone who is uptight doesn't have to take any courses. I also retain the right of reply — the right, for instance, to say that "radical economics" is intellectual gibberish taught by individuals who would fail a fundamental course on Marxism.

This kind of criticism-"defamation" goes on all the time, and I am prepared to argue that it is a healthy thing, a source of stimulation. Of course, it does spill over into personalities: Ideas don't wander around campus like fog patches; they are held by human beings. The essential quality of an academic universe is precisely that everyone is hired to "do his own thing." The characters involved, if they believe strongly in their ideas, are bound to get like a bunch of porcupines. (This is why the concept of a faculty-run university invites disaster — as Aristotle noted, it is impossible to build a community around "doing your own thing.")

Under these circumstances the background music is bound to be defamatory, and the thought of muzzling the defamers (annoying as they can be) runs quite contrary to the spirit of academic freedom. I don't know whether I would agree with Professor Page or consider him an egregious idiot, but I am glad the faculty senate at C.U.N.Y. dropped the effort at censure. The technique could become addictive and suffocating.

The first time I read the story, I couldn't believe my eyes. Ex-Millionaire Doesn't Have A Dollar Left

NEW YORK (AP) — Michele Sindona's international banking, industrial and real estate empire was estimated at $450 million just one year ago. Now the controversial Italian financier says he has "not one dollar in assets" left.

"I have nothing left, zero. The Italian government has sequestered everything," ays the 54-year-old, Sicilian-born Sindona. His comments came in an interview with The Associated Press about the spectacular rise and fall of his empire and his current financial and legal difficulties.

"Right now I live on the charity of friends," he said. "In return they ask me for advice, and I give it to them. They want to show me I'm not a beggar."

Sindona, a reclusive man, was forced into the public eye by the failure of his banks in Rome, Milan, Hamburg, Geneva as well as the Franklin National Bank in New York.

In a small, unmarked suite of offices in the Franklin building, Sindona talked in rapid-fire English and Italian about rising from a Sicilian farm family to a position in international finance where he bought and sold large companies almost at will.

"I can't believe what has happened," Sindona said. "My son can't believe it. My friends can't believe it. They say I must be stupid. If being stupid means not setting aside some money somewhere safe, then I am stupid. I have nothing stored away."

Faced with an extradition request from the Italian authorities and a civil suit here alleging fraud in the Franklin failure, Sindona said he has put his future in the hands of his attorneys, from former President Richard M. Nixon's old law firm. He says he will focus his attention, perhaps in book form, on the people and events he said brought him down.

Sindona said that if he gets a fair hearing he will be cleared of all charges here and in Italy.

—He denied charges, reportedly being investigated by authorities in Milan, that he bribed Italian politicians to obtain illegal favors. "I am the only man in Italy who never gave money to the politicians," he said.

—He denied having anything to do with foreign exchange dealings at any of his banks. "I never did a foreign exchange contract in my life. Never," he said. Part of Franklin's troubles were said to involve foreign exchange dealings.

—He denied he wanted anything in return for his $1 million offer to the Nixon re-election campaign other than "sympathy for Italy's problems." He said that at the advice of his attorneys, Mudge, Rose, Guthrie and Alexander, he would not discuss the matter further.

'Student A-Bomb' Special Sunday

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Last month, NBC aired a news special which inclued a study of whether terrorist groups could steal nuclear weapons or filch enough plutonium to make their own crude A-bombs.

On Sunday, public TV's "Nova" series continues the doom watch.

In an already much-publicized opening segment, it shows how an unidentified college chemistry student, using unclassified information, designs — but doesn't actually build — a crude A-bomb in five weeks.

But could the thing work? The show doesn't offer any more scientific comment on the student's plan than the "maybe" of a Swedish Ministry of Defense scientist who examined the youth's design.

The student is portrayed by an actor — the show doesn't make this very clear — because the real life student says he fears he'd be kidnapped and pressured for his plans by a terrorist group, were his name and face known.

The student project was to test the claim of Theodore Taylor, a nuclear weapons critic, that anyone with a decent science background now can design a crude A-bomb, using unclassified data anyone can get.

Many scientists for some time have said this is possible.

But it's been said loudest by Taylor, who appeared on NBC's nuclear show and is in this one. He worked for the government in the early 1950s on the design of smaller and more powerful nuclear weapons.

His warnings about the ease of do-it-yourself A-bomb design first came in 1973 in several now-famous "New Yorker" magazine interviews currently in book form as "The Binding Curve of Energy."

Despite the hoopla given the student A-bomb in Sunday's "Nova" show, the real chiller lies in the program's study of what government safeguards exist to prevent plutonium — which makes A-bombs go boom — from falling into the hands of potential nuclear blackmailers.

It hears from various experts on the possibility of undetected plutonium pilferage at plants, hijacking of plutonium shipments and even commandotype raids on federal and private nuclear facilities.

And the overwhelming impression they leave is that while none of this has happened yet, it may very well occur someday simply because of the spread of nuclear energy use both in the United States and abroad.

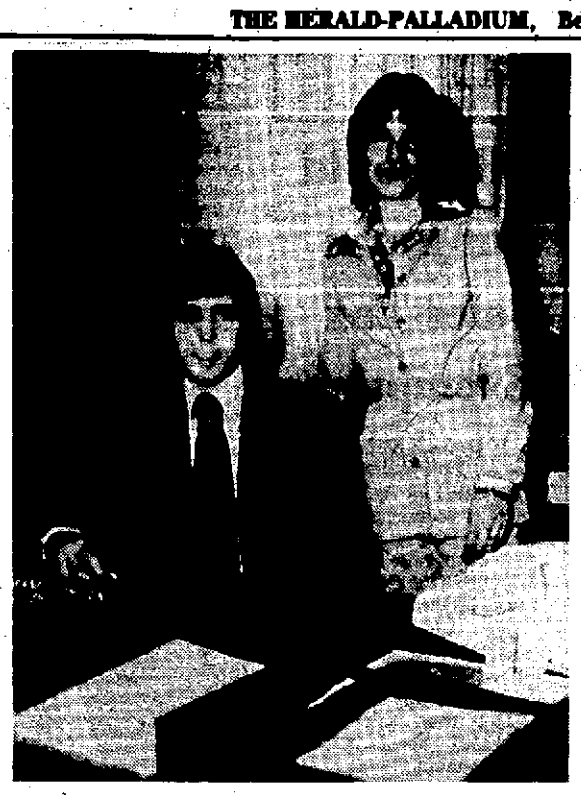

Taylor, who says calling for a moratorium in nuclear power development or a complete halt to it would be just "whistling in the wind," later adds:

"We've got very few years to get this problem (of potential A-bomb use by terrorists) under control. If we don't do much more than what we're doing today or even planning ... within the next five or six years I think there's a very good chance the problem will be permanently out of control."

Neither he nor the show propose ways of getting the problem under control. But I do. I propose booking myself passage to Pitcairn Island and awaiting developments in this matter with great interest.

Mike Conners And His Kitchen

This week Family Weekly did some amateur sleuthing of its own into the private life of Mike Connorss, better known as private eye Joe Mannix. We found out one of the secrets of good cooking from America's favorite detective. When Mike isn't dieting, as many stars must, he treats himself to two of the Connors' favorite dishes (Beef Stroganoff and Caramel Flan), which he kindly shares with us (with a little culinary assistance from wife Mary). You'll also find out what makes Mike Connors so different from his screen image. Also, be sure not to miss Food Editor Marilyn Hansen's "Smart Cooking for Tired Cooks" column.

But could the thing work? The show doesn't offer any more scientific comment on the student's plan than the "maybe" of a Swedish Ministry of Defense scientist who examined the youth's design.

The student is portrayed by an actor — the show doesn't make this very clear — because the real life student says he fears he'd be kidnapped and pressured for his plans by a terrorist group, were his name and face known.

The student project was to test the claim of Theodore Taylor, a nuclear weapons critic, that anyone with a decent science background now can design a crude A-bomb, using unclassified data anyone can get.

Many scientists for some time have said this is possible.

But it's been said loudest by Taylor, who appeared on NBC's nuclear show and is in this one. He worked for the government in the early 1950s on the design of smaller and more powerful nuclear weapons.

His warnings about the ease of do-it-yourself A-bomb design first came in 1973 in several now-famous "New Yorker" magazine interviews currently in book form as "The Binding Curve of Energy."

Despite the hoopla given the student A-bomb in Sunday's "Nova" show, the real chiller lies in the program's study of what government safeguards exist to prevent plutonium — which makes A-bombs go boom — from falling into the hands of potential nuclear blackmailers.

It hears from various experts on the possibility of undetected plutonium pilferage at plants, hijacking of plutonium shipments and even commandotype raids on federal and private nuclear facilities.

And the overwhelming impression they leave is that while none of this has happened yet, it may very well occur someday simply because of the spread of nuclear energy use both in the United States and abroad.

Taylor, who says calling for a moratorium in nuclear power development or a complete halt to it would be just "whistling in the wind," later adds:

"We've got very few years to get this problem (of potential A-bomb use by terrorists) under control. If we don't do much more than what we're doing today or even planning ... within the next five or six years I think there's a very good chance the problem will be permanently out of control."

Neither he nor the show propose ways of getting the problem under control. But I do. I propose booking myself passage to Pitcairn Island and awaiting developments in this matter with great interest.

NEWS OF THE FARM, ORCHARD, DAIRY

Growers Discovering Last Month's Cold Damaged Peach Buds

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Peach growers in Southwestern Michigan are making the belated discovery that sub-zero temperatures the morning of Feb. 10 caused, in some cases, heavy bud damage.

A few growers might be wiped out, while the orchards of others may have gotten a good thinning. Jordan Tatter, district horticultural agent, estimates that 50 per cent of the peach buds in Southwestern Michigan were killed when temperatures fell as low as -16.

Noting the rule of thumb that states a full crop of peaches can be grown even if 90 per cent of the buds are killed, Tatter said most peach growers could still harvest a good crop provided pollination weather is good.

Herb Teichman, of Eau Claire, reports that some 90 per cent of his peach buds were killed when temperatures at his farm dropped to -11. Tom Adent says the situation at his Three Oaks township farm is "very, very bad." Temperatures there fell to -14 or -16 and bud cutting has led him to believe that all his peach buds were killed.

Jim Friday's peach orchard south of Coloma fared better. Temperature was -10 and he has 1/3 of his buds left. Carl Barden noted "no damage to be alarmed about" in his South Haven orchard, where temperatures fell to -8.

St. Joseph Grower John Nye reports that his more tender varieties, Glohaven and Redskin, suffered 60 per cent bud loss while his Velvets, Cresthavens and Redhavens lost 50 per cent of the buds.

But checking at the South Haven experiment station's Retburg farm is encouraging to Superintendent Robert Andersen. Loring trees show about 63 per cent live buds, he said, while an experimental peach, SH-427, which is a Loring-season variety, showed 77 per cent live buds.

SH-467, a Glohaven-season peach, showed 93 per cent live buds following -10 temperatures. Redhaven trees on the farm show 83½ per cent live buds, he added.

Tatter's observations show, he says, that all varieties on all kinds of sites suffered. As he describes it a thick, cold mass of air settled over the area and stayed for hours. Trees that suffered most were those with the least vigor, he says.

Closely checking the damage in his U-Pick peach orchards was Herb Teichman. He noticed considerable variation in damage from block to block and between varieties.

Teichman says that trees that lie on northern slopes have more live buds than trees on southern or eastern slopes, probably because the cold that night moved in from the southeast.

At his farm Loring variety trees suffered most. Only one per cent of Loring buds survived, he said. On his Velvet peaches two per cent of the buds are alive; on Garnet Beauty Redhaven five per cent or less are left; on trees 10 per cent of the buds are alive; Redskin and Cresthaven peaches did best with some 12 per cent of the buds unhurt.

At the Teichman farm the temperatures dropped gradually from unseasonably mild levels for three days before the -11 low and he recorded precipitation on five of the six days prior to that low reading. Generally, he said, January temperatures were very mild: on 22 days readings were above 32 and on six days it got warmer than 40.

Before he began cutting buds Teichman believed that at -11 only weak buds would be killed.

Adent owns a 30-acre peach orchard near the Indiana line. He finds that at -10 a grower can count on suffering a 50 per cent loss of buds. When he read the thermometer and saw readings of -14 or so, he thought "we're all through." After further checking his opinion has not changed.

Jim Friday noticed that the more hearty "Haven" varieties stood up well. He has enough buds for a full crop. His orchard is planted in "a better than average area," he said.

Dr. Frank Emerson, professor of horiculture at Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind., said that peach research there is going to be slow this year. Readings of -18 killed every bud at Purdue's test sites, where hedge row peach plantings are tested, he said.

Temperatures were as high as 30 on the afternoon of Feb. 9 and by midnight it was -16. Some wood damage was noted, he adds.

It's going to be hard to find one live bud in the northern one-third of Indiana, he added, although the majority of the Hoosier crop is grown in the southern part of the state.

GOOD GUY, BAD GUY: Close up photograph shows one node on the limb of peach tree branch. Fruit buds, cut with knife into cross section, are on either side of pointed leaf bud, according to Grower Herb Teichman. Dark spot in center of right bud shows that cold temperatures killed it. Black portion, according to Teichman, is the beginning of a fruit. Bud on left was unharmed by cold temperatures, which reached -11 at the grower's Eau Claire farm on Feb. 10. (Harry Smith photo)

Ore-Ida Is Dealing With Wisconsin Growers

Ore-Ida Foods, Inc., has signed contracts with growers in Wisconsin for potatoes which will be processed this year at Ore-Ida's Greenville plant.

Saying this and at the same time announcing that the Greenville plant "may be forced to operate on a reduced schedule this fall due to discriminating treatment under the Michigan Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining act", was Ike Lynch, manager of the Greenville plant.

Saying that the frozen potato product maker is simply trying to walk all over the 50-some members of the Michigan Processing Potato Growers is Harry Foster, manager of the Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association.

The controversey began last month. Ore-Ida attorneys informed the Marketing and Bargaining board that Ore-Ida did not intend to buy potatoes from Michigan growers who belonged to the bargaining unit.

An Ore-Ida attorney said then that had the company not made the statement, it would have been forced into bargaining with the accredited association and, if no agreement was reached, into submiting to binding arbitration.

In the news release Lynch stated that the company will still "welcome the opportunity to meet with the Michigan growers as it has in the past years, without the provisions of the act calling for binding arbitration."

But in the meantime contracts have been signed with growers in the Central Wisconsin town of Stevens Point, Lynch says. And growers in Minnesota, Ohio and Indiana will also be approached, according to Lynch.

The Greenville plant is looking for contracts for 7,500 acres. Last year the company paid about $10 million to potato growers, most of them in this state.

Lynch said that because of increased freight costs that will be necessary to transport out-of-state spuds here the plant's production will be reduced. Some production might be moved to other Ore-Ida plants out West, he added.

The news release concluded: "Ore-Ida negotiators indicated it was doubtful that a satisfactory bargaining procedure could be reached this year."

Apple Growers Move Toward Accreditation

The Michigan Processing Apple Growers were handed a preliminary finding of accreditation by the Michigan Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining board following a board meeting Monday in Lansing.

Next step for the apple growers toward recognition as the legal unit to bargain for most of Michigan's processed apples will take place March 26 at 9 a.m. in the Michigan Department of Agriculture hearing room, Lewis Cass building, Lansing. At that time an open accreditation hearing will be held, says Tom Moore, administrator of the Marketing and Bargaining board.

At the hearing, Moore said, the board will take evidence relative to the confirmation of the growers. The bargaining unit contains 553 Michigan growers, all of whom sell at least 210,000 pounds (about 5,000 bushels) of apples for processing, Moore said.

The hearing will be the first conducted by the board under rules of the state's Administrative Procedures Act, Moore pointed out.

In early 1974, the board held hearings for other commodity groups without following the act, and those accreditations are now being legally challenged, Moore said.

Marketing and Bargaining board counsel from the state's Attorney General's office has instructed the board that hearings for accreditation applications must follow the procedures listed in the act because the hearings are "contested cases."

Apple Tax Hearing March 14

A public hearing to discuss the proposed increase in the state's apple tax will be held March 14 at 1:30 p.m. in the Michigan Department of Agriculture hearing room, Lewis Cass Building, Lansing.

Interested persons are invited to present their views on the proposed amendments to the Michigan Apple Advertising and Promotion program, according to B. Dale Ball, director of the state Agriculture Department.

Present hundredweight assessments would be increased from: 8 cents to 12 cents for fresh market; 6 cents to 10 cents for processing; 2 cents to 8 cents for juice, cider or vinegar.

Also proposed is to redistrict the state so that membership of the Michigan Apple committee is more representative of production areas.

Some Peach Damage In Carolina

Some early blooming peach varieties in South Carolina have been damaged this week by spring freeze but that state's crop as a whole is still healthy, according to Harold Rogers, editor with the Clemson University extension service.

Rogers said that most major varieties in the state are still in the early bud swell stage of growth. Damaged by temperatures Wednesday morning in the upper teens were some early varieties already in bloom.

John Nye, St. Joseph grower who returned earlier this week from a convention in South Carolina, said the crops in Georgia and South Carolina are three weeks early in development. If the southern crop continues to mature at this rate (and if it is not frozen out) harvest might be completed before Michigan growers begin picking, Nye said. This timing would be good for all growers concerned, he said.

Bill Would Cut Farm Sales Tax Exemptions

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

LANSING — By tightening the sales tax exemptions granted to Michigan farmers the state might raise an additional $25 million, the chairman of the Senate taxation committee says.

Sen. John Bowman, D-Roseville, introduced a Senate bill last week that would cut the number of items that now are exempt from sales tax if purchased by farmers or manufacturers.

The state could collect an additional $80 million in sales tax from these two sectors of the state's economy according to Bowman.

The bill states that only "feed, seed and fertilizer" would be exempt from sales tax. The senator added that fruit trees, spray materials and probably other things will also be exempt under the bill. "We're not out to hurt anybody," he said.

Robert Smith, legislative counsel for the Michigan Farm Bureau, said that the bill is bad for consumers because its effect will be to increase food prices. The lobbyist added that the plan is "just another one of those things that's being piled on the farmer all the time."

"The current exemptions are good for everybody, both the farmer and the consumer," Smith said.

The suburban Detroit legislator disagrees, and says only half-jokingly that far too many things, including overalls, are currently exempted from sales tax.

Over the years exemptions have gone far beyond those original ones. "Farmers will be the first to agree with this," he added.

The senator said he doesn't know whether the bill, if passed, will cause the price of food to rise, but he did say "we'll have to pay for it (cutting the exemptions)."

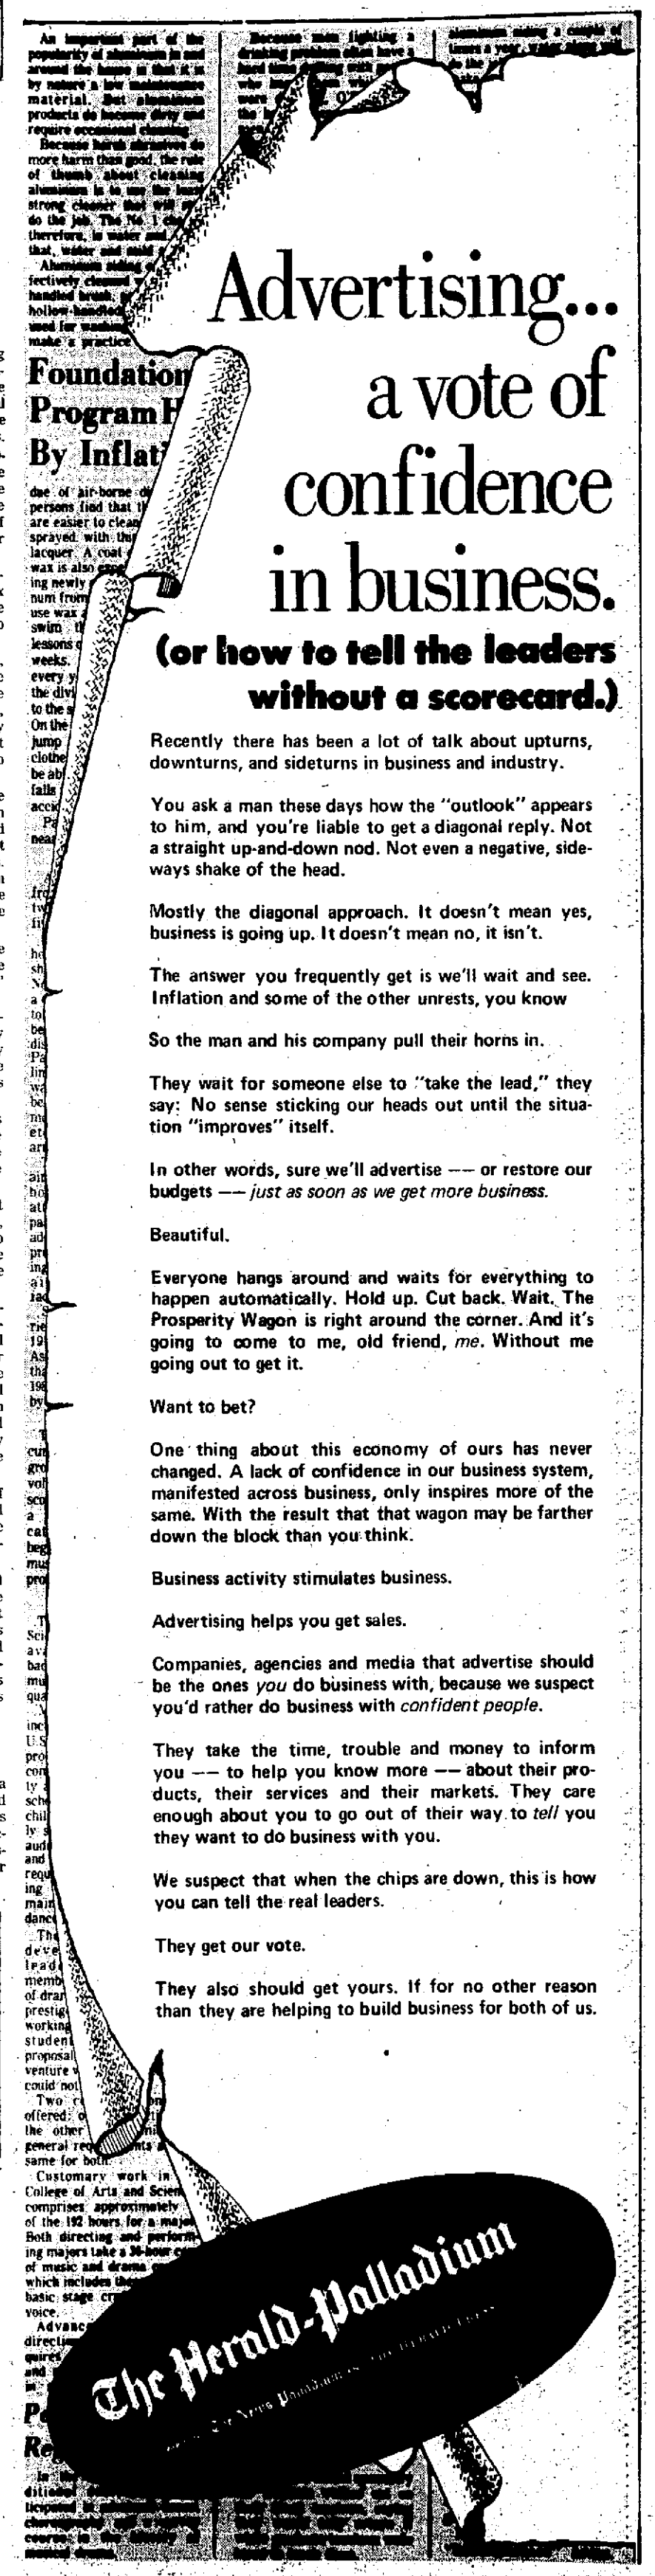

Speaking about state financing he said "We're in real trouble in this state and all of us will have to be a little more fair about how we do business." He added that one of the "real reasons" that the state is in trouble is that farmers and manufacturers are too many farmers and manufacturers are exempting too many items.

He admitted that the repeal of the state sales tax on food and drugs is partially responsible for the state's economic troubles.

Under current state laws all agricultural supplies used in the production of food are exempt from sales tax. Such things as feed, harvesters, sprayers and tractors are now exempt, according to Smith, while items such as hand tools, buildings and trucks are not.

Some Peach Damage In Carolina

Some early blooming peach varieties in South Carolina have been damaged this week by spring freeze but that state's crop as a whole is still healthy, according to Harold Rogers, editor with the Clemson University extension service.

Rogers said that most major varieties in the state are still in the early bud swell stage of growth. Damaged by temperatures Wednesday morning in the upper teens were some early varieties already in bloom.

John Nye, St. Joseph grower who returned earlier this week from a convention in South Carolina, said the crops in Georgia and South Carolina are three weeks early in development. If the southern crop continues to mature at this rate (and if it is not frozen out) harvest might be completed before Michigan growers begin picking, Nye said. This timing would be good for all growers concerned, he said.

DROUGHT CURBS POWER

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A drought has lowered levels at most of Yugoslavia's reservoirs, curbing hydroelectric power production and causing the nation's worst power shortage in 40 years.

Ore-Ida Is Dealing With Wisconsin Growers

Ore-Ida Foods, Inc., has signed contracts with growers in Wisconsin for potatoes which will be processed this year at Ore-Ida's Greenville plant.

Saying this and at the same time announcing that the Greenville plant "may be forced to operate on a reduced schedule this fall due to discriminating treatment under the Michigan Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining act" was Ike Lynch, manager of the Greenville plant.

Saying that the frozen potato product maker is simply trying to walk all over the 50-some members of the Michigan Processing Potato Growers is Harry Foster, manager of the Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association.

The controversey began last month. Ore-Ida attorneys informed the Marketing and Bargaining board that Ore-Ida did not intend to buy potatoes from Michigan growers who belonged to the bargaining unit.

An Ore-Ida attorney said then that had the company not made the statement, it would have been forced into bargaining with the accredited association and, if no agreement was reached, into submiting to binding arbitration.

In the news release Lynch stated that the company will still "welcome the opportunity to meet with the Michigan growers as it has in the past years, without the provisions of the act calling for binding arbitration."

But in the meantime contracts have been signed with growers in the Central Wisconsin town of Stevens Point, Lynch says. And growers in Minnesota, Ohio and Indiana will also be approached, according to Lynch.

The Greenville plant is looking for contracts for 7,500 acres. Last year the company paid about $10 million to potato growers, most of them in this state.

Lynch said that because of increased freight costs that will be necessary to transport out-of-state spuds here the plant's production will be reduced. Some production might be moved to other Ore-Ida plants out West, he added.

The news release concluded: "Ore-Ida negotiators indicated it was doubtful that a satisfactory bargaining procedure could be reached this year."

Market Mounts New Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market mounted another broad advance today, continuing Thursday's late upswing.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up about a point, and gainers led losers by more than a 2-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the market was drawing support from continued signs of abating inflation and falling interest rates.

And the bank prime lending rate continued in a downtrend this morning, with New York's First National City Bank and Bankers Trust cutting the basic rate on corporate loans to 8 per cent. Earlier this week Morgan Guaranty Trust of New York set its prime at 7¾.

Also in the economic news was the report from the Labor Department that the nation's unemployment rate held steady at 8.2 per cent last month. But the leveling off after sharp increases recently was achieved with the dropping of 580,000 persons from the statistically defined work force becuase they stopped looking for jobs.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average bounced back from an early 4-point decline to finish with an 8.99 gain at 761.81.

Corn Farmers Invited To Dowagiac Meeting

Corn farmers from all over Southwestern Michigan are invited to attend "Operation Corn 1975," an all-day meeting set for Monday at 9:30 a.m. at the Dowagiac Armory. At the meeting farmers will be treated to a lunch, can hear Michigan State university researchers and can talk with about 20 representatives of agri-business firms. Main speaker will be Dennis Gustafson, a corn farmer from Kiron, Iowa. Four MSU speakers on the program will discuss insect and weed control, fertilizer and economics. The program is sponsored by agri-business firms in Southwestern Michigan and the extension services of five counties — Berrien, Cass, Van Buren, Kalamazoo and St. Joseph.

Glad Society Picks Ausust Show Dates

WATERVLIET — The 1975 Gladiolus flower show sponsored by the Southwestern Michigan Gladiolus society has been tentatively scheduled for Aug. 9-10 at a location here which will be announced later, according Mrs. Raymond (Ruby) Zeller, society president.

The annual flower show had been held in Coloma for the past seven years during the city's Gladiolus festival. But because of lack of community interest and support, the society decided to move the show back to Watervliet where it originally started, she said.

"We had may problems in obtaining a suitable place to hold our annual Gladiolus flower show."

Mrs. Zeller added, "We used the Coloma high school cafeteria for many years and always abided with rules and regulations, but for the past three years, we (the society) had many problems in obtaining the use of the school."

The society has also moved to Watervliet and holds it meetings in the Watervliet fire station.

The flower show, while located in Coloma, was held during the community's annual three-day Coloma Gladiolus festival, held on the first weekend in August.

Senate Bill Would Freeze Tax Values

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Legislation to stabilize property tax values for a four-year period has been approved by the Senate Taxation Committee.

The bills, sponsored by Sen. John Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, would freeze local equalizations at the 1974 levels for four years.

Sponsors said the measures would not affect the property assessments of individual owners, which could still vary from year to year.

But the valuation of the local tax unit would be frozen, insuring that taxpayers would not be hit with increases from the county or state equalization boards once their assessment was set, they explained.

At the end of the four-year period the homeowner could be hit with a large increase as the state recomputes equalized valuations.

Under current law, the state sets the equalized valuation of each community. If the county or the state decides the local assessor is not assessing at 50 per cent of true cash value, they can order a general increase in assessments in the area.

Welborn said the taxpayer would pay no more under the bills and at least would know what his taxes would be each year for four years.

The legislation would permit local assessors to add newly constructed houses to the tax rolls and remove those destroyed. Assessments could be raised on any property.

If property values declined, the local unit could still apply to the state to have its frozen assessment lowered.

Welborn acknowledged the four-year provision might be altered on the Senate floor since many feel the jump after that period of time would be too high.

Dowagiac Says Rail Data Faulty

DOWAGIAC, Mich.(AP) — City officials say the U.S. Railway Association has admitted it's recommendation to abandon two Penn Central lines was based on faulty information.

The lines involved are the Buchanan to Niles run and Dowagiac to Kalamazoo.

City Manager Henry Graper Jr. said the association admitted Dowagiac "was not given credit for the traffic which flowed through our city or which originated or terminated in our city."

A USRA official said the proposed rail abandonment would be restudied.

Graper said a computer error apparently was responsible for not including Dowagiac traffic.

In Dowagiac, the lines serve three main industries, Sundstrand Heat Transfer Corp., Jessco Inc., and Jessup Door Co.

Bilking Attempt Reported

COLOMA — Two employes of Hilltop Foods grocery store, Coloma, reported to Coloma township police an alleged attempt to short change a store cashier yesterday evening.

Donna Young told police a young man and woman bought $9 worth of groceries and paid her with a $5 bill and five, $1 bills. She said the young man then wanted change for a $10 bill, and then change for $20 bill.

At this time, the cashier said she told the pair they were trying to confuse her and stopped the money transaction. She said the man then accused her of keeping the $20 bill.

Police said a check of the readout of the cash register by Fred Tyler, another store employe, indicated there was no extra money in the register, but the store wasn't out any money either. The pair was then asked to leave the store.

Fish Nets Gone At South Haven

Pearson told city police the nets, measuring 1,000 to 1,200 feet in length, were stored in six boxes and were taken Wednesday or Thursday from the back of his enclosed pickup truck.

The truck was parked on Water street near the Black river, the owner said.

Entry was gained by breaking a lock, police said.

The owner said the nets were handmade.

Group Forming To Fight Rail Cuts

NILES — A meeting to organize opposition to the proposed closing of three rail lines in southwestern Michigan will be held here, Wednesday, March 12, 7:30 p.m., at the Niles National Bank and Trust company.

Justin McCarty Jr., executive director of the Greater Niles Chamber of Commerce, said the meeting is primarily for representatives of area industry and commerce who depend on the rail lines.

The meeting will be used to organize data and comments to be presented to the Interstate Commerce commission during a March 9 hearing in Lansing, McCarty said.

The United States Railway association has recommended to federal officials that certain reportedly unprofitable rail routes be eliminated.

Included in rail routes that would be dropped, McCarty said, are:

— A portion of the Chicago to Detroit line that serves Niles and Buchanan and Michigan City, Ind.

— A portion of the South Bend secondary track between Niles and South Bend and connecting with the Penn Central-Benton Harbor secondary track and the Penn Central Chicago to Detroit line.

Glad Society Picks Ausust Show Dates

WATERVLIET — The 1975 Gladiolus flower show sponsored by the Southwestern Michigan Gladiolus society has been tentatively scheduled for Aug. 9-10 at a location here which will be announced later, according Mrs. Raymond (Ruby) Zeller, society president.

The annual flower show had been held in Coloma for the past seven years during the city's Gladiolus festival. But because of lack of community interest and support, the society decided to move the show back to Watervliet where it originally started, she said.

"We had may problems in obtaining a suitable place to hold our annual Gladiolus flower show."

Mrs. Zeller added, "We used the Coloma high school cafeteria for many years and always abided with rules and regulations, but for the past three years, we (the society) had many problems in obtaining the use of the school."

The society has also moved to Watervliet and holds it meetings in the Watervliet fire station.

The flower show, while located in Coloma, was held during the community's annual three-day Coloma Gladiolus festival, held on the first weekend in August.

Senate Bill Would Freeze Tax Values

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Legislation to stabilize property tax values for a four-year period has been approved by the Senate Taxation Committee.

The bills, sponsored by Sen. John Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, would freeze local equalizations at the 1974 levels for four years.

Sponsors said the measures would not affect the property assessments of individual owners, which could still vary from year to year.

But the valuation of the local tax unit would be frozen, insuring that taxpayers would not be hit with increases from the county or state equalization boards once their assessment was set, they explained.

At the end of the four-year period the homeowner could be hit with a large increase as the state recomputes equalized valuations.

Under current law, the state sets the equalized valuation of each community. If the county or the state decides the local assessor is not assessing at 50 per cent of true cash value, they can order a general increase in assessments in the area.

Welborn said the taxpayer would pay no more under the bills and at least would know what his taxes would be each year for four years.

The legislation would permit local assessors to add newly constructed houses to the tax rolls and remove those destroyed. Assessments could be raised on any property.

If property values declined, the local unit could still apply to the state to have its frozen assessment lowered.

Welborn acknowledged the four-year provision might be altered on the Senate floor since many feel the jump after that period of time would be too high.

Group Forming To Fight Rail Cuts

NILES — A meeting to organize opposition to the proposed closing of three rail lines in southwestern Michigan will be held here, Wednesday, March 12, 7:30 p.m., at the Niles National Bank and Trust company.

Justin McCarty Jr., executive director of the Greater Niles Chamber of Commerce, said the meeting is primarily for representatives of area industry and commerce who depend on the rail lines.

The meeting will be used to organize data and comments to be presented to the Interstate Commerce commission during a March 9 hearing in Lansing, McCarty said.

The United States Railway association has recommended to federal officials that certain reportedly unprofitable rail routes be eliminated.

Included in rail routes that would be dropped, McCarty said, are:

— A portion of the Chicago to Detroit line that serves Niles and Buchanan and Michigan City, Ind.

— A portion of the South Bend secondary track between Niles and South Bend and connecting with the Penn Central-Benton Harbor secondary track and the Penn Central Chicago to Detroit line.

Dowagiac Says Rail Data Faulty

DOWAGIAC, Mich.(AP) — City officials say the U.S. Railway Association has admitted it's recommendation to abandon two Penn Central lines was based on faulty information.

The lines involved are the Buchanan to Niles run and Dowagiac to Kalamazoo.

City Manager Henry Graper Jr. said the association admitted Dowagiac "was not given credit for the traffic which flowed through our city or which originated or terminated in our city."

A USRA official said the proposed rail abandonment would be restudied.

Graper said a computer error apparently was responsible for not including Dowagiac traffic.

In Dowagiac, the lines serve three main industries, Sundstrand Heat Transfer Corp., Jessco Inc., and Jessup Door Co.

Bilking Attempt Reported

COLOMA — Two employes of Hilltop Foods grocery store, Coloma, reported to Coloma township police an alleged attempt to short change a store cashier yesterday evening.

Donna Young told police a young man and woman bought $9 worth of groceries and paid her with a $5 bill and five, $1 bills. She said the young man then wanted change for a $10 bill, and then change for $20 bill.

At this time, the cashier said she told the pair they were trying to confuse her and stopped the money transaction. She said the man then accused her of keeping the $20 bill.

Police said a check of the readout of the cash register by Fred Tyler, another store employe, indicated there was no extra money in the register, but the store wasn't out any money either. The pair was then asked to leave the store.

Fish Nets Gone At South Haven

Pearson told city police the nets, measuring 1,000 to 1,200 feet in length, were stored in six boxes and were taken Wednesday or Thursday from the back of his enclosed pickup truck.

The truck was parked on Water street near the Black river, the owner said.

Entry was gained by breaking a lock, police said.

The owner said the nets were handmade.

Millions More For State Roads

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Highway Commission has announced a $200 million highway construction and improvement program for the remaining four months of the fiscal year.

The commission said Thursday the program was aided by the release of about $89 million in impounded federal highway funds.

"The entire project schedule has been reviewed in order to initiate projets that are ready, or nearly ready, for construction, and that will best stimulate employment, especially in areas where jobs are needed most," said Commission Chairman E. V. Erickson.

Coupled with state matching money and previously allocated federal funds, the commission was able to increase its March-June program from $95 million to $200 million.

The commission said the $200 million program is the largest in any four-month period in the history of the department.

Millions More For State Roads

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Highway Commission has announced a $200 million highway construction and improvement program for the remaining four months of the fiscal year.

The commission said Thursday the program was aided by the release of about $89 million in impounded federal highway funds.

"The entire project schedule has been reviewed in order to initiate projets that are ready, or nearly ready, for construction, and that will best stimulate employment, especially in areas where jobs are needed most," said Commission Chairman E. V. Erickson.

Coupled with state matching money and previously allocated federal funds, the commission was able to increase its March-June program from $95 million to $200 million.

The commission said the $200 million program is the largest in any four-month period in the history of the department.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Too Rich To Relate To The Common Man

It's no wonder Congress can't come up with solutions to the nation's economic crisis: the lawmakers are spending all their time figuring out how to pad their personal incomes; to heck with the constituents!

The same reason explains why governors and legislators can't solve state problems: They're too busy concentrating on improving their pay and fringes.

"Monkey see, monkey do". So representatives of local governments and school districts also are feathering their own nests while the working public groans under ever heavier tax burdens.

Evidence of the profligacy is impossible to ignore for anyone who does any reading at all.

The March 10 issue of the U.S. News & World Report, for example, proclaims "Up and Up — the Money Congress Spends on Itself." The magazine says that "Increasingly, Americans are wondering what the United States Congress is doing with the more than 800 million dollars a year it is spending on itself. That's double what it cost to run Congress five years ago . . . The day of the 1-billion-dollar budget for Congress's operations appears to be no more than a couple of years away."

U.S. News says the $42,500 salary for congressmen is "only the start." Hidden fringes and allowances are easier to hide from the taxpaying public. "One proposal would give" congressmen "a per diem payment for every day Congress is in session — in addition to their regular salary of $42,500 a year."

Late last week this newspaper reported from Lansing via Associated Press that "Many legislators are installing fancy fixtures in their offices at taxpayer expense while urging constituents to brace for further hard economic times in Michigan." The cost runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars. And the Democratic majority in the Legislature says Republican Gov. William Milliken set the pattern when he completed a snazzy conference room last year.

Time magazine for March 3 has an essay titled "Perceiving Poverty Amid the Plenty." Speaking of a governors' conference with President Gerald Ford and Cabinet members, Time says: "Rarely have so many eaten and drunk so much so magnificently in pursuit of a solution to national economic hard times." Then it goes on to describe how expensive booze, Cadillacs and gourmet food prevailed during the week-long extravaganza on the Potomac.

A recent headline in the Detroit News proclaimed that the "conventioneering" of state officials is costing millions upon millions a year. Likewise, school board members and city commissioners in Michigan are spending other millions attending conferences that are supposed to educate them to their responsibilities. Why is it such responsibilities always seem clearer in spots like Hawaii, San Juan and Miami Beach?

Fat cat public officials have high pay, security and as Jackie Gleason calls it, "traveling money." It's easy to figure why they're not solving the problem of the working stiff who's out of a job: they can't relate to him.

Thanks, Coach DeYoung: We Really Do Try Hard

Readers may have noticed a recent dribble of letters complaining that one or another school in the area hasn't had adequate sports coverage this year. Such comments aren't unusual as winter comes to a close.

For one thing, folks have been shut in and some get a mite irritable from cabin fever. For another, basketball tournaments are in progress and fans' ardor runs even higher than usual.

A different kind of comment is published in today's "Editor's Mailbag" published elsewhere on this page. It's a letter from Covert high school's varsity basketball coach, Rodney DeYoung.

We're proud to publish the letter for a couple of reasons. The first, of course, is the fulsome praise for our sports coverage in general. The second is the fact that the praise comes from a reader more than usually competent to comment: a professional coach whose teams are being covered by this newspaper.

It isn't by accident that we try to produce one of the largest and best sports sections of any paper our size in the country. We happen to think sports are a wholesome outlet for youth, helping to keep them away from unwholesome activities and helping school officials to keep good order and discipline.

Our sports staff is large; relatively, that is: four full-time members with help from staff photographers, as well as a host of free lance correspondents and cameramen.

Our sports staffers cover athletics at about 36 K-12 school districts. This means covering 20 games or more every Friday of football season. In basketball season, it's 20 games on Fridays, eight to 10 on Tuesdays. Plus advances, roundups and feature articles other days. Plus cross country and swimming in the fall and winter. Plus track, tennis and golf in the spring. Plus organized summer sports—no time outs.

And don't forget the on-rush of girls' sports. We're boosters. This newspaper was plugging editorially for equal rights for women athletes long before most newspapers recognized there was an issue.

In addition to local sports coverage, our staff—through wire news and picture sources—covers college and professional athletics, an ever-increasing panoply.

We're not complaining the job is too much; nor asking for any special credit. We like to do it, and doing a good job helps promote our business. We would like to point out, however, that judging just how much time and space to allot one event versus another is difficult and delicate. Judgments necessarily involve not only the equal treatment doctrine but what's most interesting to the most readers, as well.

Our sports staffers are hard-working, knowledgeable and discerning. As Coach DeYoung points out, they do an outstanding job. But, fans being as enthusiastic as they are, it isn't surprising if now and again a "super fan" writes us a "Dear Sir, You Cur" letter. In a way, however, such letters are a tribute to our sports department. If the coverage wasn't admired, no one would care whether his team was written up or not.

LAWRENCE READER DOESN'T LIKE COVERAGE

Editor,

For quite some time I have wondered why Lawrence gets so little coverage from your newspaper.

Whether it be an important meeting or whatever, we Lawrence residents have to hunt for any item pertaining to us.

What inspired me to write this letter was finding a picture of the Lawrence Queen and her runners-up in another paper. Yes, my daughter was first runner-up to Miss Lawrence and yes, as a parent I would have like to have everyone see her and I'm sure the other runner's-up parent would have like the coverage for her daughter.

Now, I will ask about Hartford. Whenever the city council has a problem with the police department it makes the headlines. Big deal. We didn't read a thing in the paper about their fine ambulance service delivering a baby a few weeks ago. They should be commended for this wonderful service. Also, you failed to mention anything in last night's paper (March 4) about the car-train accident and again the excellent services rendered by the Hartford fire department and ambulance service.

Don't you think people get a little tired of reading about a miniature Watergate all the time? As a reader of your newspaper, I do. I am not associated with the Hartford ambulance in any way but I do believe they should get some coverage in what they do.

The Search For Crime Antidote

WASHINGTON — A friend was mugged the other day and stripped of his wallet and other valuables but not before he managed to get a good look at his assailant. Hustling to the nearest police patrol, he succeeded in setting a search in operation within minutes.

A suspect was found, identified by my friend, placed in a police car, interrogated, searched, then released, since nothing was found on his person. He'd hardly gotten around the corner and disappeared when the police discovered that the man had stuffed the wallet and other belongings under the back seat of the police car, all of which would suggest he was guilty of something. But the matter was dropped there.

My friend was luckier than many; he wasn't hurt — and he did get his possessions back. His assailant was lucky, too, but no luckier than average. Nationwide, the FBI figures show, the man or woman who commits a crime is 90 percent certain of escaping punishment.

His chances of being caught are one in five. His chances of being both caught and convicted are one in ten.

Yet a compilation of recent data, state by state, indicates that certainty of punishment is about the only thing we know of today that seems consistently to deter crime. At least it's the only factor that researchers apparently agree on.

Experts agree whether severe punishment is more effective than light and the detailed studies seem to add to the confusion. So authorities fall back on their own judgment. The data seem to suggest that it may depend on the man and the crime — or some other unknown circumstance.

Then, too, none of the rehabilitation programs in a recent review of 230 studies apparently showed a consistent or measurable gain in reducing recidivism, though how accurate or valid those studies are is not clear.

Prof. James Q. Wilson of Harvard University and an acknowledged authority on these matters, doesn't suggest we give up on rehabilitation, abandon heavy sentences or add any particular remedy.

He does advocate that we do some very serious studying of why some approaches apparently fail while others succeed and reorganize our efforts to apply what we learn rather than pushing ahead blindly with preconceived ideas. What he wants, in brief, is convincing evidence as to what woks and what doesn't — and fewer assumptions — in both police departments and the courts.

That, of course, means more experimenting.

Ohio is trying out short stays in prison on the theory that the emotional shock of a sentence may be what deters crime — not long incarceration. Lengthy periods behind bars, the theory runs, may be counterproductive and serve only to turn a beginner into a hardened criminal. Early reports show a recidivism rate of around 10 percent, lower, they say, than normal.

Arizona has taken another course. A new law increases the amount of time a prisoner must serve before becoming eligible for parole.

A 1974 Maine law provides for the nullification of the criminal records of pardoned offenders. That is, a man or woman pardoned is considered as never having been arrested or convicted of the offense for which he or she was pardoned.

New Mexico now makes it easier for former convicts to secure state jobs. And West Virginia now makes it possible for men and women brought to trial, and entitled to legal assistance, to choose their own attorneys.

Retires Post

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State Police Lt. William Lanphear, commander of the Sault Ste. Marie post, retired Friday after more than 28 years of service, according to the State Police here. Lanphear, 51, had been commander of the post since it was established in 1966. He joined the State Police after World War II.

Abortion Reality Shocked Jury

No doubt many legal and factual questions remain to be decided in the manslaughter conviction of Dr. Kenneth Edelin in Boston. The trial decision may well be overturned on one ground or another. But one dramatic point was certainly made in this trial: a jury of ordinary Americans was forced to look directly at the actualities of a particular abortion, and the jury did not like what it saw.

In a strictly legal sense, as everyone now understands, the jury's verdict was not about abortion at all. The verdict itself is also now being explained away on various extraneous grounds. It is being urged that the Catholic influence in Boston is pervasive. But Dr. Edelin's defense, employing modern polling methods, determined that passions about abortion were not high in the cross-section of the population from which the jury would be chosen. They opted for a jury trial. They were surprised. What happened during the trial was that the jury became educated, its consciousness "raised."

Oddly enough, according to legal experts, Dr. Edelin's strongest ground for appeal is the photograph of the actual dead fetus which was shown to the jury. Apparently this photograph of a "well-developed black male" had a profound "emotional" effect. That emotional effect may well have prejudiced the legal questions at issue.

But such photographs may well be worth a thousand quibbles. Until they entered that courtroom, the members of the ordinary American jury probably had not given much thought to the question of abortion at all. The language in which we are now accustomed to talk about abortion has a certain sterility: fetus, abortus (i.e., the thing aborted), termination, gravida, and so on.

Tests have shown that an 11-week-old "fetus" can feel and hear. The "fetus," surprisingly earyly, has learning experiences and makes choices within the womb. The "fetus" responds to pleasure, pain, and even changes in diet.

Only recently has abortion become a mass experience, staff members — like the Boston Edelin jury — have often been traumatized. Nurses in San Francisco, against doctors' orders, recently tried to "save" an "abortus." An obstetrician unburdens himslef to a Newsweek reporter: "It's terrible. You cut a hole in the uterus and take the baby out and put in a basin. It's a little kid. It wiggles and lets out some squeaks. Somebody covers it up. Sometimes it lives for an hour or two." Increasingly, the process is difficult for the ordinary sensibilities of hospital staffs, inured to death as they are.

There is no doubt that the pro-abortion people have realities of their own to produce. Powerful sociological currents are running in favor of abortion, and as we see, powerful political ones. Their arguments are not so easy to dismiss.

Nevertheless, when an abortion occurs via internal dismemberment, hospital staff have been shaken by the sight of tiny perfectly developed arms and legs being sucked out of the womb. Abortion induced by the injection of saline solution actually scalds, the "fetus," which then convulses and kicks for several hours before "terminating."

The great strength of Aristotle as a philosopher was what might be called his inspired common sense. He looked at things as they seemed to be. Aristotle discusses abortion in Chapter 16, Book VII of the Politics, where he also notes in detail that there are good reasons for infanticide. Aristotle's view, abortion should be performed early "before sense and life have begun." The New York Times, in contrast, speaks for the "progressive" view.

You don't even have to get out of your car to mail a letter at the St. Joseph post office any more. A new extension chute has been recently added to the box in front of the post office, allowing persons to drop their letters into the slot by merely rolling down their car windows and reaching out. Mrs. Evelyn Evans, acting St. Joseph postmaster, appealed to local residents not to park in front of the box so that the new "curb service" system can be used without interference.

The Search For Crime Antidote

WASHINGTON — A friend was mugged the other day and stripped of his wallet and other valuables but not before he managed to get a good look at his assailant. Hustling to the nearest police patrol, he succeeded in setting a search in operation within minutes.

A suspect was found, identified by my friend, placed in a police car, interrogated, searched, then released, since nothing was found on his person. He'd hardly gotten around the corner and disappeared when the police discovered that the man had stuffed the wallet and other belongings under the back seat of the police car, all of which would suggest he was guilty of something. But the matter was dropped there.

My friend was luckier than many; he wasn't hurt — and he did get his possessions back. His assailant was lucky, too, but no luckier than average. Nationwide, the FBI figures show, the man or woman who commits a crime is 90 percent certain of escaping punishment.

His chances of being caught are one in five. His chances of being both caught and convicted are one in ten.

Yet a compilation of recent data, state by state, indicates that certainty of punishment is about the only thing we know of today that seems consistently to deter crime. At least it's the only factor that researchers apparently agree on.

Experts agree whether severe punishment is more effective than light and the detailed studies seem to add to the confusion. So authorities fall back on their own judgment. The data seem to suggest that it may depend on the man and the crime — or some other unknown circumstance.

Then, too, none of the rehabilitation programs in a recent review of 230 studies apparently showed a consistent or measurable gain in reducing recidivism, though how accurate or valid those studies are is not clear.

Prof. James Q. Wilson of Harvard University and an acknowledged authority on these matters, doesn't suggest we give up on rehabilitation, abandon heavy sentences or add any particular remedy.

He does advocate that we do some very serious studying of why some approaches apparently fail while others succeed and reorganize our efforts to apply what we learn rather than pushing ahead blindly with preconceived ideas. What he wants, in brief, is convincing evidence as to what woks and what doesn't — and fewer assumptions — in both police departments and the courts.

That, of course, means more experimenting:

Ohio is trying out short stays in prison on the theory that the emotional shock of a sentence may be what deters crime — not long incarceration. Lengthy periods behind bars, the theory runs, may be counterproductive and serve only to turn a beginner into a hardened criminal. Early reports show a recidivism rate of around 10 percent, lower, they say, than normal.

Arizona has taken another course. A new law increases the amount of time a prisoner must serve before becoming eligible for parole.

A 1974 Maine law provides for the nullification of the criminal records of pardoned offenders. That is, a man or woman pardoned is considered as never having been arrested or convicted of the offense for which he or she was pardoned.

New Mexico now makes it easier for former convicts to secure state jobs. And West Virginia now makes it possible for men and women brought to trial, and entitled to legal assistance, to choose their own attorneys.

Abortion Reality Shocked Jury

No doubt many legal and factual questions remain to be decided in the manslaughter conviction of Dr. Kenneth Edelin in Boston. The trial decision may well be overturned on one ground or another. But one dramatic point was certainly made in this trial: a jury of ordinary Americans was forced to look directly at the actualities of a particular abortion, and the jury did not like what it saw.

In a strictly legal sense, as everyone now understands, the jury's verdict was not about abortion at all. The verdict itself is also now being explained away on various extraneous grounds. It is being urged that the Catholic influence in Boston is pervasive. But Dr. Edelin's defense, employing modern polling methods, determined that passions about abortion were not high in the cross-section of the population from which the jury would be chosen. They opted for a jury trial. They were surprised. What happened during the trial was that the jury became educated, its consciousness "raised."

Oddly enough, according to legal experts, Dr. Edelin's strongest ground for appeal is the photograph of the actual dead fetus which was shown to the jury. Apparently this photograph of a "well-developed black male" had a profound "emotional" effect. That emotional effect may well have prejudiced the legal questions at issue.

But such photographs may well be worth a thousand quibbles. Until they entered that courtroom, the members of the ordinary American jury probably had not given much thought to the question of abortion at all. The language in which we are now accustomed to talk about abortion has a certain sterility: fetus, abortus (i.e., the thing aborted), termination, gravida, and so on.

Tests have shown that an 11-week-old "fetus" can feel and hear. The "fetus," surprisingly earyly, has learning experiences and makes choices within the womb. The "fetus" responds to pleasure, pain, and even changes in diet.

Only recently has abortion become a mass experience, staff members — like the Boston Edelin jury — have often been traumatized. Nurses in San Francisco, against doctors' orders, recently tried to "save" an "abortus." An obstetrician unburdens himslef to a Newsweek reporter: "It's terrible. You cut a hole in the uterus and take the baby out and put in a basin. It's a little kid. It wiggles and lets out some squeaks. Somebody covers it up. Sometimes it lives for an hour or two." Increasingly, the process is difficult for the ordinary sensibilities of hospital staffs, inured to death as they are.

There is no doubt that the pro-abortion people have realities of their own to produce. Powerful sociological currents are running in favor of abortion, and as we see, powerful political ones. Their arguments are not so easy to dismiss.

Nevertheless, when an abortion occurs via internal dismemberment, hospital staff have been shaken by the sight of tiny perfectly developed arms and legs being sucked out of the womb. Abortion induced by the injection of saline solution actually scalds, the "fetus," which then convulses and kicks for several hours before "terminating."

The great strength of Aristotle as a philosopher was what might be called his inspired common sense. He looked at things as they seemed to be. Aristotle discusses abortion in Chapter 16, Book VII of the Politics, where he also notes in detail that there are good reasons for infanticide. Aristotle's view, abortion should be performed early "before sense and life have begun." The New York Times, in contrast, speaks for the "progressive" view.
